

A Journey 221

Chapter 221 Where Is My Boy

The two of them made their way to the Archon's home, and after a short walk, they arrived at a magnificent mansion.

The mansion's white marble walls gleamed brilliantly, reflecting the radiant light like a beacon in the wilderness.

Its towering columns and ornate statues hinted at the opulence of its past glory.

Ivy cascaded gracefully down the sides of the building, adding an air of mystery and enchantment to the scene.

Approaching the mansion, they were met by the guards stationed at the doors, who promptly opened them and ushered the two inside.

When Archer entered, he saw a well-decorated foyer, and a tall, skinny man with grey hair and blue eyes appeared from one of the doors.

He stopped in front of the two and spoke, "What brings you here, Kostas? Who is the boy?"

The commander quickly answered, "This young man has traveled close to Althosia City, and unfortunately, it was destroyed by the swarm."

The older man, whom Archer recognized as the Archon of the town, looked at Archer with a skeptical expression.

Kostas turned to Archer and asked him to explain what he saw, so he did, and the man's face went white.

Archer bid the two men farewell and left the mansion. He summoned his wings and flew out of the town.

He continued north, but after a few hours, the sun started to set. So, he opened a portal in front of him and flew into the domain.

As he entered, he dismissed his wings and landed on the floor, skidding to a stop. Xanthe jumped up and cast a spell at him.

It flew toward him but dissipated into nothing just as it touched him. Archer smiled at her as he noticed the dress she was wearing and spoke, "You look nice, Xanthe. Green suits you."

The girl stopped reacting and went silent as she sat back down. Thalia jumped up and asked, "How do I look, Archer?"

He examined the blonde-haired girl and noticed she was wearing a red dress. He commented with a smile, "Red suits you, Thalia. It goes well with your eyes."

Thalia smiled at his reply and sat down in a good mood. Archer pulled out some sweet bread and gave some to the two girls as he sat down next to the moody sister.

Xanthe moved away from him, giving him a dirty look, and started eating.

He shook his head and asked them, "Do you have any idea what you guys want to do? You can leave here, or I can hire you as my maids. I honestly don't mind."

Thalia looked thoughtful, but Xanthe jumped up and exclaimed, "I knew it, you're a pervert! What do you expect from us?"

Archer turned to the paranoid girl and sighed as he spoke, "No, I've already told you I'm only a pervert to my fiancées, not two random girls I bought from a slave trader."

The blonde nodded her head, but Xanthe wasn't convinced and asked, "What do you expect us to do? Clean? Cook? Service you?"

Hearing her accusations against him, Archer shook his head. "No, you can train, relax, and explore the domain."

Archer took out another sweet bread and started eating before continuing, "The only thing I ask is you help me and the girls when we are here, that's all."

Thalia got excited, knowing they would be helping unlike back at home, where they weren't relied on at all.

Xanthe sat back down but kept an eye on Archer. He turned to the girl and spoke, "I have thousands of people in this domain. If you wish to get their point of view on me, Miss Paranoid, you can go meet them."

Archer stood up, closed his eyes, and began imagining two maid outfits, similar to the ones he remembered from the novels he read.

Once he was done, he made his way to the bath chambers, but before he entered, Xanthe screamed out, "How do you expect us to wear such outfits? We are nobles, not peasants."

He halted in his tracks. "Don't wear it then. It's your choice, not mine. Now I'll see you both later."

Archer stepped into the bath chambers and vanished from their sight.

[Xanthe & Thalia POV]

After the twins watched Archer walk into the bathroom, Thalia turned to her sister with a certain look in her eyes and spoke, "Why are you being like this, sister? He has done nothing but be nice to us."

Xanthe turned to her. "He has secret intentions, why would he buy us?"

Thalia was about to reply when they heard an angry voice behind them. "Who are you two? And why are you in my home?"

The twins turned around and spotted a brown-skinned young girl standing there, staring at them with fire in her eyes.

Thalia noticed she had blood-red hair tied into a ponytail, ruby-red eyes, and ears just like Archer. I think you should take a look at pandasnovel.com

The twins noticed her beautiful red scales running down her body. Xanthe stepped forward and spoke. "This is our master's home. Who are you?"

When Thalia heard this, her eyes widened and wondered why she got angry at Archer for suggesting they become his maids but acted like this.

The girl stepped forward as a grin spread across her face as she spoke. "We have not been gone long, and he already picked up two pretty girls. Twins, no less."

When the twins heard this, they figured out she is one of Archer's Fiancées, but the girl continued talking.

"I am Sera, Archer's Fiancée. Who are you two?" Sera spoke as she closed in on the twins and stopped in front of them.

Thalia stepped back, but Xanthe didn't move as she answered, "We are his maids. He bought us earlier today."

Sera examined the twins and nodded before giving them a warning, "Unless he chooses you two, don't try anything with him."

The blonde nodded, and Xanthe narrowed her eyes but eventually nodded, causing the redhead to smile.

"Where is my boy?" Sera asked, looking around.

"He is in the bath chambers," Xanthe answered.

Sera nodded and made her way to the bath. However, the black-haired girl watched her walk away and turned on her heels.

Thalia watched her sister in shock and followed behind her, asking, "What was that about, sister?"

She stopped walking and turned to her. "Nothing, he's just a pervert who has many girls."

After talking, she walked toward the balcony and stepped outside. Thalia shook her head and sat back down to wait for Archer.

[Back to Archer]

Archer lay in the hot water, feeling relaxed, when he heard the chamber door open and sniffed the air.

He smiled as he recognized the scent approaching, and soon a pair of arms wrapped around him.

Sera started nibbling on his ears, causing him to shiver, but Archer greeted her, "Hello Sera, what brings you back here?"

She paused and answered while looking at him with a grin, "They were talking about sex again, and I got really horny. So I came to see my boy. Is that an issue?"

Archer shook his head, but she continued, asking, "Who are the two girls out there? And why did you buy them?"

