

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1861

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1861-Rosalie walked out of the operating room, took off her mask, and gave Mary a knowing smile.

“Mae, the operation is successful!”

Mary stood up quickly, trembling with uneasiness one second, and froze in the next second.

Immediately, surprise overtook her expression.

She flew up and hugged Rosalie tightly.

“Rosie, thank you so much! Thank you for saving my mother! You are my savior; I don’t know how to repay you...”

She became incoherent. Rosalie hugged her back and patted her back lightly with her right hand.

Rosalie was encouraging. “She’s fine, she’s fine now! Auntie Wilson’s heart failure problem has been completely resolved. She will be fine from now on.”

Mary wept with joy, tears streaming down her face.

Byron shot the little woman a look of admiration and gave her a thumbs up.

Rosalie told Mary to take good care of her mother but immediately wrapped in exhaustion herself. She was completely spent.

“Okay, it’s almost dawn. You should go back with Mr. Lawrence quickly. Get a good sleep, I will take care of everything.” Mary said with concern.

Her mood had completely calmed down.

Rosalie nodded and left the hospital with Byron.

As she walked out of the hospital, she was so tired that she could not move her legs. In the end, Byron squatted down slightly, picked her up on his back, and went to the parking spot.

After getting in the car, Rosalie fell asleep while lying down in the back seat.

Byron slowed down and drove steadily to let her have a good sleep.

When they got home, he was reluctant to wake her up. Fortunately, Rosalie woke up but was still in a daze.

Immediately, the man picked her up like a princess and carried her straight to the bedroom.

Rosalie was full of happiness with such support. With a smile on her lips, she fell asleep deeply.

This sleep went on till the evening. It was past dinner time when she woke up.

Rosalie went downstairs after washing up. She greeted the kids while listening to them having fun.

Benedict and Melody were both there. As soon as Melody saw her, she immediately stopped feeding soup to Estie, got up, and walked to the kitchen. "Rosalie, I'll warm up the food for you. Wait a moment!"

"Mom, it's okay. I can do it myself!" Rosalie called out.

Benedict smiled and said, ' Don't worry about it, let her. This is what a mother-in-law should do! I heard from Byron that you worked so hard last night to save Miss Wilson's mother. That's amazing!"

"Dad, this is what I should do, and it's nothing. It's hard work for you two elders to help take care of the three little ones."

"Hahaha, we can't wait. We don't mind at all if you let us take care of these three little kids every day! If there's nothing else, you should rest more. Don't always be busy with the research institute."

Rosalie has always respected Benedict's open-mindedness and generosity.

Byron came back as soon as she had dinner.

They truly had a tacit understanding. He came home with a lot of gifts and supplements, which were suitable for visiting patients. Then, the two set off for the hospital again.

After more than ten hours of care, Auntie Wilson had woken up.

Mary took care of her every step of the way, staring at the electrocardiogram the whole time. She found that the heartbeat frequency increased, and the heart was getting stronger and stronger. She did not feel tired at all.

Rosalie and Byron pushed open the door and went in to visit.

Auntie Wilson's complexion looked visibly rosier than before the operation. This was a response to the normal blood supply.

"Auntie Wilson, my husband and I have come to visit you."

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1862

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1862-After Auntie Wilson woke up, she thanked Rosalie repeatedly.

The couple did not want to interfere with Auntie Wilson's rest time, so they left the hospital after a brief chat.

Back at the villa, Byron made a phone call to Andrius.

Only then did Andrius learn that such a terrible thing happened last night? He rushed over for a visit.

Later, Rosalie received a call from her best friend, mentioning that Andrius had come to visit.

This time, her tone was much calmer. Unlike before, like a yearning schoolgirl.

"Rosie, my mom's blood volume is still insufficient and could not produce more blood cells. I will take good care of her from now on. During this time, I don't want to think about anything else."

"Alright, take care. If you need anything, just tell me anytime!"

Rosalie could understand this feeling.

