

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2021

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2021-Rosalie felt it was strange that Mary told her about returning to the Northwest to visit her family's graves.

Mary's family was not from the Northwest. Even Aunt Wilson had only worked in the Northwest when she was young. It was impossible for the Wilson family to have anyone buried there.

It was impossible for Mary to visit the graves of her family from her father's side either! After all, her scumbag father had never taken her as his daughter.

As Rosalie pondered, she felt Mary was up to something and was keeping it a secret from her.

Moreover, it should have something to do with Mary's scumbag father.

When Byron returned home, he told Rosalie what he had found out.

Luther reported that Andrius went to the Northwest with Mary and brought many bodyguards.

The couple was instantly worried. Did Andrius bring so many bodyguards because he wanted to start a fight?

Rosalie dialed Mary's number immediately.

When the call went through, Rosalie immediately asked with concern, "Mary, are you alright? Did anything happen?"

Please don't keep it a secret from me. Tell me!"

Mary knew she could not hide it from Rosalie anymore, so she told her everything.

Rosalie was so angry that she clenched her teeth while listening.

"Rosie, calm down! You're pregnant! You have to stay calm and don't get emotional. We're fine now and on the way back. This time, we aren't planning to take the plane.

Andrius said since we're already here, we might as well travel in a car and have some fun along the way."

Mary did sound relaxed.

Rosalie was relieved that her best friend was fine. She still despised Mary's scumbag father and that weird family.

How dare they abduct Aunt Wilson?! That was against the law!

He even wanted to match-make Mary with some man to get benefits from it! Ridiculous!

After hanging up the call, Rosalie told Byron everything. However, Byron looked calm and even smiled.

"Andrius finally knows how to protect his girlfriend. Not only is he dating Mary now, but he's even won over his future mother-in-law. I'm sure we'll receive their wedding invitation soon."

Rosalie felt it was possible.

"Byron, I'm still angry about it. That bastard, Dorian, is despicable!" Thinking about it still angered her.

"I know how this man does business in the Northwest districts. He's ruthless. He forced Mary into an arranged marriage because Claymore Group might be facing trouble soon. Since that's the case, I might as well make the situation worse for them."

Byron spoke as he took his phone and called Luther.

"Investigate Claymore Group in the Northwest. Make sure President Claymore gets what he deserves."

"Noted!" Luther took the order. He was familiar with doing such jobs.

Soon, Luther found a problem in the company. Rather than a problem, he found many of them.

Claymore Group had failed in all the investments they made abroad.

They were in debt, and each one of the debts was like a mine that would explode anytime when triggered.

Moreover, Claymore had broken many laws and rules, such as purchasing real estate lands illegally and contaminating the environment by building industrial mine factories.

Byron had only one thing in mind. "Expose all of them to the public!"

A company with only its shell remaining would be unable to withstand this blow. One could imagine how much Claymore Group's shares would plummet. The share price would drop until they could not pay their debt. Even giving up the company to the banks would not resolve the issue.

The banks who had issued loans to the company would come to get their loans paid.

Then, Dorian would be left with nothing to turn the table.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2022

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2022-In the Claymores' residence, William pulled over at the gate in his Porsche. He tugged his clothes and entered the living room casually.

He had seen Mary's photos and could not forget her beauty and temperament.

Even though Dorian had arranged for him to marry Mary because he wanted some benefits to save Claymore Group from the verge of getting bankrupt, he was still willing to do it. He even convinced his father, Roy Calcraft.

After all, it was reasonable to invest some money to marry a beautiful lady.

However, he saw the dejected Dorian and gloomy Shaylene when he entered.

"Mr. Claymore, isn't Mary back yet?" William frowned, displeased with what he saw.

Dorian planned to explain the situation by letting William know his daughter disobeyed him.

However, Shaylene stood up angrily and clenched her teeth, saying, "Mr. Calcraft, Mary doesn't deserve you! We didn't expect her to be dating someone secretly. She even got pregnant. We were so mad when we found out. She even quarreled with her father just before you came. Sigh! We never expected this!"

William was taken aback by what he heard.

Then, he showed disgust.

All he wanted was a clean and untouched woman.