He explained, "They looked so sad when they were sitting in that cage. They seemed to have lost all will to live, so I bought them. But now, I don't know what to do with them. One of them seems to like me, while the other one hates me."

Sera started giggling, and Archer questioned, "What's so funny?"

She composed herself and said, "Well, she was quick to call you her master when I questioned them. So, are you sure she hates you?"

Archer was taken aback but dismissed it, thinking she was just acting strangely. He closed his eyes as Sera started kissing his neck and then bit him.

He reached back and began caressing her long ears, which made her stop attacking his neck, causing her body to tingle.

Sera swiftly shifted and settled on his lap, and as Archer felt her presence, he opened his eyes to find her completely naked.

She was petite with perky little breasts, a slim waist, and thick thighs. His eyes scanned her body with desire, and he smiled.

Archer leaned forward and kissed her, his hands exploring her body and gently pinching her little brown nipples, causing her to react with a jump.

But he soon stopped and spoke, "We can continue this in the bedroom."

Sera regained her composure and nodded with a smile as Archer got to work cleaning himself.

She began to help him and asked, "El and Teuila both have dragon tattoos on their bellies. Did they get those because they had sex with you?"

Archer nodded before she asked another question. "So when we have sex, I'll also get one? What do they mean?"

He smiled at her as he answered, "Yes, you will. It means you belong to me and only me. You'll never be able to betray me. Oh, I can also sense if you're okay."

Standing up, he continued, "For example, right now, you're extremely excited. Teuila and Ella are calm, probably chatting with Mele."

Chapter 222 The Little Dragon (R18)

Sera nodded her head with a massive smile, eager to get her mark. The two dragons left the bath chamber after getting ready.

When they exited, they spotted the sisters sitting there in their maid outfits, which Archer loved.

He approached them and spoke as he got closer, "Have you girls decided if you want shared or separate rooms?"

They both answered at the same time, "Shared."

Archer nodded. "Follow me, and I'll show you to your rooms. I'm sure you two need some sleep."

He began to walk but stopped and turned to them, examining both girls and nodding. "You both look great in the outfits. I'm glad they fit. Now, follow me."

The four made their way up some stairs and walked onto the floor above the girls' bedrooms. Archer showed them the first room.

When Xanthe and Thalia saw the room, they were happy. It was overly decorated, but it still looked nice.

The twins entered and were happy, but only Thalia thanked him while Xanthe gave him another dirty look that made him chuckle.

After saying goodnight to the two, Archer led Sera to his bedroom.

As they entered the room, she quickly removed her robe, standing there with a smile as Sera looked at him as he sat on the edge of the bed.

Archer noticed Sera's lust-filled eyes as he took off his own robe, when he did that she approached him and kneeled in front of him.

She took his dragon in her tiny hands and started stroking him which cause him to let out a little groan.

"Uhghh!~~"

Sera continued her assault and started moving her hands faster, she leaned forward and licked the tip of his dragon.

When she did that an electric shock ran through his body, Sera then took it in her mouth and moved her little tongue around it.

Archer loved the feeling and moaned as she got faster, he looked down and saw her red ponytail bouncing everywhere.

She was bobbing her head and Archer felt everything second of it, she took it deeper and stroked him at the same time.

Her little tongue swirled around him causing him to let out a groan. "Ughhnn!~~"

After doing it for minutes he felt like he was going to explode, Archer decided to do it in her mouth and held her head just as his seed shot down her throat.

Sera gulped down every last drop and smiled as she licked her lips before casting Cleanse on herself.

She crawled up and sat on his lap. Archer felt her wetness on him, while she started teasing him by moving her hips.

Sera grabbed a hold of his shoulders and moved her hips faster and coated his dragon with her love juices.

Feeling really good Archer lay back and let her do whatever she wanted as he felt her lips on his neck.

After she finished kissing his neck Sera gazed at him. "Are you having a good time?"

He responded by looking at her. "Yes, that feels great, but let me try something else."

Sera nodded her head and let him do whatever he wanted; he lay down and spoke. "Sit on my face," he orders as he hid his horns.

When she heard him her eyes opened wide as she's never heard of such a thing but she still did what he asked.

Sera crawled up his body and placed her lower half on his face as she felt his cold tongue touch her pussy causing her to let out a loud moan.

"Mmmnngghnn!~"

He loved the look of her pussy, it was neat, tidy, and hairless, Archer started licking all over.

She gently held his hair as his tongue buried itself deep inside her, Sera's unique taste drove him wild.

At the same time, a shock ran through her body, making her grab a hold of his hair as he started licking her even more, at the same time he grabbed her perky ass making her yelp.

He grabbed her thighs and pulled her body closer to him as he started to nibble her clit causing her to scream out in shock and pleasure.

"AAnngghh!~~ Arch!"

Archer continued his attack on her until he felt her legs start shaking, her body then went stiff and collapsed due to her orgasm.

Once he was done he rolled her over and made her get on all fours in front of him, her top half was laying on the bed as her ass was in the air.

He gets behind her and started playing with her clit as he slipped a finger into her pussy which clamped around it.

Sera bit the mattress as he started slowly fingering her, after playing with her for a while as he felt that she was ready.

Archer moved behind her and held her thick hips, and leaned over to whisper into her ear. "Do you want this my little dragon?"

His lower half rubbed against her causing her to moan but she still managed to answer with an excited nod. "Mmmnnghh!~~ Make me yours Archer."

Archer lined up his dragon against her opening and slid it in, but as soon as he entered she tightened up and screamed out.

"AHHHHHH!"

She gripped the bedsheets as he let her get used to him being inside, after a few minutes she wiggled her hips.

Archer started thrusting slowly causing her to moan into the mattress, he then sped up his attack and saw a line of blood trickle down her thigh but that didn't stop him.

His grip on her hips tightened as he fucked her to the point she was screaming out in pleasure.

