

SHE MADE A COMEBACK AS A RENOWNED DOCTOR

Capítulo 1043: Chapter 1043: Trouble

“Yes.” The subordinate responded and walked out.

Just then, Eliana Shaw walked in and said, “Big Boss, they have left.”

“Hmm.”

“Big Boss, this matter seems unrelated to Evelyn Sinclair; it actually looks more like the handiwork of that old man, George Sinclair.”

Eliana spoke with a hint of anger in her voice; they clearly disapproved of the Sinclair Family’s way of doing things.

Their intentions were all too obvious.

But didn’t they consider, is it even possible?

Not to mention whether the child is truly Liam Cloud’s, even if it is, thinking they can use the child to bind the Sinclair Family and Liam Cloud together, relying on him from now on, is too naive.

Eliana could see it, and surely, Liam Cloud could see it too.

Roman Frost soon walked in from outside, and Liam Cloud glanced at him, then at Eliana, with a somewhat meaningful look in his eyes.

He raised his chin slightly and said to Eliana, "You go out first."

Eliana nodded and walked out, brushing past Roman Frost, giving him a glance before leaving.

Roman Frost didn't even dare to look at Eliana, and when he stood before Liam Cloud, he lowered his eyes, "Big Boss, you called for me."

Liam Cloud didn't speak; he stared deeply at the person before him for a couple of moments.

After a while, he spoke, "Is that child your daughter?"

It wasn't a statement of fact, clearly, Liam Cloud still had some doubts.

Roman Frost was slightly stunned, seemingly not expecting Liam Cloud to ask so directly.

He found himself at a loss for words.

Liam Cloud pulled at his lips, "Is she really yours?"

Roman Frost pressed his lips tightly, thoughts racing through his mind. He stood there for a long time before he finally said a few words, "I'm not sure."

Liam Cloud raised an eyebrow and looked up, his hoarse voice tinged with danger, "Not sure if you slept with her, or not sure if there's a child?"

Roman Frost clenched his fist, evidently the latter.

He stood there quietly, tall and upright, not moving an inch, his face clouded.

Liam Cloud looked out of the window, his dark brows moving slightly, unable to be completely certain, but he had a general idea in his mind.

"When did this happen?"

The man's low voice asked again.

Roman Frost lowered his eyes, remorse all over his face, "That banquet three years ago."

Indeed!

Liam Cloud's expression remained unchanged.

Now it was clear, that foolish woman couldn't even figure out who she spent the night with, mistakenly blaming him for it.

After a few seconds, Liam Cloud gave him a cold look and his voice sounded slowly, "You've got some nerve, not owning up after sleeping with her?"

At this, Roman Frost suddenly raised his eyes, his voice urgent, “Big Boss, when I woke up, I saw her lying next to me, I knew what had happened, but because I had a mission at the time, I left my contact information and a card by her side, intending to take responsibility, but she never contacted me. When my mission ended and I came back, half a month had passed. Being adults, I thought she didn’t want to dwell on it either, so I didn’t reach out, and that was the end of it.”

Roman Frost was increasingly frustrated as he spoke, if he had paid more attention to this at the time, things might not have ended up like this.

When he saw Olivia and heard she was Evelyn Sinclair’s daughter, his heart sank.

When he found out Olivia was three years old, he felt even more certain.

While they hadn’t done a paternity test yet to confirm it, it was basically certain that Olivia was his daughter.

Roman Frost lowered his eyes, an indescribable sense of agony on his face.

Damn it, if only he hadn’t drunk so much that night, he wouldn’t have gotten into this mess.

A wave of frustration welled up within Roman Frost.

Liam Cloud cast him a sidelong glance, “Have you thought about what to do?”

Roman Frost's hand, hanging at his side, clenched tightly; this was precisely what troubled him—what to do from now on...

Even if Evelyn Sinclair doesn't need him to take responsibility, there's a child now; how could he possibly ignore it?

Furthermore, everyone still believed the child was Liam Cloud's, and the Sinclair Family was trying to force the child onto Liam Cloud; the situation was complicated.

Besides, he already had someone he liked...

Suddenly there was an extra child, and while Roman Frost felt a responsibility and guilt towards Evelyn Sinclair and her daughter that he could not shirk, on the other hand... Roman Frost's deep, dark gaze looked towards the door.

People like them, nothing around them, however slight, could escape their notice—he sensed the person outside the door hadn't left.

She had been listening the whole time.

Eliana stood, arms crossed, leaning outside the door, her usually expressionless face utterly cold.

Sometimes having too strong of a sixth sense isn't a good thing.

Liam Cloud glanced towards the door, then shifted his gaze back to Roman Frost's face, "Handle it yourself."

Roman Frost clenched his back teeth tightly, "Yes, Big Boss."

As Roman Frost walked out, sure enough, he saw Eliana standing there with her arms crossed, her face cold, clearly she had heard everything.

"Aurora..."

"Get lost!"

Eliana didn't even give him a chance to explain, straightened up and walked away briskly, leaving Roman Frost with nothing but a cold back.

Roman Frost's already stern face darkened even more.
