Chapter 831 Try Leaving Then

A subtle smile curled on the corner of Anthony's lips as Denise's words reached his ears.

Beside them, Benjamin chimed in, "I had my doubts about him from the beginning too, and now this indeed gave him away!"

"All of you figured that out?" Thalia asked.

Benjamin replied truthfully, "I didn't think too much into it. I just felt something was off."

After their analysis, Thalia pondered seriously for a moment. "This person is indeed suspicious, but how can you be sure he's working with Magus to scam money?"

"I'm not certain. But we're currently looking for evidence, aren't we?" Anthony asked rhetorically.

Thalia narrowed her eyes upon hearing what he said and questioned, "Are you suggesting it's related to his ex-girlfriend?"

"If that's the case, then everything seems to make sense. Magus didn't expose those gangs in the past because he feared the leader's influence and what the leader might do to his girlfriend. And now, he's teamed up with this person to scam money, also for the sake of his girlfriend," Anthony explained.

Miguel asked, "But if they truly teamed up to scam money, why would this person agree to our conditions and help us investigate Magus?"

"Naturally, he couldn't resist the temptation of money. Besides, my conjecture doesn't imply there isn't a trace of betrayal between them," Anthony said as he stared intently at them.

Miguel drove the car, his face filled with indescribable complexity under the sunlight.

He was astonished by the nature of the situation and equally taken aback by Anthony's speculation.

How did he come up with all these? With the same brain, how could we think such different thoughts?

Meanwhile, Thalia gazed outside, her mesmerizing eyes wandering. She knew Anthony had always been an intelligent person, but she had a different perspective on this matter. Suddenly, she said, "I don't think Magus is that kind of person."

"Isn't that kind of person?" asked Anthony.

Thalia answered firmly, "He wouldn't collude with that person to scam money. The Magus I know is not like that!"

The man's body stiffened as he eyed Thalia's dagger.

"W-What are you trying to do?" he asked, staring intently at her knife. He looked as if here was afraid that it would cut them.

However, Thalia casually played with the knife in her hand. The blade slid along the cheek and suddenly pressed against the man's face. Her beautiful eyes appeared to even darker as she said, "What do you think I want to do? Get the money and leave?"

"I... I've done things too, so why can't I have any room for choice?" the man asked, staring at her blankly.

"Once the task is done, you'll naturally have choices, but if it's not finished, you have no options!" Thalia said, emphasizing each word.

"You—"

"What about me?" Thalia looked at him and asked in return. Her voice wasn't loud, but it was full of pressure.

She wasn't actually angry. Normally, Thalia appeared to be a girl without care. However, once she got upset, an intense aura would envelop her.

The man looked on with a hint of fear in his eyes. Still, he mustered the courage to speak. "I'm telling you, it doesn't matter who you are. If you really get hurt, you won't be able to leave this place unscathed!"

Upon hearing this, Thalia laughed and said, "Oh, really?"

"So, if you know what's good for you, let me go, and we can pretend nothing ever happened!" he said.

Thalia laughed softly, her voice filled with mockery. "I, Thalia Jacoway, have wandered the society for so many years, and there's no wolf's den that I haven't been to. I'm also curious to see if I can walk out of this place unscathed!"

The man looked at her, somewhat at a loss for words.

Why does this woman not get intimidated by these tactics?

Anthony watched from the side, a faint smile tugging at the corner of his mouth. However, he soon hid his smile. He walked over and said, "Alright, Thalia, stop scaring him."

As he spoke, he looked at the man and said softly, "Actually, we don't have any other intentions. We were just a bit suspicious. Please don't mind!"

The man looked at Thalia's unsheathed knife and didn't dare to make any sudden moves. "Is this called being overly suspicious?"

"Thalia!" Anthony looked at her.

Thalia hesitated for a moment before reluctantly putting away the dagger.

Upon seeing him, the man immediately straightened his body.

After hesitating for a moment, he didn't even greet Thalia and turned around to walk out.

Fortunately, Thalia was quick-witted and fast. When she saw that he was about to leave, she immediately stepped in front of him, blocking his way. "Where are you going?" Thalia asked with a playful smile.

The man looked at Thalia, stammering, "I-I need to go to the restroom!"