"Aghhnn!~~ Mmmnnghhh!~~ Ahhhhh!~~"

As he was fucking her he grabbed her arms and lifted her up, Archer leaned in pushing his dragon deeper before speaking. "Who do you belong to Seraphina?"

She shook her head and couldn't speak properly as he started his continued his attack but still replied. "I...Mmmmmh...a..m....Ahhhhh...Yours!"

Archer dropped her body to the bed while he pushed himself deeper into her and released his seed into her making her moan yet again.

"Mmmnnghhh!~~"

He pulled himself out of her and flipped her over onto her back, when he did her eyes rolled back and her brown skin was covered in sweat.

Her body was petite but firm and he absolutely loved this little dragon who he rescued, after fucking for a little while she orgasmed again.

Archer leaned over her and aimed his still-raging dragon at her soaking wet pussy and slid it inside causing her to cuddle him tightly and moan in his ear.

"Aghnnn!~~ Why are you punishing me like this Darling." Sera said in a breathless voice.

He started slowly fucking her making her feel every inch of him, she grabbed a hold of his back, and every time he pushed deeper she scratched him.

The two of them continued long into the night, most of the time Archer took control but Sera did try her best but didn't last long as she had orgasm after orgasm.

He was the first to drift off to sleep, and Sera followed suit, lying on top of him as they both dozed off.

Archer slowly stirred awake, the morning sunlight filtering through the curtains and gently illuminating the room.

As he became aware of his surroundings, he felt a warm weight on top of him. Blinking his eyes open, he looked down to see Sera, still fast asleep, lying on top of him.

Her adorable snores filled the air, and he couldn't help but smile at the sight. Her peaceful expression made her look even more endearing.

Gently, he reached up and brushed a strand of hair away from her face, marveling at the bond they had formed in such a short time.

Archer shifted slightly, trying not to disturb her slumber. He felt a sense of contentment and happiness, knowing that she had chosen to be close to him.

As he lay there, he thought about their journey together so far, the challenges they had faced, and the moments they had shared.

He realized that Sera had become an important part of his life, and he was grateful for her presence.

Despite the initial doubts and uncertainties, he had come to care deeply for her. Quietly, he wrapped his arms around her and pulled her closer, enjoying the warmth of her body.

As he listened to her soft breathing and felt the steady rise and fall of her chest, he knew that he wanted to protect and cherish her.

He decided to let her sleep a little longer, savoring the peaceful moment they were sharing.

Archer smiled to himself as he looked up at the ceiling. He felt Sera stirring beside him and turned to her.

Her beautiful ruby-red eyes met his, and he pulled her closer, giving her a gentle kiss on her plump lips.

Sera moaned softly, then leaned in close to his ear and whispered, "I'm so thankful you rescued me that day. I love you, Archer."

When he heard her speak he smiled as he replied. "I love you too, my cheeky dragon."

Chapter 223 Morning Fun

When Sera heard his reply she got happy and went for his ear, she started nibbling it causing him to get goosebumps all over.

To get her back he grabbed her ass and squeezed it causing her to yelp but she continued her attack.

Archer felt his dragon rising and he aimed it for her pussy and impaled her again causing her to let out a moan.

"Aghhhhhnnn!~~"

Once Sera recovered she looked down at him with a smile and started sliding up and down on him causing her tightness to squeeze his dragon even more.

He started thrusting as she also moved causing it to hit every weak spot she had causing her to scream out.

"Ahhhhh... Ahhhhhhh!~~"

Archer flipped her over and was on top of her, he started kissing her as he started to fuck her slowly causing her to wrap her legs around him and moaned.

"Mmmnnghnn!~~"

While they were kissing and making love he started attacking her nipples, with his three-pronged attack she quickly orgasmed.

But Archer kept going as he pinned her arms above her head causing Sera to smile and accept her fate as he ravaged her even more.

By the time they were done her womb was so full that it spilled out every time she moved, she lay on the bed asleep with a smile on her face.

Archer woke up feeling refreshed and decided to head to the bath chambers for a relaxing bath.

After bathing, he put on a blue shirt and pants before leaving the room. To his delight, he saw the twins standing there in their maid outfits.

With a smile, he greeted them, and Thalia returned the smile, while Xanthe stared at him with narrowed eyes.

"Good morning, girls. What do you want to do today? You can explore the domain or travel with me," Archer offered.

Thalia spoke first, "I'll stay here for now. I want to explore your domain."

Xanthe chimed in with a sarcastic tone, "I'll come with you for a little while, just to stretch my legs. But don't try anything with me, you should have had enough last night."

Archer nodded, respecting their choices, and replied, "Sure, that's fine. We can travel together for a bit, and then you can return here whenever you want."

The stubborn girl gave him a nod, so he went to check on Sera and tell her he's continuing on with his journey.

When he opened the bedroom door she was sitting up and turned to him with a smile as she spoke. "Oh there you are Arch, I wondered where you went."

He smiled at the redhead and answered her. "I had a bath while you were sleeping. Are you staying or returning to the girls?"

Sera tilted her head as she rubbed her eyes. "I'll stay with you, all those two are doing is gossiping about sex and you."

She stood up and started looking for her gown as she continued talking. "Let me have a bath then I'll join you."

Archer nodded his head and left the room, he only saw Xanthe standing there. He looked around but didn't see the other twin.

"She's gone off to explore. When do we leave?" Xanthe answered his unspoken question.

He looked at the woman and nodded. "We are waiting for Sera, but she won't be long."

Archer sat down and waited, and after a little while, Sera emerged from the bath chamber, wearing a kaftan and gladiator sandals. She smiled at him and hurried over. "Are you ready, Arch?"

He nodded, standing up and creating a portal. They stepped through, followed by Xanthe, and found themselves in the rain.

When Sera saw the rain, she mumbled to herself, "No wonder they fled to Teuila's kingdom."

Archer cast Cosmic Shield and Mana Manipulation to warm up the inside, just like he did when flying.

