My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1896-In the end, Everett and Yvette hurried to the office building.

They saw that their daughter had already stepped down from the fence. She was just squatting on the ground, holding her legs with her hands. Her face was bewildered, and her eyes were empty.

After a long time, she spoke.

“Dad, Mom, don’t worry, I did something wrong. I can’t atone for my sins in this life! I don’t know how to fix everything, but I will continue to live. I will use the remaining time on earth to slowly make up for it.”

Chloe was completely impressed with Rosalie.

It was Rosalie who woke her up.

Seeking death was only an escape. A sincere apology must be shown through action.

Half an hour later, the senior management of Petal Talk Group held a meeting and announced CEO Chloe’s resignation, who will no longer hold any position in the group.

This was Chloe’s choice; she was ashamed to stay in Petal Talk Group.

However, Rosalie, as the chairman, also issued a resolution after.

The 30% shares held by Chloe would be reduced to 20%, and the shares will be transferred to Everett Lincoln.

That night, accompanied by her parents, Chloe walked into the police station and began to confess all the crimes she had committed.

However, her lawyer was still trying to defend her. First, there was criminal intent but only attempted. Second, it had not caused serious harm to society.

Soon, the Lincolns expressed that they would donate 200 million dollars to patients who were victims of a fire. The donation would be used to treat the disfigurements from the burns.

Byron and Rosalie no longer cared much about the final verdict.

However, Everett still called much later. He apologized and stated that his daughter had been detained by the police.

“Byron, thank you, and thank you, Miss Jacobs. If she hadn’t done this, Chloe might have gone to the edge and jumped off. In that case, we would have lost our daughter forever. It was her fault, and she completely understood. We will make amends in every way we could. Thank you for leaving our family part of the shares. Otherwise, the Lincolns are finished. Really...”

Toward the end of Everett’s speech, he became choked up.

Byron responded briefly, telling them not to think too much.

Chloe’s matter was over, but the instigator, Kelly Payton, had disappeared once again.

There was no news even though the police have listed her as a suspect and launched a hunt for her. Moreover, her current nationality was still an H Lander, which made it relatively difficult to deal with.

Byron immediately asked Luther to mobilize more contacts, no matter what the channel was, and try his best to find out Kelly’s whereabouts.

Rosalie settled down the three kids and returned to the living room. She saw Byron frowning and knew that he was still worried.

There would still be a danger as long as Kelly was still at large.

This woman was deliberately calculative. She planned for such a long time, and her timing was so precise.

Rosalie was almost finished.

“Byron, there is something I want to discuss with you.” Rosalie’s voice brought Byron back to his senses.

So, Rosalie expressed that she wanted Andrius to be the new CEO and give him 10% of the shares.

With a market value of 50 billion, 5 billion was given to Andrius in the blink of an eye.

Rosalie did not hesitate at all, because she believed that with Andrius' ability, 5 billion was nothing at all.

"Okay, I have to think about this. After all, Andrius is one of my generals, in charge of many of my industries." Byron said jokingly.

"I know, but he doesn't need to do too much. He just needs to bring out a core team. Chloe's resignation would shake the thoughts of some original executives. Come on, just borrow him to me!" Rosalie pouted and flirted coquettishly.

Byron immediately embraced her and hurriedly nodded in agreement.