"Isn't there one in the ward?" Thalia gestured to him and asked.

"I... I'm not used to it. It'll be better for me to use it outside!" The man wanted to leave.

However, Thalia stood right in front of him, showing no intention of stepping aside.

The person looked on, almost dying of anxiety.

"Could I just not earn the money? I'll give them all to you later!" the man said.

Thalia remained calm and composed. "That won't do. I've told you, you have to finish this task!"

"I-I..."

Just then, a figure suddenly appeared at the door of the ward.

Magus stood at the entrance. Upon seeing them inside, his eyebrows immediately furrowed. "Why are you guys doing here?"

Upon hearing the sound, Anthony walked toward the door and looked at Magus. A well-intentioned smile appeared at the corner of his mouth as he replied, "Didn't I tell you before? I won't give up!"

Magus's eyes narrowed slightly as he turned his gaze directly at the man, his anger shifting toward him.

The person's expression changed inexplicably, unsure of what to say.

"Come outside with me. I have something to talk to you," Magus said as he looked straight at the person. After that, he turned around and walked off to one side.

Anthony walked up to them, his palm-sized face plastered with a gentlemanly smile. "What do you think? Would you consider it?" He was addressing Magus with these words. Anthony's gaze fixed on him as if he had all the patience in the world.

Magus's gaze swept over him, but he didn't say a word.

The man half-lying on the ground let out a soft chuckle. Regardless of whether his business with Magus could continue, he knew that Magus would not be leaving with them.

It had always been like this for the past few years.

With that thought, he smiled. "You might as well forget it. He won't go with you!"

"If he doesn't go with me, then your source of wealth won't be cut off, right?" Anthony queried.

The man didn't expect Anthony to be so straightforward.

He pursed his lips and directed his gaze at Anthony. "Regardless of whether our collaboration can continue, he won't go with you. Do you truly think money can buy everything?"

Anthony remained calm and composed, exuding the demeanor of a quintessential gentleman. "Money might not be able to solve everything, but it sure can solve most of it!" As he spoke, his gaze returned to Magus. Despite being so young, his words were impactful. "Not only can I provide financial support, but I can also find the best doctors for her treatment, personnel you would never have imagined!"

Magus was about to refuse, yet his eyes still lit up briefly upon hearing these words.

This was undoubtedly a very tempting proposition.

The man's gaze turned to Magus. He knew very well that this woman was his Achilles heel. The reason they had remained business partners until now was that he needed to treat her illness and was in urgent need of money. Otherwise, he might not have been able to reach him at all.

At that moment, Magus stared at the woman, his brows furrowing abruptly. "Lina, what are you doing? Please, get up quickly!" he urged, leaning down to assist her.

However, the woman completely disregarded him, pushing him aside, her gaze fixed on Thalia as she continued to plead desperately, "I beg you, please don't harm him. If there's anything you want, come after me instead. I'm begging you..."

Thalia wasn't one to shy away from confrontation, but she detested such manipulative tactics.

If the person in question were irredeemable, that would be a different story. However, for an ordinary woman like her, already living on borrowed time, to plead for a man... How could anyone bear such a burden in their heart?

Thalia bent down and reached out to help the woman. "Get up!"

Yet, the woman showed no intention of rising, her eyes filled with sincere pleading. "I'm begging you, please. He did all of this for me. If there's anything you desire, direct it towards me. Moreover, my time is running out..."

Thalia felt a sense of helplessness as she gazed earnestly at the woman. "I have no intention of hurting him. Get up first, then we can talk!"

Upon hearing that, the woman's pale face momentarily froze. "You... Are you serious?"

"I'm serious!" Thalia nodded.

At that moment, the woman couldn't believe her ears. She turned her gaze toward Magus and asked, "Mag, is she telling the truth?"

Magus's gaze penetrated deep as he looked at her and nodded. "It's true!"

Only then did the woman release a sigh of relief. She glanced at Thalia, ensuring there was no hostility on her face, and smiled. "That's a relief!" With that, she attempted to get up.

Magus moved to support her, but suddenly, the woman's body stiffened, and within the next second, she seemed to struggle for breath.