Sera looked around with wide eyes, while Xanthe observed him with narrowed eyes, questioning, "What did you do? It's really warm in here."

He looked at her as he answered, "It's two spells I combine to create this."

She nodded, then turned her attention to the maid with a raised brow and asked, "Why are you here?"

Xanthe turned her head to the young girl and replied, "I wanted some fresh air and wanted to see where we are."

Sera observed the girl but shrugged, and the three of them continued walking down the road as the two dragons conversed.

The rain was intensifying, bouncing off the shield, and making it difficult to see far ahead due to the weather.

As they kept walking, Xanthe directed her question to Archer, "Where are you originally from?"

He looked at the black-haired girl and responded, "I'm from the Avalon Empire in the north."

Xanthe followed up with another question, "What are you doing down here then? And why don't you fly home?"

Archer came to a halt and explained, "You see, I was knocked unconscious and found myself drifting along the Evertide River. When I regained consciousness, I was on the southern shore, so I decided to continue my journey north on foot."

He looked around at the landscape and smiled as he continued, "It's been quite enjoyable, experiencing the journey from ground level. Flying would be boring; I'd miss out on all the sights and adventures along the way."

Xanthe stared at the younger boy and nodded her head. He saw she wasn't going to speak again, so he shrugged and continued walking.

Sera turned to Archer with a smile and spoke, "Arch, I'm still hurting a little bit, but I have the mark now."

He turned to her and noticed the mark really stood out on her brown skin. Archer smiled and replied, "It suits you, Sera. It really does."

Xanthe saw the mark and asked, "Why do you want that mark? What does it mean?"

Sera smiled and replied, "It means I'm the wife of the white dragon. I was his wife before due to a ritual we went through, but now I have this mark as proof."

Archer smiled when he heard the little dragon's response, after that, the three continued walking until the rain started to calm down.

It finally stopped raining allowing the three to see further than before, Archer noticed that they were walking in between a river and a forest.

He activated Aura-Detector and picks up pings in front of them hiding in the forest, Archer stopped the girls from walking.

Sera asked as she looked around. "Why are we stopping? Is something out there?"

Archer peered into the forest and alerted, "There are humans in the forest waiting to ambush us."

She responded with a smile, "Bandits?"

He nodded, determined, "Girls, let's rush at them and deal with them before they can do anything."

Sera and Xanthe nodded, and without hesitation, Archer charged into the forest, catching the bandits off guard and attacking them swiftly.

Xanthe unleashed her vampire powers, using her claws to swiftly deal with a group of bandits.

Observing Xanthe's abilities, Archer decided to inquire about them later. Meanwhile, Sera skillfully danced between the bandits, summoning her claws to slash at them.

While the two girls fought some of the bandits, Archer took on the rest, utilizing his magic to cast Blink.

In an instant, he vanished from one spot and reappeared in front of the human who appeared to be the leader.

With the swift strike of his tail, Archer sliced through the man's left leg, while simultaneously delivering a powerful punch to the man's chest.

The force sent the man hurtling backward, crashing into another group of bandits. Archer quickly Blinked to reach more bandits, using his claws to take them down as his tail continued its lethal strikes.

Amidst the skirmish, he noticed a massive human sprinting toward Xanthe.

She reacted swiftly, dodging the man's attack and responding with a bullet made of blood that pierced through him, sending him crashing to the ground.

Xanthe followed up with her claws, displaying her formidable combat skills.

Archer smiled, impressed by Xanthe's fighting prowess, and made a mental note to challenge her in a friendly fight someday. However, he shook off the thought, focusing on the ongoing battle.

After ten minutes of intense combat, the bandits lay dead on the ground, and Xanthe stood by Archer's side, catching him off guard with her sudden proximity.

He chuckled, admiring her speed, just as Sera joined them, dragging the bandit leader along. When she stopped in front of them, she threw the trembling man to the ground.

The bandit leader was visibly shaken and refused to make eye contact with the trio of devils. Archer looked down at the cowardly human and kicked him.

He kept kicking the man until he spoke. "Where is your hideout?"

The man looked up to see a pair of glowing violet eyes staring down at him promising pain if he didn't answer so he spoke. "Ten miles north, there is an old castle we set up in."

Chapter 224 Treasure

Archer smiled as he heard the man speak but swiftly dispatched him using his tail, while the two girls observed the scene.

Turning to Xanthe, he inquired, "What are you? You appear human, but your scent and magic are different."

The black-haired girl gazed back at him before answering, "We are vampires."

Archer was surprised, and he asked, "Where do you get your blood from?"

She narrowed her eyes, thinking for a moment before replying, "My sister gives me some. It's not pleasant, but it works."

Smiling, he raised his hand, using a claw to cut open his palm, and offered it to Xanthe.

Her eyes grew wide, and she couldn't resist the urge when she smelled his blood. She fixated on his hand, where the blood was.

His blood smelled irresistible, and despite only drinking Thalia's blood before, she found it difficult not to pounce on him.

He encouraged her to have a drink, and unable to resist, Xanthe stepped forward, took hold of his hand, and began drinking Archer's blood.

Sera was curious because she heard of vampires but had never seen one before, but her jealousy kicked in and she hissed at him.

"Why are you letting her do that? I thought female vampires only drink their lover's blood."

Archer shook his head as he replied, "Vampires can drink any blood, but drinking it from the neck is something a female will only do with her husband, so I let her drink it from my hand."

Sera looked at him and nodded, she was still jealous but soon realized it was only blood. It wasn't like the maid had the same mark she did.

She touched the tattoo on her stomach and looked up at Archer with a smile. He rustled her red hair as Xanthe finished drinking.

The vampire looked at him with narrowed eyes as she wiped the blood off her lips and spoke, "Thank you for that. But that doesn't mean I'll take my eyes off you."

He nodded, "Naturally. Let's get going. I want to find the treasures."