Back then, after she gave birth to her kids, she completely cut off any desire for relationships. She only wanted to raise the kids well.

Women would be very rational during this period.

At the same time, this was a personal test and verification.

An uneventful month had passed.

During that period, the family accompanied Nox to participate in a global youth-level programming competition. Unsurprisingly, he won the first place.

This competition was incomprehensible to laymen.

However, Nox told Mommy and Daddy that some overseas hackers took advantage of the competition and used the local organizers' channels to attack several famous science and technology schools.

They wanted to steal data!

Nox did everything he could to intercept the virus attack and successfully stop it. He even recruited some technical expert friends he met online to help him with the interception.

They were eventually successful.

The difficulty of winning first place in the competition was simply insignificant when compared to the defensive battle against the virus attack.

Lucian participated in a variety show with the strongest brain as well. However, in order not to expose his privacy, he went through the whole process in a mask. Every time he went for a recording in the studio, he attended the show in secrecy to not reveal his identity.

Even the film crew did not know who he was.

However, Lucian caused a stir in the country. Lucian's memory was so powerful that he can find the subtle differences among more than 4,000 similar pictures.

On top of that, the crew of the show added a clue to a cold case into the test.

As a result, Lucian caught the key difference and provided evidence that helped the police crack the case and caught the criminal.

Therefore, the "Somerland Prodigy" was all the rage on every media online for a whole week.

Lucian's identity had become increasingly bizarre the more he was talked about. Some people even suspected that Lucian might be a robot.

Lucian did not know whether to laugh or cry over this, while Nox used it to tease him every day.

Estie's children's clothing company had started.

Rosalie did not expect the scale of Byron's investment to be so large.

More than 20 major cities across the country have opened flagship stores at the same time.

The style designed by Estie was fresh, filled with imagination, and in line with children's interests. It incorporated many Ancient Cultural Elements of Somerland, giving many consumers a refreshing twist.

Most importantly, the price was reasonable.

All of a sudden, "Comfy" became a popular brand all over the country. Countless franchisees were looking for partnership opportunities. However, when they heard that it was a company under the Lawrence Corporation, they immediately knew that there was no chance.

Comfy was the name chosen by Estie herself because she wanted every child who wears her clothing brand to feel comfort in their hearts every day.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1863

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1863-Flower Charm And Flower Shadow

After a month of preparation, Rosalie's research institute successfully launched two products.

Flower Charm Essence and Flower Shadow Moisturizer.

They also did a random sample test for a week before the actual product launch.

The product effect was confirmed to rival any international luxury brand.

Chloe tried it personally as well and invited many relatives and friends to participate.

As a result, the first batch of orders was sold out instantly amongst the upper-class ladies in Coast City.

Five thousand sets, not one left.

Fortunately, Melody ordered several sets in advance from Rosalie. She mentioned that her orders were favors to friends, and the favors were quite generous.

All of a sudden, the two products became the talk of upper-class celebrities and wives to show off. One would be discreetly looked down upon if one was unable to purchase it.

The price had been continuously raised. The cost price was only one thousand and eighty-eight dollars, while the retail price could go for ten thousand more.

Such a debut made Rosalie's confidence soar. She happily led the technical staff of the research institute to a celebration banquet.

On this day, Chloe went to the research institute early in the morning to discuss with Rosalie the second phase of the order.

"Chloe, I still feel that we shouldn't be rash and aggressive, but let's not take the route of low-end petty scarcity. Let's limit the order volume of the second phase to 100,000 sets. One issue per month is fast enough! I don't want our products to become a way for some scalpers to make money. Therefore, a moderate order quantity is the most appropriate."

The relationship between Rosalie and Chloe has improved a lot through this month's contact.

Moreover, Chloe had only met Rosalie and rarely got in touch with Byron.

From this perspective, Chloe sincerely wanted to do a good job.

