My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 2073-On the second day of the wedding, Mary woke up and habitually thought that it was her home. She was about to go out in her pajamas.

Fortunately, Andrius carried her back to bed just as she pushed the door open.

Mary woke up from her confusion and realized her new identity, the daughter-in-law of the Quirke family.

The husband held her, but suddenly refused to let go. His hands began to wander naughtily.

Mary was astonished. They were keeping each other up until late last night. It was only a few hours apart.

“Is there any custom ceremony that has not been completed? Does your family need us to greet the elders on the first day after marriage?” She suddenly became flustered, and she was short of breath.

She wanted to quickly change the subject, so her man would not continue his passionate torment.

It would be really embarrassing if they made any noise this early in the morning.

Andrius shook his head, and moved his lips closer, wanting to attack.

Mary resolutely covered his lips with her hand. “No, I haven’t washed up yet. Darling, don’t, don’t be like this...”

Unexpectedly, Andrius had a teasing grin on his face. “Who was it that attacked me while I was drunk?”

Mary was speechless immediately and glared at him in annoyance. “Darling, could we revisit this tonight? I must have something to do today, I’m going to wash up!”

With that, she ran into the bathroom in a hurry.

Rosalie could not wait any longer. She checked the time. It was 8:30 in the morning, which is the usual time when her best friend would wake up. So, she called Mary immediately.

First, she asked about how Mary felt about the wedding.

Mary mentioned that everything was fine, and she was not unaccustomed to living in Quirke Mansion yet.

Then, Rosalie asked Mary about the details when she bought back the Jacobs old family home.

“Mae, who did you buy the house from? Why did they go abroad after buying the house initially?”

“Rosalie, do you remember Aunt Lou? She is your mother’s best friend. She bought the house from Gordon. She didn’t live in it and just kept it there. She was just waiting for you to buy it back. When I wanted to buy it later, she was only willing to sell it to me after I told her what I planned to do.”

Rosalie’s entire face froze.

‘Yes, why did I forget Aunt Louisa? She was our neighbor, and she was close to Mama. After Mama fell ill, Aunt Lou visited us many times and even gave me some pocket money.’

However, in the next two years, Aunt Lou seemed to have moved out of Coast City because of her husband’s job change.

If it was her, then everything would make sense.

Although Aunt Lou bought the house, she had no need to settle down at all. Her family went abroad afterward.

“Mae, can I still contact her now? I have something very important to ask her.” Rosalie became anxious, maybe her mother would leave a clue to the heirloom to Aunt Lou?

Perhaps, the day I come seeking for the truth, that would be the right time for Aunt Lou to tell me.

From her best friend’s tone, Mary knew that the matter was of great importance. She did not ask any further, nodded immediately, and said that she would immediately look up the phone number left by Aunt Lou when the real estate transaction was made.

It did not take long to find out from the agency. Mary quickly told Rosalie about Aunt Lou's overseas contact number.

Rosalie could not wait and called immediately.

The phone rang for a long time, and the other party finally answered.

"Hello, Aunt Lou. I'm Rosalie, do you remember me?" Rosalie could not hide the eagerness in her tone.

There was a slight hesitation on the other end of the phone.

Immediately, a soft voice replied. "Rosalie, have you finally returned to Coast City? Are you doing well now?"