Archer whispered to himself, "Draconis."

His draconic features appeared instantly. That's when he looked at Xanthe and asked, "Can you fly?"

Shaking her head, she looked at Archer, who responded with a smile. Stepping forward, he scooped up the vampire girl in a princess carry.

Archer started flapping his wings and took off, followed by Sera, who summoned her wings.

The two dragons flew north, looking for the abandoned castle. They flew while Xanthe kept huffing at being picked up but Archer could tell that she was actually enjoying it.

That's when he spotted a castle in the distance, he looked over to Sera and spoke. "It's not far away now, let's land and go in on foot."

Sera nodded her head and the two dragons descended, once they landed Archer let Xanthe down.

As they neared the castle, Archer used his Aura Detector and sensed more than a dozen signals.

The three moved carefully through the bushes, trying to stay hidden. The castle stood before them, old and worn.

They found a thick cluster of bushes that gave them a good view of the main entrance. Through the leaves, Archer spotted several rough-looking bandits loitering outside.

Sera turned to him and asked, "What's the plan, Arch?"

He began to think, but before he could form a plan, Xanthe rushed past him and charged at the bandits.

The bandits saw her coming and grinned, but suddenly she vanished from their sight.

In the blink of an eye, she reappeared, swiftly slashing the throat of one bandit and slicing the stomach of another.

Xanthe swiftly dispatched the bandits and stood amidst the carnage, covered in their blood.

Approaching her, Archer expressed concern, "Why did you rush off like that? What if something had happened?"

She gazed at him and retorted, "I couldn't help myself. Is that a problem?"

With a sigh, he shook his head, walking past her and entering the castle. However, upon entering, he found nothing inside.

Activating his Aura Detector, he noticed multiple signals coming towards him. Reacting quickly, he raised his wings to defend himself.

Despite his efforts, a variety of weapons struck him, including a blade that stabbed him in the lower back, eliciting a roar of pain as he cast Thunderwave.

A violet wave surged out of his body, slamming all the attackers into the walls. Archer pulled the blade from his back, feeling blood squirting out.

Glancing around, he saw some of the bandits starting to get back on their feet.

Using Blink, he swiftly finished them off, pondering how they had known they were there. Shrugging it off, he started ripping out their hearts and storing them away for later.

That's when the two girls walked in and saw the lifeless bodies. Sera hurried up to Archer, her eyes locking onto the blood patch on his shirt, and she became concerned.

But her worries eased as he turned around, smiling at her.

"Hello, my little dragon. Let's find their treasure and get out of here," he said, giving her a peck on the forehead, which brought a smile to her face.

Xanthe observed the interaction, feeling a bit miffed, though she remained silent as she had already deduced that they were attacked because of her.

With a sigh, she trailed behind the others, making an effort to remain quiet. Suddenly, Archer appeared beside her, wearing a charming smile that caught her off guard.

That's when she heard him speak, "Don't worry about it, Xanthe. I'm fine. Besides, they attacked us first, and that's what we needed to lure them out."

She looked at him with a neutral gaze before nodding. Archer smiled and led the two girls deeper into the castle.

He activated his Aura Detector and noticed a few more signals coming from below them. They moved forward until they reached a staircase leading down.

Archer led the way down the stairs, followed by the girls. As they descended, he used the Aura Detector and got two pings at the bottom.

Quickly casting Blink, he surprised the hidden bandits on the next floor and used Element Bolt to take them out, leaving them lifeless on the floor.

More bandits appeared, but Sera and Xanthe intercepted them.

Sera skillfully dodged her target's attack, using her tail to swiftly slice his legs before finishing him off with a quick decapitation.

Meanwhile, Xanthe sidestepped another bandit and swiftly impaled him through the back with her hand. Archer watched the girls and joined the fight.

He cast Blink again and activated Crown of Stars, sending orbs flying at the bandits and piercing through their bodies.

With a combination of his claws and tail, Archer took care of the remaining enemies.

The group stood amidst the fallen bandits, he began looting the hearts while the girls looked on, Sera was neutral and started cleaning her claws and Xanthe was puzzled.

She couldn't comprehend his actions and asked, "Why are you ripping out their hearts? Are you a savage?"

Archer didn't answer right away; he finished tearing out the last bandit's heart and disposed of the body. Before he could reply, Sera chimed in, "He uses them to get stronger."

Xanthe nodded, staying silent. Archer was done collecting the hearts, so he stored them in his Item Box.

He closed his eyes and counted how many he had collected so far – 54. Deciding to save them for later, he took a moment to rest.

Archer activated Aura Detection and scanned the castle and saw that it was all clear, he turned to the girls with a grin and spoke. "It's all clear girls, let's get the treasure."

He strode towards a room at the back, with the two girls watching. Sera laughed, and Xanthe shook her head in response.

Encountering a locked door, he kicked it down, and as he entered the room, he saw chests and hurriedly approached one of them.

When Archer reached the chest, he used his claws to slash the lock, causing it to drop to the floor. Popping the lid open, he found piles of gold coins inside.

His excitement grew as he laid eyes on the treasure; he loved the sight of gold and dreamed of creating a hoard beneath the treehouse.

Coming back to reality, Archer grabbed the chest and threw it into his Item Box, repeating the process with the other dozen chests.

Each one was filled with gold, gems, and other valuable items. Satisfied with his find, he glanced at the girls, who were staring at him.

Sera exclaimed first, "You're greedy, aren't you? The massive smile on your face while taking those chests says it all."

Xanthe shook her head, witnessing his greed. Archer looked at the two and sighed before replying, "Yes, I'm greedy, but it's gold we're talking about. Who wouldn't want a giant pile of it?"

Both girls simply looked at him, shaking their heads, but he paid no attention and began his way out of the castle.

As they walked outside, the weather calmed down, and the three of them returned to the road.

Chapter 225 You Were Meant To Help

The three exited the castle and continued on their journey, passing by caravans and other travelers.