"Rosalie, it's still too few. Have you considered that 100,000 sets would be sold nationwide? We have done market research and so many people are waiting for the product. Do you know how many people are waiting to buy online now? There are 400,000 to 500,000 people! Therefore, at least double the number, 200,000 sets would be better. In terms of factories, we could add a few more production lines and hire more employees at the same time."

Chloe's status amongst the Lincolns had been continuously improving this time because of this partnership with Rosalie.

Both of the Lincolns' listed companies were originally irrelevant to Rosalie's company, but their stock prices have doubled.

Chloe had thoroughly tasted the sweetness of this investment. Even her parents no longer urge her to get married but showed concern toward her every day.

The Lincolns' extended family regarded Chloe as the hope to revitalize their empire; the investors who have cooperated with the Lincolns for a long time could foresee that they will make a lot of money in the future.

All this, and Chloe almost forgot about Kelly's existence.

Kelly called her several times, but Chloe did not answer or made excuses to evade her.

“Well, I didn’t expect that the market would be so hot. We did not expect this in the early stage. We couldn’t help it because of insufficient production capacity.”

In the end, Rosalie listened to Chloe’s suggestion.

After all, Chloe’s marketing strategies were more mature than hers. Her abilities were mainly research and development.

Chloe nodded excitedly and then told Rosalie more good news.

“Coast City officials are on our side now. They even quickly approved a piece of commercial land for us, along with plenty of tax discounts!

“Several foreign luxury brands have already started researching our products. They have even launched headhunting companies to poach our people with high salaries. In this regard, you have to be on guard. Everyone on the research and development team is their target.

“Today, the editor-in-chief of a fashion magazine just happened to invite you for an interview. I wonder, would you have the time to participate? If not, I’ll just decline it for you!”

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1864

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1864- This Was Not Good

Rosalie turned down many activities after discussing with Chloe for more than an hour. She just wanted to stand behind the scenes and focus on research and development.

When she got home, Byron approached all of a sudden, trying to find out about the amount of the second launch.

“My good wife, you should be able to give your husband some special treatment. I only want two hundred sets, really, just two hundred sets. Otherwise, I’ll be bugged to death by my friends!”

Rosalie was shaken when she heard him being a bit” coquettish” and nodded in agreement.

Byron also did not expect there would be a day he would have to lobby for these bottles and jars. Nevertheless, his wife’s company was developing at a terrifying momentum.

The company had only been established for a month. With such a small investment, its current market value was already at 20 billion.

Moreover, as the subsequent products continued to launch, breaking the 100 billion was almost a certainty.

Coupled with research institutes, hospitals, and pharmaceutical companies, Rosalie's estimated net worth would definitely exceed 100 billion.

Billionaire businesswoman!

Rosalie had no idea about money at all. Her original intention was just to increase those researchers' benefits and prevent them from living in poverty.

Science and technology itself would already be valuable.

Sensing that his wife was a little tired, Byron immediately massaged her shoulders.

Later, Benedict and Melody picked up the kids from school.

Now, the two of them devoted themselves to the three little ones, picking them up and accompanying them every day.

The family had dinner happily.

Not long after, Andrius arrived as well.

His main task at this stage was to compete with Alistair's company. There was no need for Byron to interfere.

Alistair's trade expansion plan was interrupted after the last confrontation, and he withdrew from Europe angrily.

Instead, they changed strategy to compete with Lawrence Corporation for investment shares in the emerging African market.

Andrius gave Byron a conclusive report, then he was dragged to join them for dinner.

Halfway through the meal, he suddenly stood up and smacked his forehead. "I almost forgot! Auntie Wilson would be discharged today, and I'm supposed to pick her up. Byron, sister-in-law, Uncle and Auntie, kids, excuse me. I need to go now!"

Rosalie took a look at Byron and stood up too.

"Oh great, my best friend didn't even tell me this. Auntie Wilson can finally be discharged from the hospital. Byron, let's go and meet her too."

Byron nodded in agreement.

The two followed Andrius and arrived at the hospital soon.

Indeed, Mary did not notify anyone. She knew that her best friend had been busy with the new company recently.

