

Chapter 998 Roaming The World

As Thalia rose to leave, Kyle furrowed his brows. “Where are you going?”

“Let's go back!” Thalia said.

“Go back? To where?” Kyle asked.

“Um...” Thalia suddenly stopped mid-sentence, staring at Kyle. She blinked, momentarily at a loss for words.

She wasn't sure if she should tell him to his face that she was going to DX's territory.

Seeing that she fell silent, Kyle seemed to understand something. His dark eyes slightly narrowed as he looked at her. “What, you really think you're part of DX now?”

“I'm not—”

“Where are you going, then?”

“My boyfriend's still there.” Thalia asked hesitatingly.

“Boyfriend?” Kyle looked at her, then slowly walked toward her. “Don't tell me your boyfriend is now with DX.”

Thalia immediately shook her head. “No, absolutely not,” she said. “I've told you before, he's a doctor without borders. He's there solely to take care of Kenneth, and he has nothing to do with DX!”

Kyle looked at her intently. Thalia sighed helplessly. “I'm telling the truth.”

“It best be that,” Kyle said.

“Don't worry, my boyfriend belongs only to me, not to anyone else!” said Thalia.

Seeing her flaunting her love, Kyle directly rolled his eyes.

Seeing that he had fallen silent, Thalia said, “If there's nothing else, I'll be going now. Bye.”

“Wait.”

Thalia turned her head to look at him, “Is there anything else?”

“Sit down.” Kyle signaled.

“What's up?”

“You're leaving this mess all to me?” Kyle asked.

“What do you mean by that? This was always your issue,” Thalia said confidently. “You should be thanking me for telling you the truth. Otherwise, you would have lost a talent like Anthony.”

Kyle furrowed his brows. He felt he couldn't talk about that matter. He could only discuss it with Thalia.

Suddenly, a thought struck Thalia. She leaned in closer and said, “Oh right, there's something else I forgot to tell you.”

The moment Kyle saw that expression, he immediately furrowed his brows. “If you have something to say, say it all at once. Don't drop it bit by bit. My heart can't take it.”

Seeing him like that, Thalia couldn't help but laugh. “To think the famous and decisive Kyle also has days when his heart can't take it.”

“How about you take my seat?”

“Forget it,” Thalia interrupted with a wave of her hand. “I'm a lazy glutton, so I'm not cut out for this.”

“What exactly are you trying to say? Speak up already.”

“You met Benjamin before, right? Do you remember him?” Thalia asked.

“I do,” Kyle said, “You've already told me before.”

“There's one thing I've never told you.”

“What?”

“Benjamin is a genius in design.”

“A design genius? What does he design?”

Thalia remained silent, pulling out her phone once again to flip through the photos.

Kyle looked at her, his handsome brows furrowing. “Is there something you can't say directly?”

While rummaging through her pictures, Thalia said, “It's not that I can't. It's just that words fail to express the absolute shock in my heart.” As she spoke, she found the photo.

She enlarged the photo directly and placed it in front of him.

Kyle lowered his gaze and asked, “What is this?” As he spoke, he picked up his phone, zoomed in, and then zoomed in again. Slowly, his eyes widened. “Is this a blueprint for a firearm?”

Thalia nodded.

“What style is this? How come I've never seen it before?” Kyle enlarged the picture again, looking at it carefully.

Seeing him like that, Thalia laughed. “Never seen it before, have you? That's right, that is something Benjamin designed for fun.”

Kyle looked up, his eyes wide open with bewilderment.

His expression was exactly what Thalia wanted to see.

When she first saw Benjamin's design blueprints on the plane, she was astonished, too.

Although Kyle's expression wasn't as dramatic as she had imagined, it was shocking for someone who had seen pretty much everything.

“What, you don't believe me?” Thalia asked.

“Should I believe it?” Kyle retorted.

“There's more. Flip to the next page,” Thalia said.

Kyle flipped through a few more pictures, his eyes widening more with each one.

Lifting his gaze, he looked at Thalia in astonishment. “Are you sure Benjamin designed all of this?”

“Of course,” Thalia said, then looked at the picture he was examining. “This one, I saw him draw it myself on the plane.”

Kyle lowered his gaze, looking at the picture once again.

“As you also know, these styles are simply not available in the market,” said Thalia.

Kyle fell silent again.

Indeed, there wasn't.

He had always been in charge of the work there. Thus, no one knew it better than him.

Moreover, some of those images feature improved models, which he had used and critiqued. He had also received feedback from those he designed for. However, achieving perfection to a certain extent was quite challenging.

However, that image embodied the epitome of perfection.

Looking at the picture, Kyle's feelings were indescribably complex.

Seeing that he had stopped talking, Thalia reached out and directly snatched the phone back from his hand.

Kyle regained his senses and looked at her. Thalia spoke, “I'll send the pictures to your phone. You can take your time to look at them.”

“It doesn't matter. Where is Benjamin now? I want to see him,” Kyle said directly.

“Now?”

“Shouldn't we be rushing to protect such talent? Do you want me to wait for others to snatch him away?” Kyle retorted, then reproachfully looked at her. “And you. How could you dare to keep such a thing secret? Aren't you afraid something may happen to them?”

Thalia raised her eyebrow in dissatisfaction. “I've uncovered such a big thing for you and Darknetz. Isn't that a merit in itself? Why are you blaming me now?”

“How dare you say that when you're running around the world with two undiscovered talents?” Kyle retorted, feeling a shiver of fear even thinking about it.

If Benjamin or Anthony fell into the wrong hands, it would pose a great threat to Darknetz. When that time came, Kyle would have to do everything in his power to eliminate them.

Fortunately, they were part of Darknetz.

Not only that, they still had untapped potential.

Watching his expression change again and again, Thalia couldn't help but chuckle lightly. “Undiscovered talents... Relax. I've already smoothed things over with them. No one else will know. Besides, aren't I still here? No one can snatch them away.”

Kyle looked at her, pointing at her with his finger. “You're getting bolder by the day.”

Thalia raised an eyebrow, unable to deny it.

“You should still arrange their arrival here as soon as possible. I'll figure out a way to send them directly back to headquarters. Now, their age is just right. If it's any later, they may fall behind their peers,” Kyle said.

“You make it sound so easy, but how can they leave at a time like this?” Thalia retorted.

Kyle furrowed his brows.

“Originally, no matter the outcome of this incident, they both promised to return to headquarters with me. However, with Kenneth still unconscious, I don't think either of them is in the mood to return.” Thalia said helplessly.