As they walked, Sera initiated the conversation. "Arch, are we spending the night in the domain?"

He looked at her and nodded. "Yes, we will head back there soon."

She smiled and moved closer to him, taking hold of his hand. Archer looked down and saw her little brown hand holding onto his.

Returning the gesture, Archer smiled back, but Xanthe noticed this and huffed silently without saying anything.

The trio traveled for another couple of hours until they left behind the forest where the bandits had been.

While walking, Archer glanced up and realized it was getting dark. So, he opened a portal, and the three of them stepped through.

Once inside the treehouse, Xanthe headed to her bedroom.

Exhausted, Archer collapsed on the comfortable sofa and relaxed. Seemingly playfully, Sera jumped on him, teasingly attacking his neck and ear.

He smiled when he felt Sera holding onto him and playfully teasing him by rubbing her lower half against his leg.

As they did that, a voice was heard from behind them. "What are you two up to in the front room?"

Sera stopped her playful actions and looked up to see Ella and Teuila standing there with grins on their faces.

Archer gently lifted Sera off him, causing her to huff but laugh as he playfully poked her side, she pecked him on the cheek and jumped up.

He approached the two and greeted them with a passionate kiss. Then he asked, "How have you both been? How are your parents, Teuila?"

Teuila replied, "They are doing well. Father managed to quell the bandit outbreaks with the help of my brothers."

Archer nodded and turned to Ella. "How was your getaway?"

The little half-elf smiled as she replied. "It was good, the weather was warm which beats the rain. What have you been up to Arch?"

He smiled when he heard her answer. "Well, I got us some maids which will help the Brownies and you girls whenever you're here."

Ella's eyebrow raised and Teuila's eyes narrowed, that's when an angry voice was heard from behind the group.

They all turned around to see Nefertiti and Hemera standing there. The pink-haired princess zoned in on Archer and made her way over to him.

She stood in front of Archer, who was looking up at her with a smile. His charming expression almost made her calm down, but she quickly composed herself.

Nefertiti then asked, "Who are these maids, and have you touched them? Why are you collecting girls, Archer?"

He maintained his smile before responding, "They appeared lifeless, and something compelled me to buy them. No, I haven't touched them. You can ask them yourself."

Just as he finished speaking, Thalia and Xanthe descended the stairs and halted upon seeing the group of girls.

Thalia's initial thought was, 'They are so beautiful, but it seems he also likes darker-skinned girls.'

Xanthe narrowed her eyes and thought, 'Playboy, pervert. I knew it!'

Nefertiti turned to the twins and approached them. She stopped in front of them and inquired, "Who are you two? And why do you want to be maids for my husband?"

Thalia smiled, and Xanthe answered, "He offered to hire us as maids, and we have nowhere else to go. So here we are."

The pink-haired princess examined Xanthe closely and warned, "Don't try anything with him, you hear? I'll be keeping an eye on both of you."

Both girls nodded, and Nefertiti smiled before returning to Archer.

When she reached him, she sat on his lap and started kissing him, which led the other girls to show their disapproval.

Nefertiti ceased the kiss and whispered into his ear, "I want you tomorrow night, husband."

Archer grinned when he heard her words, his sneaky hand moved up her body to her huge boobs and gently played with them.

She was shocked but didn't stop them until Xanthe spoke in a sarcastic voice. "Sorry to disturb you master, but tomorrow can we explore your domain?"

All the girls turned their heads toward her as Teuil approached them and said, "Don't be sarcastic to our husband. He saved you, so be grateful, girl."

Xanthe looked into Teuila's ocean-blue eyes and nodded, she decided to keep quiet until she was alone with him.

After he kissed Nefertiti back, after that she got up and sat down to relax on the sofa near him. I think you should take a look at pandasnovel.com

Teuila stepped back and walked over to Archer, she leaned forward giving him a full view of her cleavage while kissing his cheek.

She stepped back and sat down next to Nefertiti who gave her a dirty look but Teuila smiled in return.

Hemera and Ella walked over to him, each giving him a kiss before sitting on separate sofas. Then, one of them asked, "So, what have you been up to while we were away?"

Archer shared everything they had been doing, and when he finished, they all nodded.

That's when Hemera spoke up. "Father sent me a message. He said the celebration will be ready in a week. Are you coming?"

He nodded and grinned, teasingly adding, "Yes, of course! Shall I be your date?"

When Hemera heard his question, her cheeks turned red, and the other girls became jealous.

Seeing this, Archer stood up, stretched, and said he was going to sleep. The group followed behind him like ducklings.

Observing the situation, the twins, Xanthe and Thalia, exchanged thoughts. Xanthe shook her head and remarked, "He's a playboy, sister. We have to keep an eye out on him."

Thalia rolled her eyes and replied, "It's clear that each girl cares for him in some way, and he seems to treat them all the same."

The two of them then made their way back to the bedroom. As they entered, they were surprised to find Archer sitting on a bed.

However, he greeted them with a smile and extended his hand toward Thalia. When she smelled his blood, she pounced on him.

She landed on top of him and took hold of his hand. Thalia started drinking his blood, making him laugh.

Archer allowed her to drink as much as she wanted. Seeing this, Xanthe got jealous, so he offered her some from his other hand.

Xanthe narrowed her eyes but stepped forward and copied her sister, starting to drink as well.

After ten minutes, Archer felt lightheaded, but he soon recovered thanks to his Regeneration kicking in.

The two sisters stopped drinking and wiped their mouths before Thalia spoke. "Thank you, master. I hope we do a good job as your maids."

Archer nodded as he stood up and opened a portal, he spoke before entering. "Goodnight girls."

He reappeared in his bedroom and saw the five girls changing into their nightgowns, Hemera was the first to speak. "We are all staying in here tonight as we have been away."

Upon hearing her, he responded with a casual shrug and a smile, then climbed into bed. He took off his shirt to get more comfortable, and as soon as he settled in, the girls eagerly piled onto him.