"So, does it mean this marriage isn't happening? Forget it! I'm leaving, Mr. Claymore!" William left the place in frustration and anger.

Dorian wanted to explain, but he couldn't say anything.

He had to admit that his wife accusing Mary might be bad, but it could make William give up marrying Mary.

In the end, he looked at Shaylene listlessly and asked, "Shay, can your family come up with some money, about 100 million? We can sell off all the mines we own abroad. Then, we can keep developing the business and turn the tables again!"

Shaylene snapped like a cat that had been stepped on its tail. "Dorian, we don't have any more money to spare you. All of us are now in the same boat as you. Didn't we experience the same loss as you? You should ask your daughter to get the Quirke family in Coast City to help us since she's dating their heir. Ask them how much they can give us!"

Dorian was at a loss for words.

He glanced at his wife helplessly as if he were looking at an idiot.

All this while, Shaylene and her two daughters had been bullying Camelia and Mary. Moreover, they even abducted

Camelia to the Northwest. How dare she expect Andrius to help them now?!

They would be lucky if Mary did not seek revenge on them.

Just as Dorian pondered, his phone rang. It was a call from his secretary.

“Mr. Claymore, something bad has happened! Our company’s share price is plummeting like crazy! Do you know why? The board would like you to attend a meeting immediately!”

Dorian froze.

What he was worried most had happened.

Shaylene was still nagging beside him. Suddenly, Dorian shouted, “Shut up!”

Shaylene was a little dumbstruck and snapped, “Why are you shouting at me? Is it going to solve anything?”

Dorian did not want to talk to her and waste more time. He got up and headed to his company.

However, countless cars drove into their lawn before he could head out.

He looked at them, and all of them were his acquaintances.

One of them was the bank manager of the bank Claymore Group had loaned 500 million from, and they had extended the deadline countless times.

The other was the head of a private equity institution. He looked angry as he rushed into the living room after getting out of the car.

Then, the company’s contractors got out of their cars too and glared at Dorian.

“President Claymore, you’ve left us with no choice. You’re wealthy. I’m sure you can settle the payment of those few million soon, right?”

“Mr. Claymore, our superiors have begun to take action. If the accounts don’t match, I might even need to resign.

Please do me a favor and pay the 500 million bucks...”

“Dorian, Claymore Group is going bankrupt! You must give us an explanation today!”

On this day, the threshold of the Claymores' residence was barged in by countless people. Shaylene was terrified. She hid on the second floor and locked the door.

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2023

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2023-Andrius and Mary knew nothing about Byron punishing Dorian.

It was now late afternoon. Andrius was driving from the Northwest back to Coast City.

To be precise, they had just left the outskirts. The scenery was beautiful, and Andrius drove slowly so that they could enjoy the view.

"Andrius, where did you get the car? Isn't it the hotel manager's car?" Camelia was happy to see her daughter and Andrius in a lovely relationship.

Andrius shook his head and explained, 'The group specially equipped it for the hotel to welcome VIP guests. So, I took it on short notice. I will ask the people from logistics to return the car when we return to Coast City!'

"Oh, it's great. This car can definitely make Shaylene envious. It must be expensive!" Camelia had never taken a ride in a Rolls-Royce.

Even when Dorian owned one once, she never sat in it. It was because she knew it was Shaylene's.

"Mom, this car is expensive. Some even cost a few million. It's not a problem for Andrius to buy one. However, that's unnecessary!" Mary said as she pondered how ignorant her mother was about the Quirkes' wealth.

Andrius smiled and explained, "Aunt Wilson, I have cars like this at home, and some are even more expensive than this! I used them when I was younger, so I don't drive them much anymore. If you like these cars, I'll have the driver in charge of driving you out drive them in the future!"

Those words pleased Camelia.

Mary looked at Andrius. He was indeed good at making her mother happy.

Andrius pulled over at the service area. He went to get some food and looked for hot drinks for the mother and daughter. His action touched them.

When he got into the car, Camelia talked about their marriage and the requirements of the Quirke family.

“Mom, aren’t you worrying too much for now? I’ve only been dating Andrius for a few days. We haven’t dated for long enough yet!” Mary rolled her eyes and retorted.