Of course, Andrius promised to help. That was enough for her.

During this time, she had not expected Andrius to be so concerned about her mother's illness.

He had been looking for various supplements and herbal tonics to help her mother recover.

Moreover, he would come to the hospital almost every two days. He even had a good chat with Mary mother.

Deep inside, Mary felt an indescribable sense of dependence towards him.

She knew that this was not a good thing.

This may just be how Andrius would treat important friends.

Of course, she also knew that Andrius and Beatrice had been in frequent contact recently. They would often have meals and coffee together.

Therefore, Mary chose not to think too much about this very complicated situation.

Mary was very happy to see both Rosalie and Byron arrive. She went to hug her best friend.

Rosalie found that Mary had lost a lot of weight. She must have been exhausted from being a caretaker.

Fortunately, Auntie Wilson's condition had significantly improved. Her initial frail appearance had disappeared.

As if Auntie Wilson's weight loss had transferred to her daughter instead.

"Congratulations on your hospital discharge, Auntie Wilson! Why don't you stay in Coast City from now on? Mae would be so glad. The weather here is pleasant, and Mae could take care of you!" Rosalie smiled as she suggested to Auntie Wilson.

Auntie Wilson smiled from ear to ear, repeatedly thanking Rosalie and Byron. She nodded and promised to stay.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1865

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1865-It was a clear night. In the villa that Rosalie gifted Mary, the two sat and chatted on the stone coffee table in the yard.

Auntie Wilson had already fallen asleep. The giant boulder weighing on Mary's heart finally fell to the ground. Her expression was one of sheer indifference after a lifechanging catastrophe.

"Rosie, I've been avoidant all this while. No strings attached; a carefree, assertive, and passionate facade was just to hype myself up."

Mary completely opened up and spoke out without reservation.

With such a life experience, she had experienced countless gossip since childhood. From weakness to strength, and then becoming optimistic.

"Mae, neither you nor your mother did anything wrong. You don't need to be afraid at all."

Rosalie comforted her. However, Mary just smiled lightly. She was already relaxed.

Mary was deeply grateful to Rosalie for saving her mother because only a doctor would understand the risk involved. Not to mention herself, a well-known local doctor might not dare to do it.

"What's up with that girl Beatrice? I heard you say that she is very assertive. So, how do you feel about Andrius?"

Andrius, thick as a brick, was unexpectedly blessed with one courtship after another during this time. For someone as straightlaced as him to not refuse her at all, Beatrice might have found a way to get along with Andrius.

This made Rosalie a little worried. After all, she could tell that her best friend's feelings for Andrius were not just a budding interest, but proper feelings had taken root.

Mary shook her head. "I'm not sure, but I felt that he was happy around Beatrice. From the looks of it, I may not have a chance. However, being his friend is not bad either. He always takes good care of his friends!"

Rosalie immediately rebuked the disappointment in her gaze. "Mae, you can't be discouraged! You finally met someone you really like after so many years. How could you give up so easily? Besides, Andrius and that Beatrice haven't made anything official yet, right?"

Mary listened but her heart was calm.

Nothing but peace.

She smiled again. "I just want to properly fix Andrius' stomach problem."

Mary remembered that Andrius suffered from depression, but he was able to be influenced by Beatrice and gradually became happy. She felt, 'Maybe, that woman is the right person in his life.'

"Hmm, true enough. His stomach problems have greatly improved since the last reexamination. Aren't your efforts enough for that blockhead?"

"Rosie, let's not talk about this anymore. Matters of the heart cannot be forced. Isn't that what you did at the beginning? Don't worry about me. Let's talk about other things. I heard your new company is successful, remember to bring two sets for me next time. I'm worried about aging too."

"Haha, what are you talking about? You're only twenty-seven years old, what do you mean by aging? Alright, alright, I'll reserve two sets for you."

The two chatted for a while. Mary gradually began to return to her previous self.

Rosalie left a prescription for Auntie Wilson before she left, which has a miraculous effect on hematopoiesis.

