

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 645

Shaken by the man's aura, there was a brief silence in the crowd.

"That's President Lawrence!"

Seeing the man walk past the crowd, someone regained their senses and whispered.

Hearing this, the crowd quickly exploded. They could not hold back as they stared at Byron's back as he walked past them.

Although the crowd was made up of people from famous families in Coast City, their status was nothing compared with Byron. These people had no chance to meet Byron in person.

Since it was a rare opportunity to catch a glimpse of this person, the crowd might as well stare to their heart's content.

What was more, with a face like Byron's, it was like catching a glimpse of luxury.

Rosalie stood in the middle of the crowd, watching the man walk toward her. The expression on her face froze, and she felt as though she was having an out-of-body experience. She did not know how to react at that point and even thought bitterly about how unlucky she was. She only wanted to go out for a work event but got herself entangled in someone else's drunken mess. On top of all that, she was caught by Byron in the midst of all this embarrassment.

Moreover, all this happened after what Byron had said to her.

Although there was still a distance between them, Rosalie could clearly feel the man's gaze on her, and there was slight anger in his eyes.

Realizing this, Rosalie frowned slightly and subconsciously tried to turn around and run away.

Even being entangled and verbally assaulted by Stacy just now, she never thought of running away.

However, being stared at by Byron with such eyes now made Rosalie want to escape.

Nevertheless, the man's gaze was steely and heavy, pinning her to the spot and making her unable to move.

Rosalie clenched her palms silently so that she would not lose her cool.

"Xander, I really like you. Apart from her medical skills, how else can this Jacobs b*tch compare to me?"

Stacy was still talking nonsense aside.

Xander's attention was no longer on her, and he just looked at Rosalie with a complicated expression.

The last time he sent Rosalie back and when he saw Rosalie's interaction with Byron, he felt that the atmosphere between the two was a bit strange.

In view of Rosalie's cooperation with the Lancer family in the future, Xander also took a lot of effort to investigate her background.

As a result, Xander unexpectedly found out about the past relationship between her and Byron six years ago.

When he first found out about this, Xander just sighed and thought Byron was foolish to let go of her.

However, now seeing the two appearing in the same scene, Xander felt that his mentality had changed.

Byron had abandoned that woman, so why was he pestering her now?

Leon, on the side, frowned and felt flustered for Rosalie.

Time seemed to be getting extraordinarily long.

After an unknown amount of time, the man's footsteps stopped beside Rosalie, his shoulders almost touching hers.

"Ms. Jacobs, you refused me so firmly. I didn't expect that you would be so passionate about other men. You're even getting scolded by someone else's admirer at such a late hour. So, you would be accepting of another man, Miss Jacobs."

Byron's lips were so close as he leaned in to whisper those words, his warm breath tickling her ears and causing Rosalie to be stunned for a moment.

When she reacted, the man had already turned her around as they both faced the crowd of people. He stood by her side, shoulder to shoulder.

Thinking of what he said just now, Rosalie's heart tensed, she did not know what the man would do in the next second.

Seeing the two side by side, everyone's attention was focused on them. No one listened to what Stacy was babbling on the side.
