Chapter 424

Chapter 424 At Fault

Natalia was scared by Alec's angry expression and said, "If there's nothing else, I'll go first. Bye!"

She hurriedly left, fearing Alec might harm her if she walked slowly. Though unsure of what had happened, Natalia sensed she had said something wrong and left quickly.

Alec was left standing with a headache. Without time to think, he drove to Perry Residence. He wanted to explain to Jenny before the news of their breakup went public tomorrow. Upon reaching Jenny's door at midnight, Alec knocked, feeling that explaining clearly would prevent any misunderstandings from escalating.

Jenny was already asleep and unhappy to be woken up by Alec. When she opened the door, Alec started to say, "Jenny-"

"Mr. Faust, can you check the time? Have you considered that you might be disturbing someone?" She thought Alec was being extremely selfish for not considering her feelings.

Alec noticed her sleepy eyes and apologized, "I'm sorry, I just wanted to explain to you-"

"Explain what?" Jenny cut him off, leaning on the door frame, finding the whole situation ridiculous. Since he rushed over after Natalia had visited her, Jenny knew what he wanted to explain, but she didn't care and thought Alec's actions were irrelevant.

Alec explained, "I wasn't trying to keep you in the dark about my father." Jenny's indifference and silence made him uncomfortable. "I didn't think there was a need for you to know about the existence of a person like him. I wanted to tell you after I dealt with him, however..."

However, Natalia had blabbered about him to Jenny.

Jenny remained indifferent to his explanation. "Why are you explaining so much to me? We've broken up for a long time. What does your father have to do with me?"

"I didn't want to break up with you, Jenny," Alec tried to explain. "But the situation at that time-"

"I don't care what the situation was," Jenny stopped him, looking him in the eye. "I only know that we've broken up."

"Does it not matter that I had absolutely no choice?" Her words jabbed at his heart. He had broken up with her for her safety, and hearing her dismiss it hurt him deeply.

"Nope, all that matters is that we've broken up," Jenny answered.

"I'll announce my breakup with Natalia tomorrow," Alec said, hoping to salvage the situation.

Jenny's mood worsened upon hearing that. "Mr. Faust, you be careful of bad karma that comes with not taking people's feelings seriously," she warned him, thinking that he was a scumbag for hurriedly wanting to breakup with Natalia when they had only started dating a few days ago.

Alec laughed. He didn't take people's feelings seriously? If that were the case, why was he standing at her door? At that moment, he felt that Jenny didn't understand him one bit and had never believed in him.

When their eyes met, they could see the disappointment in each other's eyes.

Jenny didn't understand why Alec would be disappointed in her. He was the one at fault!
