My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2064-This afternoon, Andrea Quirke, Andrius' younger sister, hurried back from the north.

Andrius and Mary went to the airport to pick her up.

It had been a long time since Andrius saw her. He was somewhat taken aback when he finally saw her.

Even Mary, who was merely an acquaintance of Andrea, found that Andrea had lost a lot of weight.

However, she did not look haggard. Instead, she looked accomplished and strong.

Andrea smiled when she saw Mary. She rushed over and hugged her.

"Hello, Sister-in-law. Forgive me for coming back so late. I was delayed because my project just happened to be in a critical period!"

Mary was stunned as she felt Andrea's tight hug. She was not sure if she should return the hug or not.

As Mary's arms hovered in mid-air for a few seconds, they finally landed on Andrea's back. She patted her back lightly.

"It's okay. Everyone's very happy that you've come back!" Mary said with a smile.

Such a warm hug puzzled Andrius a little.

Immediately afterward, her sister rolled her eyes at him.

"Brother, you made the right choice. You chose Sister-in-law, and you weren't deceived by Beatrice Murray," Andrea teased with a smile.

Andrius was stunned. 'This happened eons ago.'

He was a little surprised, but his sister's personality seemed to be very cheerful now. She no longer had the pettiness before.

'What happened to my sister while she was doing business in the north? Is her relationship with Alistair destined to fail?'

Many doubts lingered in Andrius' mind, but he was not in a hurry to ask.

Andrea looked at Mary, and she could not help but praise, "Sister-in-law, you're so beautiful and kind. You're a doctor who saves lives and heals the wounded on top of that. My brother is lucky to marry you!"

Mary was praised so highly that she lost her bearings. She quickly shook her head and said, "No, that's quite a stretch! Was I..."

Andrea nodded affirmatively and immediately mentioned that she was not in a hurry to go back. She had a lot of luggage, and she had to pick them up.

"They're all my wedding gifts for you both. There are so many. I searched for all the good things in the north. I even got you some supplements. I heard that they help with fertility!"

Andrea's personality change made her seem like a different person.

She was not this lively in the past. Seeing her like this now made her elder brother and sister-in-law blush.

It was true that she brought back a lot of things. The car's trunk would not be able to fit them all, so they could only put some in the backseat of the car.

When the three returned to Quirke Mansion, Byron and Rosalie arrived as well.

Rosalie was also taken aback by Andrea's change.

Andrea, on the other hand, seemed to have forgotten everything in the past. She was at ease as she chatted with Rosalie. She even addressed her as 'Sister-in-law' respectfully.

"Sister-in-law, I'm based in H Province now, and my business has picked up. I'm also in the business of medicinal materials, but many are farmed medicinal materials. By the way, if it's possible, will your pharmaceutical company set agents by province in the future? I'd like to fight for H Province's quota if possible. Is that okay?"

Rosalie was really surprised. Andrea was full of business knowledge now.

Rosalie had considered Andrea's proposal, so she nodded and said, "This matter has to be decided by the board of directors. However, I'll definitely support you if there's such a plan."

Andrea smiled happily, rummaged through her pile of presents, and finally took out a very long box. She handed it to Rosalie.

"Sister-in-law, this is a century-old ginseng that I found with great difficulty! My mother told me that you're pregnant, so you can use it to nourish your body after giving birth."

Rosalie froze for a moment, then looked at her husband.

Byron nodded with a smile. "Take it. It's Andrea's sincerity, after all."