Camelia glared at her daughter with a warning look. “Look at how old you are! You can enjoy dating him after getting married. Moreover, Andrius is from a noble family. We have to consider if you’re a suitable wife for him.”

“Gosh, what kind of mother would say that about her daughter?” Mary pouted her lips and looked at Andrius as she questioned him coquettishly, “Andrius, why don’t you tell me if I’m suitable to be your wife?”

Andrius chuckled and nodded hard. “Of course, you are!

Aunt Wilson, you don’t have to worry about that. We don’t have many rules and requirements in our family. Everyone only hopes I get married soon.”

“Okay. Why don’t you arrange for me to meet your parents when we return?” Camelia was anxious.

She sounded like she was afraid her daughter could not get married.

“Alright! I’ll tell my parents and arrange a date for them to meet you, Aunt Wilson. My parents are easy to get along with!” Andrius answered seriously.

Mary did not retort upon hearing that.

Her heart was hammering.

Well... It was also not bad that her mother was urging them to get married soon.

She glanced cautiously and secretly at Andrius’ handsome profile, feeling blessed.

Andrius seemed to sense her gaze and looked at her dotingly.

“Oh, Aunt Wilson, why don’t we spend the night in that town? I heard the scenery there is beautiful. How about we book two hotel rooms?” Andrius asked.

Camelia nodded. “Perfect! Two rooms are just fine. You and Mary can have one, and I can sleep in one on my own.”

Andrius immediately froze. He had intended to let Mary and Camelia share one room.

Unexpectedly, Camelia had something else in mind.

Mary’s face flushed red, and she protested, “Mom, what are you talking about? I’m sleeping with you tonight!”

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2024

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2024-Since Mary and Andrius were already on their early’ honeymoon,’ Rosalie started planning her honeymoon with Byron.

It was almost winter break, and the kids were free.

Taking the opportunity that she was in her early months of pregnancy and could move freely, Rosalie began to pick the destination.

Byron readily agreed. Since he had been dedicated to Lawrence Corporation for years, it was time to reward himself with a break from work.

Of course, he had deliberately said that in front of Benedict.

After all, Benedict had dumped the responsibility of the company to him when Benedict was in his 40s. Since then, he had been living a leisurely life, expecting his son to do the duties.

Melody joined the conversation, suggesting a few suitable places for families with kids to travel.

Suddenly, Benedict gave everyone a blow of disappointment. “Rosie, I think this is an inappropriate time to travel. After all, Gordon’s condition is uncertain!”

Rosalie was startled and finally remembered about Gordon. She smiled bitterly.

Gordon had not paid attention to her for more than ten years as if she were dead. Of course, she was not accustomed to considering him now.

‘Til give him a dry-needling session today and accompany him to the hospital for a check-up. Let’s see how the tumor has developed,” Rosalie responded calmly.

Benedict and Melody both nodded.

Byron comforted his wife, “No matter what, let’s be with him at the last moment of his life. We’ll do the best we can.

There are plenty of opportunities to travel in the future!”

“Okay... Let’s go on a family trip when this is over. It’s easier for both of us to take care of the baby when Mom and Dad are with us!” Rosalie looked at Melody and smiled.

Melody did not expect that and was flattered. She nodded and agreed. “Okay! Benedict and I will be responsible for helping you look after the children.”

That afternoon, Rosalie and Byron returned to Rosalie’s family mansion.

They asked the maid about Gordon and knew he was doing fine. He ate and slept regularly. When his gastric situation struck him, he would take his medication, and the symptoms would be under control.

Rosalie saw a big wedding photo on the wall when she entered the room.

It was Gordon and her mother’s wedding photo.

Apparently, it had been reprinted. The colors on it were bright.

Rosalie’s mother’s smile was so sweet and happy in the wedding photo. At that time, she probably thought she was the happiest woman in the world.

However, no one could have predicted that Gordon, who promised to love and cherish her all his life, would betray her after a few years.

She cried until her tears dried out and her body fell ill.

Looking at this photo for a long time, Rosalie felt anger burning within her.