Witnessing her condition, Magus extended a hand from behind to support her, concern etched across his expression. "Lina, what's wrong?"

The woman remained silent, standing rigidly, her face pale, as if something was choking her.

then... was a despicable person. Merely a heartless beast disguised in human form."

Thalia, growing impatient, looked at him and interrupted, "Get to the point."

"Magus regarded that man as an elder brother figure. However, when the operation failed, that man callously abandoned Magus without a word. Due to Magus' unwavering loyalty towards him, he would never betray him. Yet, that man was fearful. He directly threatened Magus, proclaiming that if he dared to betray him, he would kill his woman and child!"

Upon hearing the revelation, both Anthony and Thalia were taken aback. "He has a child?" they exclaimed in unison.

The man glanced at both of them and then continued, "Yes."

"Where's the child?" Thalia asked, her demeanor becoming particularly anxious.

The man let out a weary sigh. "The child was lost before even being born..."

A heavy silence enveloped Thalia and Anthony.

They had let their imaginations run wild, assuming a sinister conspiracy.

Thalia cast a glance at the man and asked, "How could the child just... disappear?"

"Is it even necessary for me to say?" the man replied with a hint of bitterness. "The elder brother figure whom Magus held in high regard, for reasons unknown, took an interest in Lina. At that time, Lina was pregnant with Magus' child, and he attempted to force himself upon her... The child was lost during the struggle."

Thalia's expression darkened once again.

"He's truly a despicable scoundrel!" she murmured softly.

"No doubt about it. The sad part is that Magus was still protecting him all along, only to discover the truth after he was released..." The man let out a sigh as he continued speaking.

Anthony's expression grew tense. A man like that was no better than a beast.

"And what about his girlfriend's condition?" Anthony inquired.

"The doctor said she suffers from long-standing depression, which has deeply affected her heart. After losing the child, she has been deteriorating day by day. It has been many years, but she hasn't been able to move on... The doctor also mentioned that if this continues, she won't survive much longer," the man explained.

As he spoke, the man noticed the sympathetic expressions on Anthony and Thalia's faces, prompting him to add, "The reason he joined me in scamming money was to pay for Lina's medical treatment. Otherwise, no matter how terrible he is, he wouldn't have resorted to such actions!"

At that point, Thalia's gaze sharpened, and she directed it at him. "So, you truly are despicable. Knowing well that this money is meant to save lives, you still managed to profit so greatly from it!"

Chapter 837 No Right To Judge

Thalia and Anthony walked into the hospital.

From a distance, she saw a figure standing helplessly at the emergency room entrance. At that moment, Thalia instantly understood his helplessness and the choices he had made.

If she had gone through all this, she definitely wouldn't be better off than him now. She might even become more insane.

Thalia's eyebrows furrowed, as she stared at him.

At that moment, Anthony glanced at her and asked, "What's the matter? Do you feel bad for him?"

Thalia took a deep breath and replied, "When I first met him, he wasn't like who he is now. I really don't know what he has gone through in just a few short years!"

"If one hasn't experienced the suffering of others, one should not persuade others to be generous. Isn't there a saying like this? I think this phrase fits Magus perfectly!" Anthony said.

Upon hearing this, Thalia lowered her gaze and looked at him. "Weren't you raised abroad? Yet, you seem to know such phrases quite well!"

"Is it wrong to love Chanaean?" Anthony retorted.

Thalia nodded. "Of course not. I love it too!"

The two people looked at each other and grinned.

At this moment, looking in the direction of Magus, Thalia asked, "What's your plan?"

"I don't know!"

"Are you giving up?"

"Not at all!"

Thalia looked at him curiously. "So, what do you mean, exactly?"

Anthony took a deep breath and responded, "I'll give it my best effort, and if it still doesn't work out in the end, I won't force it!"

"So, you're helping him find that man?" Thalia asked.

"I'm not helping him. I have my conscience. If such a person is still alive, it's too unfair!" Anthony replied.

Inside the hospital room, Magus looked extremely worried while holding the hand of Lina, who was lying on the bed.

Thalia hesitated for a moment, then looked at him. "You can consider what I've said. If you agree, feel free to contact me anytime. I'll leave my number here." With that, she placed a piece of paper with her number on the headboard.