"Rosie, I truly admire your medical skills. One day, when I can no longer think of what to do, I'd want to resume learning, worship your teacher as mine, and be your junior!"

She said with a smile. Mary walked Rosalie out while Byron came to pick her up.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1866

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1866-The next day was a weekend. Rosalie had originally wanted to spend time with the kids but hurried to the research institute because of Mr. Loewe's phone call.

A researcher fainted and stopped breathing because of continuous overtime work. The cause of his sudden death was likely myocarditis.

At present, everyone attempted to give first aid. They called the hospital as well.

However, Rosalie was closer to the research institute and could arrive faster.

She arrived in a hurry and implemented emergency treatment immediately. She managed to resuscitate his heartbeat and saved his life, but there was no sign of consciousness.

Rosalie worried about a permanent side effect and immediately took out her silver needles to treat him.

When the ambulance arrived, he was finally revived and sent to the hospital.

“Mr. Loewe, haven’t I mentioned this before? Be sure to keep an eye on everyone’s working hours to avoid excessive overtime. Don’t overwork, including yourself. Our current products are making a profit, and there is no pressure!”

After the dust settled, Rosalie found out that the overworked researcher was a member of Mr. Loewe’s team, so she firmly reminded him again.

Mr. Loewe admitted and quickly apologized. “I was too engrossed and dragged them to work overtime. I take responsibility for this. Next time, I’ll be mindful!”

Rosalie nodded. Mr. Loewe understood the gravity of sudden myocarditis.

Immediately, she added. “Let this researcher take a good rest. His salary will be paid as usual, and all medical expenses will be reimbursed by the research institute. By the way, get ready to hold a performance award meeting in a few days. The profits of the cosmeceutical company will be distributed completely!”

Mr. Loewe was stunned for a moment. He did not expect that Rosalie would share all the profits.

There was no profit in the first phase, but two hundred thousand sets in the second phase of the product launch made a pretty good profit.

“Shouldn’t the investment deduction be done first?” He asked.

“No! I started the company to improve everyone’s benefits. I could always recover the investment costs at any time anyway.” Rosalie replied easily.

Right after, Linda, who had already gone to the hospital, was asked to take good care of the researcher.

Not long after, Chloe came to the institute to look for Rosalie.

She looked sullen as she entered the office, "Rosalie, I heard that you plan to share all the profits this time? Why didn't you get my consent for this matter?"

In between her lines were full of dissatisfaction.

True enough, Rosalie acted before thinking but she did not feel guilty at all. "Chloe, I know you want to mention the cost of funds for those investors. However, I must do so this time. I have to give all the researchers reassurance. This would ensure better products in the future."

Chloe knew this rationale too, but she still felt uneasy. "I can understand that, but at least, you should discuss it with me first."

She was a little worried that if things continued this way, she would lose her right to speak.

Although the major shareholder was Rosalie, they must have mutual respect no matter what.

Rosalie smiled faintly. "I'm sorry, I did not manage to this time. I will take note next time!"

In fact, Rosalie had consulted Byron.

The man mentioned that investors in the past always divided up the profits and took away the bulk of the funds after payouts. This was not right at all.

In the wealthy upper class, good investment projects reigned superior. There would never be a shortage of funds at all. Any Tom, Dick, or Harry could invest.

The so-called capital risk was more of a rhetoric. After a project fails, many investors could always use various methods to transfer the risk to others.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1867

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1867-Therefore, Rosalie decided to be willful and distributed the profits.

Chloe could faintly see a fierce business aura that Rosalie emitted and could not help feeling a little nervous.

At first, she believed that Rosalie was easy to negotiate and easier to control, so she lowered her stance and gave Rosalie the executive power.

'Great, now my control is gone!'

Chloe was very unhappy, but she considered the follow-up. The third phase of the product launch would be the moment when the profits would grow exponentially, so she endured it.

"However, let's talk about it first. The profit in the third phase must first let our investors recover a certain amount of cost. Alternatively, we could start converting the profits into equity?"

