

Chapter 993 Meeting Again

Listening to the astonished voice of Thalia, Spencer looked in that direction.

“All right. I'm on my way now!” With that, Thalia immediately hung up the phone.

Spencer walked toward her and asked, “What's wrong?”

Thalia's face was stern, “Kyle is here, so I must go and see him!”

“I'll accompany you!”

“No way!” Thalia shook her head, “Kyle is definitely here because Anthony used the unmanned aircraft. Plus, he's heard rumors about DX Group, so it's not convenient for you to be here. Just wait for me here.”

Spencer looked at her, hesitated for a moment, then said, “Let's call Anthony!”

Thalia pondered for a moment and nodded. “Even if I don't call him, Kyle will. Don't worry.”

“All right. I'll wait for you to come back.”

Thalia nodded, then immediately picked up her coat and left.

Suddenly, Spencer called out to her, “Thalia!”

Thalia turned around, looking at him with an innocent face. “What's wrong?”

Spencer looked at her, quickly stepped forward, cupped her face, and kissed her on the lips.

Thalia opened her eyes wide in surprise.

After a long while, Spencer let her go, gazing at her with deep affection. “Take care. I'll be waiting for you.”

Thalia's eyes were filled with joy. She nodded and replied, “Understood.”

And so, under Spencer's reluctant gaze, Thalia still got up and left.

As the door closed, a smile spread across Spencer's face. Since I can't forget about her in this lifetime, I might as well spend my whole life making it up to her.

After Thalia left, she went straight to Anthony's room.

Standing at the door, she knocked.

Soon, the door swung open, and Anthony appeared from within.

“Kyle is here,” Thalia said, looking directly at him.

“I know!” Anthony nodded.

“Did he contact you?” Thalia raised an eyebrow.

Anthony nodded.

“So, what's your plan?” Thalia furrowed her brows.

It seemed she noticed his hesitation. Thalia said, “If it's not possible, I can go see him myself!”

“He didn't come to see you, so what makes you think your presence would solve anything?” Anthony asked.

“Then?”

“Wait for me. I'm going to put on a jacket!” Anthony said.

He meant he wanted to go with Thalia.

Hence, Thalia waited for him at the door.

Soon, Anthony emerged from the house, donning a black trench coat. Without lifting his head, he said, “Let's go.”

Watching his figure, Thalia uttered, “I know you're having a hard time right now. As for Kyle, I can hold him off for a while!”

As Anthony walked, he said, “What's meant to come will always find its way. Besides, Kyle's arrival might just serve as a welcome distraction. Let's go!”

Hearing that, Thalia didn't say anything more. The two of them then walked toward the outside.

Thalia was driving, with Anthony sitting in the passenger seat.

No sooner had they driven off than Dave, who had just come in, bumped into them.

The car came to a halt, and the windows rolled down. Dave looked at them and asked, “Heading out?”

Thalia nodded. “Yes.”

“It's so late. Where are you going?” Dave asked.

“Well, there's no need to tell you that, right? We are guests, not prisoners!” Thalia said, looking at him.

In response, Dave said, “I'm worried that there might be troublemakers from Vermillion Base. I'm not interested in meddling with you. I'm concerned about the person in your car!”

Hearing that, Thalia glanced at Anthony and said, “Follow me. You have nothing to worry about!”

Just as Dave was about to say something, Anthony uttered, “Mr. Dave, we're going out for a bit. We'll be back soon.”

Hearing that, Dave nodded. “All right. Stay safe!”

“Got it!”

Afterward, Dave drove straight in. Seeing that, Thalia also promptly closed the window and drove away.

On the road, Anthony looked at her and said, “Mr. Dave means well!”

“I know!”

“Why did you speak to him so harshly?”

“Did I?” Thalia frowned.

“Did you not?” Anthony retorted.

“I-I didn't mean that,” said Thalia.

Anthony smirked in response. “You think Kyle is coming, and you've started to distance yourself from DX Group, right? You're preparing to take sides, aren't you?”

“I'm not doing that,” Thalia denied.

“Is that so?” Anthony retorted.

Thalia froze momentarily and replied, “Now that you mention it, I really do have that feeling...”

Right then, Anthony looked at her and said, “I'm not sure about the real story behind Daddy's grudge with the Darknetz, but through our time together, you should understand what kind of people Daddy and Mr. Dave are.”

Thalia was driving with one hand, and she nodded when she heard those words. “Yes. Even though I dislike your father, I can't deny that he and the entire DX Group have handled these matters perfectly.”

Anthony figured it was enough to hear those words from Thalia. Rather than listening to more words, I would rather see some actions.

At that thought, Anthony turned his head, his gaze drifting toward the outside. Despite his tender age, when he was supposed to be carefree, his eyes were filled with complexity and concern.

They drove for half an hour.

Finally, they arrived at their destination.

It was a hotel.

After parking the car at the entrance, Thalia tossed the keys to the person standing there and headed straight inside.

Anthony was right behind her.

Upon reaching the front desk, Thalia didn't wait for the other party to speak. She directly showed a tattoo. Seeing that, the other party immediately understood what it meant.

The person handed Thalia a card, saying, “Please, this way!”

Thalia nodded, then proceeded to walk straight inside.

Throughout the entire time, Anthony didn't speak, nor did he show any emotion.

As Thalia walked, she couldn't help but say, “I know you're having a hard time right now, but do you really think Kyle won't notice something's off with you acting so down?”

Hearing that, Anthony lifted his gaze and glanced at her. “I'll be careful.”

Thalia wanted to say something else, but after looking at him, she ultimately held back. No matter what, he's just a child. This is an unalterable fact.

With that thought in mind, Thalia sighed helplessly.

After entering the elevator, Thalia glanced at the surveillance camera. Then, the elevator automatically lit up one floor, and they stood inside, waiting.

The elevator wasn't ascending, but rather, it was continuously descending. Anthony, engrossed in his thoughts, didn't even notice.

After about a few dozen seconds, the elevator dinged open.

“Let's go!” Thalia said and headed straight for the outside.

Anthony lifted his gaze, ready to follow. However, what came into view was not some so-called hotel but a place resembling an underground workspace.

He was taken aback at first, then it dawned on him that they had arrived at a subdivision of Darknetz.

His reaction was quite swift. As soon as he saw Thalia's figure, he immediately followed her out.

However, as soon as they stepped out, they saw a figure standing not far away. To be precise, there were two people.

Both individuals stood over six feet tall, their bodies perfectly proportioned. They exuded an air of mystery, dressed in black from head to toe.

One was Kyle, whom Anthony had already met, and the other was somebody else.

Anthony watched, his eyes narrowing slightly.
