

SHE MADE A COMEBACK AS A RENOWNED DOCTOR

Capítulo 1028: Chapter 1028: Can We Do a Paternity Test?

Evelyn Sinclair finished speaking and pursed her lips as she looked at Liam Cloud.

All she could do was this.

She didn't blame Zoey Sanders for hurting Jack Sinclair; he deserved it.

She had warned him many times, but he just wouldn't listen. If he were not the only future heir of the Sinclair Family, she would have had him buried without a word.

"Finished?" Liam looked at her.

Evelyn added, "If you're willing to reconcile in this way, I can also promise that the Sinclair Family will not cause you any more trouble from now on."

It wasn't that Evelyn had let it go, but she had seen reality clearly.

With the Sinclair Family's current strength, they couldn't compete with Liam Cloud. If the other three family heads joined forces, and they obtained a map of Liam Cloud's base, there might be a glimmer of hope.

But seeing the other three family heads looking like quails now, they previously talked big, but upon seeing Liam Cloud, they dared not even open their mouths, let alone brag.

Continuing this endless entanglement was meaningless.

Liam was silent for a moment, then spoke:

“First, the child isn’t mine. I haven’t touched you. The debt lies with the debtor; go find whoever it belongs to.

Second, the person you kidnapped was her, and the person that beast almost harmed was also her. Even if, as you say, the child were mine, is it reasonable to offset my situation with hers?”

Evelyn paused slightly, looking at Zoey Sanders next to Liam, “You’re standing up for her so much, I thought she was your...”

Evelyn raised an eyebrow, glancing between them, already understanding and stopped speaking.

Zoey lightly pressed her lips together. She knew what Evelyn thought, assuming she and Liam had that kind of relationship.

But that wasn’t the case.

He helped her probably just because she was Hope Williams’ friend and she asked Hope for help which led him there. If she died with him, it would be difficult to explain to Hope.

Zoey sighed softly, her eyes unable to hide her disappointment.

Evelyn tugged slightly at the corner of her lips, "I understand. Does that mean as long as she forgives us, you'll agree to let this go?"

Liam gave her a sidelong glance, said nothing, and tacitly agreed.

Evelyn turned to Zoey Sanders, taking two steps forward, "Miss Sanders, how can we make up for the harm done to you?"

"It can't be made up." Zoey took a deep breath, looking at her.

Evelyn and George Sinclair also tightened their breaths a bit.

"I don't need you to make up for anything. Let's just let this matter go."

Upon hearing this, Evelyn almost thought she heard wrong. She thought Zoey wouldn't let them off.

Unexpectedly, she directly said to let it go.

Zoey indeed didn't want to pursue it further.

Just like Evelyn said, although they approached with a purpose, in another way of speaking, they had indirectly saved her, and she hadn't suffered any harm.

As for Jack Sinclair, she stabbed him twice in return, so she didn't suffer much loss.

So what was there to pursue?

"Let's go, I want to go back."

Liam glanced at her, "Truly not planning to pursue it?"

"Mm." Zoey nodded.

Liam said nothing more and left with his people.

Evelyn watched Liam's retreating figure, then looked at Olivia gazing at her with bright eyes, and felt somewhat sad.

George Sinclair didn't dare to make any more trouble and eagerly wished to send them off immediately, so he politely saw them out.

Hope Williams held Zoey's hand, observed her expression, and detected some of her inner thoughts, then asked, "Afterward, do you want to return with me, or stay a little longer?"

Zoey hesitated for a moment, then looked up at the man walking ahead, "Is there too much difference between him and me, will we never be able to be together?"

Hope didn't reply to her immediately.

What qualifies as a big gap?

When she first got together with Waylon Lewis, it also seemed impossible to others.

But eventually, they ended up together.

Nothing is truly impossible.

But at the moment, Hope didn't know how to encourage Zoey.

She was unsure how deep Zoey's feelings were for Liam or what Liam's stance was on the matter, fearing either speaking too lightly or too heavily.

As they were about to get in the car, Evelyn hurriedly came out from inside.

She walked straight up to Liam, mustered courage, and said, "Whether you admit Olivia or not, could you do a paternity test with Olivia?"