

SHE MADE A COMEBACK AS A RENOWNED DOCTOR

Chapter 1045 - Capítulo 1045: 1045: Paternity Test Report

Capítulo 1045: Chapter 1045: Paternity Test Report

Zoey Sanders nodded thoughtfully, still feeling a bit anxious inside.

Hope Williams stood up and patted Zoey Sanders on the shoulder, “So don’t think too much, don’t put too much mental pressure on yourself.”

“Hmm, thank you, Aunt Williams.”

“You should go out and get some fresh air later, don’t stay cooped up in the room. It’s easy to overthink when you’re alone. I’ll go check on the kids.”

After comforting Zoey Sanders, Hope Williams was about to leave when Zoey hesitated for a couple of seconds but still called out to her, “Aunt Williams.”

Hope turned back to look at her, “Hmm? Is there something else?”

Zoey pressed her lips and asked, “Aunt Williams, you know him very well...”

Zoey felt that whatever decision Liam Cloud made, Hope could always understand and analyze it accurately, but she couldn’t.

She really thought that Liam stayed here to spend an extra day with them...

It turned out he had planned it all along.

“Aunt Williams, can I ask a question that maybe I shouldn’t... During those five years in Country Y, did you ever like him? Even just for a moment, was there any heartbeat?”

Zoey looked at Hope seriously. She knew that during those five years in Country Y, Liam Cloud had been protecting Hope, including when she returned to the country later. He was always protecting her. Such feelings were quite enviable.

Hope listened to the question, gently tucked a loose strand of hair on her forehead, leaned slightly against the door frame beside her, as if seriously pondering the question.

After hesitating for a moment, she smiled softly, "Maybe... at some point."

Someone so close to perfect is hard not to be moved by. During five years of being together, she wasn't heartless like cement; of course, there would be moments of affection.

But during those five years, what she felt more for him was gratitude, reliance, and perhaps even admiration.

"Do you think that my liking for him is overreaching?" Zoey lowered her eyes.

Hope looked at Zoey's beautiful face and shook her head, smiling warmly, "No, I actually think you're very brave, Zoey. He's indeed an excellent person, worthy of being liked."

...

The night gradually fell.

Sinclair Family.

Evelyn Sinclair, eager to know the results of the paternity test, asked the hospital to expedite the process. It was sent in the afternoon, and the results came out in the evening.

When the paternity test results were delivered to the Sinclair family, Evelyn Sinclair's fingers clenched in nervousness.

George Sinclair looked at the sealed brown envelope containing the test report, his heartbeat quickening.

Now that Liam Cloud has already kept the child by his side, it means he is willing to accept this child.

As long as the test results confirm the child is Liam's, then his plan will be successful.

Having accepted the child, even if he can't accept the child's mother for now, eventually, they will slowly come around, or so George Sinclair thought.

He excitedly picked up the paternity test report, eager to open it.

Evelyn watched him hurriedly opening it, her feelings mixed. On one hand, she hoped Olivia was indeed Liam's child, so Olivia would have a father.

Although Olivia never said so, she knew that Olivia longed for a father whenever she saw other kids with one present.

But now George Sinclair and the other three Family Heads all wanted to use Olivia to establish a connection with Liam Cloud and then marry her off to him, binding the family with him.

Evelyn didn't want Olivia to be used back and forth by them.

George was using Olivia, so he sent her to Liam. Now, why wasn't Liam willing to let Olivia come back?

Evelyn was genuinely worried about Olivia, not wanting her to become a pawn in their power struggles.

"What's the situation?"

As Evelyn was still contemplating this, George had already opened the test report.

At this moment, his brows were deeply furrowed, his eyes filled with disbelief as he looked at the test results, as if they were unexpected and shattered his dreams.

Evelyn also furrowed her brows, taking the test report from his hands, glanced at it, and her pupils constricted.

The test report showed there was no parent-child relationship.

No parent-child relationship!

This meant the child wasn't Liam Cloud's at all.

The man from that night wasn't Liam Cloud either!

Evelyn suddenly felt a buzzing in her ears, her hands involuntarily stiffened. If not Liam Cloud, then who was it?

The shattered dream left George incensed, “Evelyn, what’s going on? Didn’t you assure me this child was Liam’s?”

Evelyn tightened her grip on the paternity report, her voice tinged with a weariness, “I blamed the wrong person.”

George’s expression turned entirely grim.

Evelyn’s face didn’t look any better either. Previously, she thought she knew who the child’s father was. With this paternity result, she now couldn’t even ascertain who the child’s biological father was anymore.

“Now you should give up, right?” Evelyn took a deep breath, speaking coldly.

George stood up from the sofa, furiously sat down again, then stood back up to pace back and forth anxiously.

If he hadn’t been given hope by this misunderstanding before, he wouldn’t have thought of using the child to cling onto Liam Cloud.

Now, having entertained the idea and already taken action, suddenly being told the child isn't Liam's is a severe blow. He couldn't accept it immediately and didn't want to let go of this opportunity, especially since Liam had already accepted this child.

They conducted the paternity test. What if he forged a fake report?

As this thought occurred, his eyes grew more ruthless, as if he had made a decision.