Ella fought Sera for a spot on his chest and won, Nefertiti and Teuila were on both shoulders while Sera and Hemera slept on his thighs.

Archer looked at this and rolled his eyes before getting comfortable. He felt like his arms were in soft clouds and he felt the Sera's twitching ears.

That's when his ears twitched when he heard Hemera already sleeping as she clung to his thigh causing him to smile.

As he settled into a comfortable position, he quickly drifted off to sleep.

However, his slumber took an unexpected turn, leaving him both excited and startled. It wasn't a nightmare; instead, it felt more like a vivid vision.

In his dream, he found himself on a hill, overlooking a city under siege. Black billowing smoke filled the air, signifying the ongoing chaos.

Suddenly, the scene shifted, transporting him to a random street in the city. There, Archer witnessed a Moon Elf fighting alongside her guards and a maid.

Her guards were struggling to hold back the wave of attackers, and despite her powerful spells raining down on the horde, it wasn't enough.

With unwavering resolve, she switched to a spear and joined the fight alongside the maid.

Archer could only watch helplessly as the woman fought bravely, but her guards fell one by one. Tragically, the maid sacrificed herself, taking a poisoned blade aimed at the woman.

In retaliation, she impaled the creature that had stabbed her maid and flung its body away. Then, she turned to the girl who was trying to get up but collapsed.

Devastated, the woman approached her fallen maid, her face lifeless as she crouched down and mumbled something that he could clearly hear for some reason.

"You were meant to help me with the girls, but now you'll never see them. It's not right. Why were they here? Where was he? He was meant to be here by now."

The woman rose to her feet, gently closing the girl's eyes. As she stood, she began to chant a spell, and the sky darkened above them.

She wildly cast spells into the swarm, causing explosions all over the place.

Chapter 226 Larissa City

Archer watched as she cast her spells while the swarm drew nearer. Suddenly, citizens emerged from nowhere, screaming in fear. "What are you doing here, Princess? Get to the palace!" he urged.

However, the Ratlings swiftly overwhelmed the citizens. Archer tried to move forward but found himself paralyzed, unable to advance. He could only continue to watch helplessly.

The swarm engulfed the princess, and she glanced back at Archer, offering a sad smile before being swallowed by the monstrous creatures.

Witnessing her fate, his heart ached, but before his brain could fully process the scene, everything changed.

When he opened his eyes again, he found himself amidst an ominous darkness, and a powerful woman's voice resonated, delivering a foreboding message.

"The moon will fall, and the sun will follow. The swarm will grow and descend upon Pluoria, the land you must protect, or history will repeat itself. Tiamat's white dragon. Go forth now!"

Suddenly, Archer woke up to see Ella's face right next to his. He gently kissed her forehead and carefully got up, returning her to bed.

Just then, a voice called out from behind him. "Where are you going, Arch? Not off to charm more girls, are you?"

He turned around to see the pink-haired princess sitting up, making her way toward him. She wrapped her arms around her neck.

Nefertiti leaned in and spoke again, "I hope you're not going to collect more girls husband."

Archer reached up and gently cupped her cheeks before turning his head to give her a kiss, and she quickly returned it.

After their kiss, he spoke, "I just had a dream about the fall of Larissa, the capital of the Lunaris Empire. A god showed me the future and a princess's death, but also gave me a warning that I could prevent it."

She sighed and asked, "Do you love me, Archer?"

Upon hearing that, he took a moment to think before replying, "I'm starting to, yes. You're growing on me, Princess."

Nefertiti smiled as she spoke, "That's better than not loving me, but one day you will."

Archer smiled when he heard and kissed her again, once they separated he spoke. "I'll be flying toward the city, I'll call for you girls when I arrive."

She nodded her head and let him stand up, he took out some clothes and put them before opening a portal.

He looked at the four sleeping girls and Nefertiti while smiling, he stepped through the portal and appeared on the same road they left earlier.

Archer looked around and whispered. "Draco."

A white light overtook him as he turned into his dragon form, he looked to the north and started flapping his wings.

He took off and started flying north, as he did that he saw plenty of Ratlings running around.

But he didn't let them go, he cast Stone Wardens and flew off leaving them behind with the order to slaughter the creatures.

The ground trembled as if awakening from a deep slumber. Massive stone figures emerged from the earth's core, their rocky forms gradually taking shape.

Formidable Stone Men towered over the battlefield, casting an ominous shadow upon the Ratlings and Rat Ogres.

With screeches of surprise and fear, the Rat-lings saw the imposing Stone Men rising from the ground.

The Rat Ogres, too, were taken aback, their beady eyes widening at the sight of these unexpected adversaries.

With an earth-shaking roar, the first Stone Man lunged forward, its enormous fists striking the ground.

A shockwave rippled through the earth, sending the Ratlings tumbling in all directions.

Another Stone Man stepped forward, its stony skin glistening in the sunlight, and swung a massive arm, smashing a group of Rat-Ogres to the side.

The Ratlings, known for their agility and speed, attempted to swarm the Stone Men, but their efforts seemed futile against the impenetrable stone skin.

Rat Ogres, being larger and more robust, charged at the Stone Men, but their attacks only chipped away at the giants' rocky surface.

Archer looked back and saw the Stone Men mercilessly butchering the creatures. He flapped his wings harder, pushing himself to fly faster.

After an hour of flying, he spotted a city in the distance, but it was surrounded by a menacing swarm. Archer descended and landed, transforming back into his humanoid form.

Upon landing, he opened a portal and called out to the girls. They emerged one by one, each wearing some form of armor.

Nefertiti and Hemera donned mage armor, consisting of leather chest pieces, shin guards, and wrist guards, complemented by reinforced capes.

Archer greeted each one with a smile, though Ella seemed curious about why he had left so early.

He gathered the girls together, casting a Cosmic Shield to protect them, unsure if the creatures were lurking nearby.