As soon as Chloe spoke, Rosalie nodded and agreed to recover the cost.

However, Rosalie still disagreed with the conversion of equity shares.

"Chloe, if we are a good company, it doesn't matter if we go public or not. Besides, we don't need financing right now."

Rosalie expressed his thoughts. Of course, this was also a decision made after consulting Byron.

Chloe choked for a moment, with a sullen look between her brows.

In the end, she forcibly endured it. "Let's hold a general shareholder meeting regarding this matter to make a decision together!"

Then, she found a casual excuse and left the institute.

Along the way back, the more Chloe thought about it, the more uncomfortable she felt.

She sensed that Rosalie's current control over the company was filled with Byron's influence.

She was incapable of competing with Byron.

She drove at a leisurely pace when a phone call came suddenly. Chloe saw that it was Kelly.

She had refused many times and hesitated if she should hang up again.

Suddenly, seven or eight men jumped out in front of her, blocking her car.

Chloe immediately slammed on the brakes and almost bumped into them. She could not help but yell. "Are you trying to die?"

However, in the next second, she knew that these people were after her.

As soon as she stopped the car, those men rushed over, banging on the car door, and yelling for her to get out of the car.

Chloe was frightened in an instant.

One of the leaders yelled through the car window. "You must answer Miss Payton's call."

These were all Kelly's men!

In the end, she could only press the answer button. The men outside stopped their ruckus but surrounded the car to prevent her from leaving easily.

Kelly's voice sounded gloomy. "Chloe dear Chloe, don't think I don't know anything. Although I'm in H Land, I've been watching all the progress of your and Rosalie's company. You are bold to not answer my phone call. Aren't you afraid that I would hand Byron Lawrence some clues?"

This first agenda of the call was the deadliest threat. Chloe was frightened.

She quickly responded in flattery. "Miss Payton, I've truly been busy, so I haven't been in touch with you. After all, there were still many things that hadn't been fully implemented at that time!"

"Oh? Really... Fair enough."

Kelly put on a playful tone, fully confident in completely controlling Chloe.

She said unhurriedly, "Then, the progress had happened. The second phase of the product already allows you to earn back the cost. You should be able to do it for the third phase of the launch, right?"

Chloe's scalp tightened when the reminder came.

She could not give up on such a good opportunity now.

"Miss Payton, have you ever considered that this company will be very profitable in the future? If you want, I can give you half of my profits."

Chloe tried to entice Kelly with benefits and make her give up the plan.

What she got was Kelly's stormy roar. "Oh, are you trying to buy me out? What a joke! No amount of money can quell my hatred! Do you understand?"

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1868

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1868-“Forget millions or tens of millions! Even several billion meant nothing to me. Chloe Lincoln, do you understand?”

As Kelly gnashed her teeth, there was a monstrous hatred in her voice.

“If I cared about benefits, I wouldn’t be so stupid at the beginning. I would just take the initiative and get out of the way. You are way inferior to me. My love for Byron back then was to the point that I didn’t care about anything. While you are so easily shaken because of a little money. How pathetic!

“Chloe oh Chloe, your so-called love is simply fake. How could a person like you deserve Byron?”

These cruel words hit Chloe like daggers.

Chloe trembled slightly, trying to stand up but could not find any excuses.

Yes, true enough, as Kelly said, she began to enjoy the sense of accomplishment in her career. She even slowly comforted herself and let go of her obsession with Byron.

Chloe was silent for a long time, and now she has no choice.

She completely fell into Kelly’s trap.

“You still have a chance now, as long as you bring down Rosalie. Maybe you don’t have the chance to obtain Byron’s love, but you still have a chance to acquire the company. Do you understand?”

At the critical moment, Kelly threw Chloe another piece of bone.

Chloe was stunned for a moment, but her heart moved.

‘If possible, control the research team. New products could still be launched in the future even without Rosalie as the leader.