Magus remained unmoved.

Thalia glanced at him, retracted her gaze, and turned to walk out.

Only after hearing the door close did Magus's gaze shift to the note on the headboard, which had Thalia's phone number.

His gaze on the note was exceptionally profound.

When Thalia returned to the car, Anthony was on the phone with Natasha.

"I got it. Two days, and if things don't work out, I'll go back!"

"Okay, enjoy your meal, Nat!"

"All right, let's leave it at that for now!"

After exchanging a few words, Anthony hung up the phone.

Thalia looked at him. "How's it going over there?"

"Everything's great!" Anthony replied.

Thalia nodded.

Anthony put away his phone and looked at Thalia. "What did Magus say?"

Thalia answered, "What else? He's on guard around people now, and it's not like you can get through him with just a sentence or two!"

Anthony thought for a moment and said, "He will come around."

Thalia looked at him. "You really don't understand Magus; he's quite stubborn!"

"The more stubborn a person is, the more likely they are to yield to emotions!" Anthony said, turning his head to look at Thalia with an indescribable certainty in his eyes.

Thalia frowned and pondered those words carefully.

Anthony added, "If it were me, I would grab any opportunity regardless of how dangerous it may be. An opportunity is an opportunity!"

"I hope so!" Thalia said.

"How mysterious!" Natasha glanced at him.
Kenneth smiled slightly.
Thus, the car continued to travel down the road.
About half an hour later, the car came to a stop in a place resembling a small town.
Due to the narrow streets of the small town, they could only park their car at the entrance.
"Let's go," Kenneth said.
Natasha pushed the car door open and got out.
"Where is this place?" Natasha asked softly as she walked up to Kenneth.
Kenneth looked ahead, and the corners of his mouth slightly raised in a faint, enigmatic smile. "This is where Dave and I were reborn."
Natasha raised her eyebrows slightly. "Reborn?"
Kenneth nodded, then slowly began to recount the past events, "Back when I was adventuring with Dave, we offended quite a few people. We were pursued and almost died in this place."
Upon hearing this, Natasha was surprised and asked, "Then what happened?"
"Then, we were fortunate enough to be saved by someone and narrowly escaped death," Kenneth said.
Upon hearing this, Natasha let out a soft laugh and turned her elegant jawline to face him. "I already know the conclusion without you telling me. What I want to hear is the process."
"The process..." Kenneth turned his head to glance at Natasha. Then, his pitch-black pupils gradually darkened as he said, "We were saved by a stranger. It was an old man who has been living in this area."
"So, are we here to visit that elderly person today?" Natasha asked.

"He has already passed away," he answered.

Chapter 840 You Are Especially Charming Like This

Once they got on the car, Natasha's phone rang.

Natasha picked up her phone and wanted to answer it. However, upon seeing the caller ID, her eyebrows instantly furrowed.

Kenneth fastened his seatbelt, ready to set off, but noticed Natasha staring at her phone without any reaction. He furrowed his brow and asked, "What's wrong?"

Natasha looked up, and her eyes met his. She said, "It's Boss..."

Kenneth paused for a moment, and his gaze shifted to her phone. The incoming call displayed Boss's number.

Upon seeing this, Kenneth's eyes slightly narrowed.

"Could it be that he knows we're fine?" Natasha asked.

Kenneth pursed his lips and did not speak. He was also pondering the matter at hand.

Natasha thought for a moment and was about to answer the call when suddenly, Kenneth reached out and stopped her.

"Let's talk about it later." Kenneth looked at her.

Thus, Natasha's watched the phone screen flicker until it automatically disconnected.

Natasha took her phone, just about to unlock it, when suddenly, a new message appeared on the screen.

I am sorry.

Upon seeing this message, Natasha's eyebrows furrowed.

Natasha looked at Kenneth and asked, "What does it mean?"

Kenneth took her phone and saw the three words on the screen. A sarcastic smile appeared at the corner of his mouth. "What else could it mean? He probably drank too much and is feeling guilty now."

Natasha narrowed her eyes.

Kenneth looked at her and smiled. "It's fine and actually better that you don't understand."

He certainly had a lot less to worry about now.
