

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 738

Listening to the little boys' words, the furrow on Byron's eyebrows tightened. However, he hesitated when he wanted to say something about it.

Under the eager looks of the little ones, Byron strolled to the table and sat down. He took one of the cups of milk the little ones had placed on the table.

Estelle smiled and approached them, she took a mouthful of the milk. With the milk stain on her lips, she exclaimed, "You are so amazing! "

Estelle had not prepared breakfast for herself all this while.

As Rosalie looked at the astonished little girl, she handed the girl a tissue.

Lucian and Nox were proud when Estella praised them.

"If you don't have time to cook breakfast, you can let me know. I can take the kids out for breakfast," Byron said in his deep voice.

Rosalie recalled that she had planned to call Byron when he mentioned that. She turned around and looked at Byron. "The matter has been settled. So, I think we don't have to trouble you anymore."

They both knew what she meant.

The three little ones who did not know what happened heard they could not go to school together and were disappointed.

Byron frowned again and looked at Rosalie, confused.

He left in such a hurry this morning and did not have time to read the public comments on the Internet. So, he felt it hard to believe Rosalie had settled the problem.

It made him wonder if it was because the Lawrence Corporation had threatened the Hudson family.

Rosalie smiled and said, "Professor Luke helped me with the matter, and we have solved the matter smoothly."

Byron finally believed Rosalie had resolved the issue when he heard Rosalie mentioning Quentin.

Quentin's words were more convincing in the medical field than in the Lawrence family.

Due to the presence of the little ones, Byron and Rosalie could not talk much about that matter.

Byron only nodded and said, "okay."

After breakfast, Rosalie guessed everything should be fine at the research institute. So, she headed out with the kids.

The three little ones sat in Rosalie's car, following behind Byron's car. They were heading to kindergarten.

At the kindergarten's gate, Rosalie handed the little ones to Miss Leigh Ann. After watching the kids go in, Rosalie did not leave immediately.

"I'd like to thank you for helping US out during this time, Mr. Lawrence," Rosalie turned around and looked at the man standing behind her.

Hearing her words of gratitude, Byron lifted his eyebrows curiously.

Byron did help a lot, but he had kept it a secret from Rosalie. He did not know how she knew about it.

"I called Young Master Quirke," Rosalie explained, "moreover, I don't think Stacy would have publicly apologized to me if the Lawrence Corporation hadn't pressured her."

Last night, Rosalie was surprised when she suddenly saw Stacy publicly apologizing on the Internet. Quentin's interview that morning showed its effect also because Stacy apologized.

Although Rosalie had suspected that Stacy caused the public to accuse her, she had no evidence to prove it.

It was even unlikely for Stacy to apologize.

So, it had to be someone arranging all these behind the scenes.

Xander told her he would investigate it, yet he did not bring her any updates. So, it could not be the Lancer family helping her.

Rosalie pondered and felt the only person who would interfere would be Byron.

Thinking of Byron always helping her secretly, she felt a strange feeling rising in her heart.

Since Rosalie had already guessed it, Byron felt he did not need to keep it a secret anymore. "Pay more attention when you encounter something like this the next time."

Rosalie agreed embarrassedly.