‘However, in that case, that would mean turning against Byron completely. By then, how could the Lincolns withstand that?’

In just a few seconds, Chloe’s emotions were a mess.

She calmed down again.

'What's the point of calming down?

'I no longer have an option. I'm afraid that at this moment, Kelly had recorded this phone call as well.'

'As long as Kelly is willing to provide Byron with the evidence of our interactions, I would've offended him completely.

'So, it seems that no matter how I choose, the final result is the same.'

"Alright, I'll take that chance to do it when the third phase of the product launches!"
Chloe did not want to pay any more attention to this lunatic. She agreed and hung up the phone directly.

Not long after, the men surrounding the car also dispersed.

Chloe sat helplessly in the driver's seat, suddenly feeling empty in her heart.

Andrius came out of the company when it was almost lunchtime. He was holding some herbal tonic and planned to visit Auntie Wilson.

The phone rang suddenly.

It was Beatrice who called. He pressed the answer button.

"Andrius, are you free? I went out cycling today, but I fell on the way back. I'm still on the mountain. Is it convenient for you to come over?"

Beatrice's womanly voice had a uniquely soft tone, easy on the ears, and was highly attractive to the opposite sex.

"Are you hurt? Where is it? Is it serious? I'll go right away." Andrius was enthusiastic as a friend.

"I'm at Halo Hill Scenic Park, I'll send you the location. It's not too serious, just a scratch and a little bleeding. Don't worry!" Beatrice responded.

After hanging up the phone, Andrius immediately received a location on his messenger.

He got in the car immediately and followed the navigation.

'That should be enough.' He thought about the basic first aid kit in his car while he drove.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1869

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1869-Beatrice was sitting on the ground when Andrius arrived. She folded up the trousers of her cycling jersey, revealing her glowing alabaster skin.

She happily waved to Andrius. "Andrius, I'm here."

Every time Andrius saw her smiling face, he could feel her vigorously youthful vitality.

He hurriedly got out of the car and walked over with the small first aid kit.

At a glance, her knee appeared to be badly scratched, bleeding heavily and bruised all over.

The front wheel of the bicycle next to her had been deformed.

"I didn't notice that it's going downhill here, so it was too fast. A random rock popped up, and my bike turned sideways as it went over the rock, so I fell!" Beatrice smiled playfully.

She was easily approachable to the opposite sex.

Andrius quickly took out the kit, helped her do a simple cleaning and disinfection, and then wrapped the wound with gauze.

In the process, Beatrice was so physically close to Andrius that the faint floral scent on her body kept wafting into his nose.

Beatrice noticed Andrius' slightly embarrassed expression and felt more endearment toward this adorable, strait-laced man.

"Let's go, I'll send you home." Andrius said.

Beatrice nodded, tugging at his arm, trying to stand up by herself.

In the end, she frowned because her knee started to hurt.

"Can you carry me into the car? I may not be able to walk."

At this moment, Beatrice thought, 'No matter how stupid a man is, he should understand that I'm giving him a chance for close contact now.'

However, Andrius looked embarrassed and shook his head.” Uh... Miss Murray, I'd better support you getting into the car.”

With that, he stretched out his left hand.

Beatrice was stunned and could only sigh inside. ‘How could he be so dense?!’

After sending Beatrice to a small clinic for wound treatment, Andrius excused himself and left.

Beatrice came back to her senses after a long time. ‘What is going on with this man? With the recent frequent contact, we are obviously getting closer.

‘Why do I keep feeling that I can't get into his heart no matter what?’

Today was Mary's day off. She was home taking care of her mother. She received a message from Andrius yesterday, saying that he would come to deliver some medicine today.

In the end, he never showed up.

‘Perhaps, he had another date with that Beatrice.’

Mary quickly shook her head, consoling herself not to think too much.

‘The most important thing now is for Mom to recover faster and better.

‘Then, I'll make some achievements as a hospital director, so I won't forsake my best friend's life-saving grace to my mom.’

