

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 902

After dinner, Rosalie did not want to stay any longer, so she got two little boys to say goodbye.

'Auntie, can't you play with Estie for a while?'

Estie reluctantly grabbed the hem of her clothes.

Rosalie leaned over and touched the little guy's head, softly reassured her. "It's getting late, Auntie has to go back."

After she said that, the little guy still seemed reluctant, so Rosalie added softly. "Auntie will play with Estie another day."

She just wanted to comfort the little guy, but unexpectedly, Estie took it seriously.

"When will that be?" Estie looked at her eagerly, her face was honest.

Hearing this, Rosalie could not help but be taken aback.

'When will that be...'

Rosalie subconsciously raised her eyes and looked at the man opposite her, and gestured with her eyes, that it was just a figure of speech.

In the past, Byron would speak out for her, but this time, the man did not seem to see her struggle for help.

For a while, Rosalie looked at the little girl with expectant eyes, and was speechless.

Oblivious, Estie continued to ask, "The little brothers said that Auntie often take them out for fun, can Auntie take me with you too?"

Rosalie's eyes trembled, and her heart was conflicted.

Lucian and Nox, who were on the side, had already agreed. "Let's go camping next week! It's fun!"

When she was abroad before, Rosalie often took the little boys to camp with her former colleagues at the institute. They had so much fun back then.

Estie heard the words of the little brothers, she looked forward to it more and more that her eyes shone brightly.

Seeing the little girl's happy and twinkling eyes, Rosalie cannot bring herself to refuse the child.

"Estie, Auntie is very busy with work and probably won't have time."

Byron's sarcastic voice was suddenly heard.

When the words fell, Rosalie's eyes shuddered, and she raised her eyes to look at the man in front of her inexplicably.

She felt that she did not need to explain Byron's misunderstanding towards her just now.

Unexpectedly, this man would actually hold it against her until now, and even mocked her.

Hearing her father's words, the light in Estie's eyes dimmed, and she lowered her eyes in disappointment.

Rosalie looked at the man and the child in front of her, she was filled with helplessness, she suppressed that annoyance in her heart and chose to appease Estie first.

"Auntie promise you that I will take you camping with little brothers next week."

The child raised her head again, with some doubts in her eyes.

Lucian and Nox hurriedly assured her. "Mommy won't lie to children!"

Estie always believed in the two little brothers unconditionally.

Seeing them say so, the little girl smiled through her eyes again, nodded obediently, and stretched out her pinky finger toward Rosalie.

Rosalie couldn't help but froze for a moment, not knowing what the little guy was going to do. "Pinky promise." Estie urged in her impish voice.

Hearing this, Rosalie came back to her senses, and felt a little humor and much more softness in her heart.

After a while, Rosalie stretched out her pinky finger and hooked it with Estie's, signifying a promise.

The little girl was completely relieved.

"It's getting late. Auntie and brothers must go back now. Estie darling, you should rest early."

Before leaving, Rosalie smiled and said goodbye to the little guy.

Estie also waved to her obediently and watched them leave.

Byron stood behind the little girl without saying a word and watched the woman and the two little boys leave, his eyes dark and unclear.

