Billionaire Wants To Get Married Chapter 10

He did not expect his sister to help him share his burden, but at least he didn't want her to take the wrong path. Going out so late at night was not the way a fairy should look like.

Vanessa squinted at Queenie indifferently, 'You should indeed apologize to me, but I won't necessarily forgive you.'

No one in the Simmons family understood the meaning of her words, and Vanessa did not explain.

Queenie looked very understanding, 'Never mind, I believe Vanessa didn't mean it, we should not blame her. But I'm afraid it's hard to make the Anderson family happy if you keep doing this. Dad, do you think we should hire a tutor to teach Vanessa?'

This reminded Sebastian. He asked then, 'By the way, I never asked what your degree was. I assume you went to college, right?'

Vanessa, who had gotten her super degree a few years ago and had students all over the world, was insulted by this stupid question.

Queenie saw that Vanessa didn't say anything and exaggeratedly covered her mouth and exclaimed, 'No way? You didn't get accepted to college? What should we do? If you don't even have a certificate, I'm afraid the Anderson family won't accept someone with only a high school degree as their future daughter-in-law.'

Vanessa had been treated as a super prodigy since childhood and had always been promoted ahead of schedule. She simply did not have to study hard for academic exams like normal people.

'Is this certificate important?'

"Of course!" Queenie smiled a little provocatively, 'You'll be a cut below others if you don't get a degree. If you didn't even go to college, what's the difference between you and an illiterate?'

'So that's it...'

Vanessa nodded, "Then why don't I just go to college? Which one is the best?"

How simple was it? Did they need to make such a fuss?

Queenie snickered, 'The best university is of course University A. You don't want to get into University A, do you? I suggest you can just save it, sister. University

Forced To Learn A is full of geniuses, not just anyone can get in."

Vanessa ignored her and silently noted down the name.

Felton in the end can't bear to see his sister take a beating, so he took the initiative to try to help her, 'It's alright, I'll help you find out which college is best for you. Don't worry about it.'

'No, I can do it myself.'

Felton was speechless. She can do what? Get into college on her own merits?

He sighed soundlessly. He thought she was just trying to be brave and had already begun to plan for her.

Queenie hyped it up again, Felton, Vanessa said she can do it, don't worry too much about her. If she can really get into University A, maybe she can even become a classmate with me."

Hearing that, Vanessa gave Queenie a look, 'You are from University A?'

Queenie got an early bailout from University A last month, and the whole Simmons family was proud of her, 'Of course, I've always done well in school.'

The smile on Queenie's face froze. If she hadn't been trying to maintain her lady demeanor, she would have slapped Vanessa.

'You're just bluffing. In that case, I'll be waiting for you at University A!' If this country bumpkin failed the exam, then don't ham har for hituna hata