Gordon was staring at the wedding photo blankly.

Then, a painful expression appeared on his face as tears rolled in his eyes.

“Rosie, I know my mistake now. I shouldn’t have been greedy. Greed has brought me nothing. I betrayed your mother and disappointed her. I want to die soon and meet her in the afterworld to apologize to her.”

Gordon had completely broken down, and he cried.

Rosalie felt ironic listening to his remorseful words. She walked out of the room and calmed herself. Otherwise, she would not be able to treat Gordon.

The maid cautiously approached Rosalie and reported softly, “Mrs. Lawrence, your father has been crying every day these days. He keeps saying, ‘Sorry for the wedding photo!’”

Rosalie sneered upon hearing it. “Is that so? All you all have to do is mind your own business!”

What was the point of realizing his mistake, repenting, and apologizing before he died?

Her mother would not be alive again!

Whether Gordon was sincere, he would not have a chance to repent. He lost the chance! What he had done to the family had left a scar on Rosalie. The scar would always be there!

Read My Ex-Wife And Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2025

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2025-After gathering her emotions, Rosalie started the dryneedling treatment for Gordon seriously.

Gordon’s mood had also stabilized. He did not dare to look at his daughter.

His complexion was better than before, no longer as yellow. Even so, he still looked yellowish.

“Go to the hospital for a check-up today,” Rosalie said softly.

Before Gordon could agree, Rosalie walked out of the room and ordered the maid to help him get ready.

Byron approached his wife and held her tiny hand as he nodded and smiled. ‘You’ve done whatever you can. You’re probably the luckiest thing that has ever happened to him. He’s lucky to have a daughter like you.’

Rosalie smiled wryly. “Yes, but I’m unfortunate to have him as my father.”

After Gordon was ready, Byron and Rosalie drove him to the hospital.

The series of tests took a long time to be done. However, Rosalie did not have to worry much about it.

Since Mary was taking a long break from work, Rosalie called Linda in to take over her position temporarily to deal with the job.

With Linda’s arrangement, all the tests were done in order.

Two hours later, the results were out. Linda even held a meeting with the doctors to summarize everything.

The report was given to Rosalie. “Dr. Jacobs, after the analysis of doctors in various departments, it’s been concluded that Mr. Gordon Jacobs’ stomach tumor has completely stabilized. We even see signs of shrinking. The tumor cells that have spread to other body parts have also stabilized. We think that he can live for about three months.”

After Linda finished, she looked at Rosalie and added. “Dr. Jacobs, I’m sorry.”

“It’s been extended to three months. Rosie, your treatment is working.” Byron placed his hand over Rosalie’s shoulder and patted it gently.

“Not bad. He’s lucky to have so many days to live!” Rosalie did not look sad or happy. She was rather calm.

Linda thought that Rosalie and Byron would be sad. However, from their expressions, she knew she did not need to say much.

The hospital did not prescribe any medicine after all the tests. The doctor knew Rosalie had rescued Gordon from death and given him three months of extra time to live.

After coming out from the office, Byron told Gordon the result.

Hearing that he could live a few more months, he looked stunned. No one knew what he had in mind.

After a long time, Gordon said, "Byron, Rosie, can you take me to the cemetery? I want to visit her."

Rosalie, who was sitting in the passenger seat, tilted her head and glanced at Gordon.

"Okay. I'll take you there!" Byron agreed.

Gordon's action might make Rosalie's treatment mean more to her.

After arriving at the cemetery, the sky was suddenly gloomy and it started drizzling.

Rosalie and Byron stood at the cemetery entrance, watching Gordon stumble step by step before finally arriving in front of Rosalie's mother's tombstone.

When he was before it, he looked at his wife's photo and was startled. He stared at it.

Finally, he took the hem of his clothes and began to wipe the tombstone. Tears flowed down his cheeks as he muttered, "I was wrong. I was wrong. Please take me with you..."

"I want to be with you now! I hope you don't despise me..."

Byron held his wife's hand and returned to the car.

After waiting over an hour, Gordon slowly left the cemetery again. His clothes were already wet.

His eyes looked hollow as if he had lost his soul. After getting into the car, he said nothing.