She started tidying up. Her mother liked flowers, so she bought many pots of them. Recently, the weeds were overgrown.

Not long after, Andrius' car drove directly into the yard.

Mary bent over, looked up, and was stunned.

Suddenly, there was a burst of joy in her heart.

“Mary, here's the medicine. I'm sorry for the delay. Where's Auntie?” Andrius asked.

He quickly took out packs of medicinal herbs from the trunk, stacked them into a pile, and walked into the villa with both arms full.

“I'm right here, Andrius. Thank you for your troubles!” Auntie

Wilson came out of the kitchen with a smile on her face,” Have you not eaten yet?”

“Yeah. If I had been earlier, I would usually eat at the office,” Andrius turned his head and glanced at Mary who was still busy in the yard.

‘Why is Mary silent?’

“Great, then today you shall eat here. I have cooked lots of signature dishes from the Northwest. They are very authentic. You must have never tasted them.” Auntie Wilson said with a smile.

Andrius simply nodded and agreed.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1870

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1870-Mary was weeding, but the weeds in her heart grew wildly.

When she came back to her senses, she realized that Andrius had agreed to a meal at home.

She was a little excited.

Her mother noticed all her tiny reactions completely.

Andrius ate the meal with gusto, probably because of the special Northwestern cuisine.

Auntie Wilson and Andrius were chatting throughout the meal, and Auntie Wilson asked plenty about Andrius’s family situation.

Mary felt so embarrassed.

However, she noticed that Andrius did not seem to mind.

After the meal, Andrius praised Auntie Wilson’s cooking again.

Mary called out to Andrius before he left, with a slight seriousness on her face. “Did you take all your medication on time?”

“Yes, I’m almost recovered. My stomach feels a lot better recently, unlike the burning feeling I used to have.” Andrius suddenly smiled and thanked Mary.

However, Mary still maintained her restraint and asked him to have another checkup in the next two days.

Andrius nodded, bid goodbye to Mary, and rushed to the company.

Mary's lips moved. She wanted to ask but was not sure how to say it.

She wanted to ask him, 'Did the depression intensify recently?'

'Andrius always seemed slightly exhausted, while non-stop devoting himself to work.

'Mr. Lawrence is another story. Why can't he give Andrius a vacation?'

She murmured in frenzy inside, but then she thought, 'It may not be Byron who has been overworking Andrius all the time.

'It is more likely that Andrius can suppress the onset of depression by keeping a tight job all the time.'

After Andrius got into the car, he suddenly thought of something and got out of the car again.

"Did you leave something behind?" Mary asked.

Andrius shook his head and took out a calendula plant.

A big pot of plants.

"This year, the herb dealer gave me a huge pot. I'm giving this to you, you don't look too well recently. I wonder if this might help if you make tea with it!" Andrius smiled sheepishly and handed it to Mary.

Mary stayed there for a long time. She had not recovered even when the car had gone far away.

"Mae, Mae..."

Auntie Wilson yelled several times in a row, with a knowing smile on her lips.

"Yes, Mom?" Mary came back to her senses. Her eyes were still a little dazed.

She handed the pot of calendula to her mother. "I wonder if this plant can help you recover, let's make tea and drink it."

"Girl, I can see your feelings. However, Andrius doesn't seem to realize it yet. You can't be so passive; you have to be more assertive."

Auntie Wilson persuaded her with a huge smile.

She almost dug out Andrius' entire family tree while at the dining table just now.

Andrius was certainly a good match in terms of family and personal qualities.

Mary's face turned red immediately, and she quickly denied it. "Mom, you don't understand. Andrius might already have a girlfriend!"

"Really? Andrius did not mention it. Besides, if he has a girlfriend, how could his girlfriend allow him to hang out in our house? He must still be unattached. There is a chance for you!"

Mary panicked, even her mother told her to take the initiative.

However, she really could not be so optimistic.

"Mom, I don't want to think about this now. Take care of your health first, then we'll see."

Mary noticed that her emotions recently were probably the most chaotic in her life.