Archer then proceeded to explain everything that had transpired in the area. After hearing the details, Sera inquired about their plan. I think you should take a look at pandasnovel.com

Taking a moment to ponder, Archer came up with an idea. He opened a portal to the wyvern nest and called for a group of them to come and assist.

Ten large Wyverns emerged from the portal. Archer assigned each girl to take charge of one of them, instructing them to start clearing the swarm gathering outside the city walls.

Teuila and Ella readied their weapons, while Sera transformed into her dragon form. Nefertiti and Hemera prepared to cast their magic to support the attack.

Each girl mounted a Wyvern, and the majestic beasts took off, soaring in different directions, launching attacks on the swarm as the girls unleashed their destructive spells.

Archer watched as they flew around the approaching swarm, taking down many of them.

Then, he focused on the city gate and quietly said to himself, "Draconis."

His draconic features emerged as he flapped his wings, speeding towards the city. As he neared, his Aura Detector picked up hundreds of signals.

He flew over the city walls and entered. Archer soared through the streets, witnessing soldiers and citizens fighting Ratlings emerging from giant holes.

Hovering above, he unleashed hundreds of water Element Bolts, homing in on the creatures and piercing through them.

Seeing him in action, the soldiers cheered and fought even harder. Descending to the streets, he spotted people seeking refuge in the central part of the city.

He summoned Stone Wardens to assist and ordered them to eliminate the Ratlings and any other creatures they encountered.

The Stone Men immediately sprang into action, aiding the soldiers and citizens. While navigating through the chaos, Archer noticed a scene from his dream.

A beautiful grey-skinned elf, accompanied by a maid and guards, was making her way down the street.

Without hesitation, he flew after them but noticed Ratlings running along the rooftops. He swiftly cast Crown of Stars, which unleashed violet orbs that swiftly neutralized the creatures.

With the enemies gone, the elf woman and maid had vanished, Archer couldn't see them anywhere so shrugged.

He continued moving throughout the city, using spells like Viod Blaze and Element Bolts made of lightning to defeat anything that crossed his path.

Archer wielded a potent array of spells, including Crown of Stars, Chain Lightning, Solar Flare Barrage, and Frost Nova.

These powerful incantations easily decimated hordes of Ratlings, filling him with excitement.

He soared through the city, ridding it of the creatures. With each encounter, his excitement grew, collecting even more experience.

Upon reaching the city square, he encountered a group of soldiers battling a ferocious Rat Ogres.

Reacting swiftly, Archer beheaded one of the menacing creatures using his Cosmic Sword spell.

The soldiers were astonished to see a young boy with a confident smile standing before them. With a friendly wave, Archer reassured the soldiers, who were grateful for his unexpected help.

Continuing his aerial assault, Archer spent hours dispatching any creatures in his path as the girls patiently waited outside.

He maintained his Anti-Magic protection, effortlessly dodging random spells aimed at him.

Suddenly, his Aura Detector alerted him to a small group ahead. Before he could react, a massive boulder hurtled toward him, catching him off guard.

The collision sent Archer crashing to the ground, he was on a street that looked like a shopping district.

He sat up in the crater and looked around confused, that's when Archer spotted a small group standing at the end of the street.

There was one giant-looking Ratling wearing decent armor, and two massive Rat Ogres stood next to it.

That's when a thought crossed his mind. 'That must be a leader from the swarm.'

The leader mumbled something to the two massive creatures who soon started charging at him.

Archer sighed as he stood up and stretched his body and raised one of his hands and cast Celestial Beams at the charging monstrosities.

Each beam shot forth like dazzling lances, leaving stardust trails behind. The sky opened up as the beams streaked across the street, aiming for the oncoming creatures.

The first Celestial Beam struck the lead Rat Ogre with blinding force, causing a radiant explosion.

Shockwaves rippled through the earth, pushing back the other charging beasts. Undeterred, Archer conjured another Celestial Beam, this time targeting the Rat Ogre on the right flank.

The beam sliced through the air like a heavenly blade, leaving a trail of scintillating sparks. It hit its mark, engulfing the creature in celestial brilliance, reducing it to smoldering rubble.

Chapter 227 Frost Nova

After the spells died down, Archer noticed the creatures were still charging, their skin smoldering.

He swiftly cast Cosmic Sword, summoning the dragonslayer just as one of the creatures approached him.

Sidestepping the creature, Archer swung his sword and severed one of its arms. He didn't stop there; he continued to swing wildly.

In the midst of his battle with the first creature, another one suddenly appeared and delivered a powerful punch.

The force of the blow sent him flying into a nearby building, crashing through it, and landing hard on the other side.

As he lay on the ground, trying to shake off the daze, he summoned the Stone Wardens.

The massive Stone Men swiftly rushed forward, interposing themselves between him and the oncoming creatures.

Stone clashed with mutated flesh as groups of Stone Men piled on each beast, pummeling them into oblivion.

Struggling to get up, Archer's Regeneration activated to heal his body. Once on his feet, he conjured the Cosmic Sword again, materializing two Gladius swords in his hands.

With excitement, he charged forward, cutting down the regular Ratlings swarming around him.

Drawing upon the knowledge from his college days back on Earth, Archer expertly danced around the street, skillfully dispatching the Ratlings.

During the battle, an ominous spell struck him, but to his surprise, it had no effect and simply dissipated into nothingness.

The Ratling who cast the spell looked shocked at the unexpected outcome.

Seizing the moment, Archer turned to face the Ratling Warlock and scanned its information.

[Name: Ratling Warlock]

[Rank: B+]

Archer smiled, feeling satisfied with his knowledge of the Ratling Warlock. He then cast Blink, which only added to the Warlock's surprise as he vanished from sight.

Before the creature could react, Archer reappeared behind it and executed a swift, deadly stab through its heart. With forceful motion, he flung the lifeless body aside.

Amidst the defeated Ratlings, Archer noticed the girls making their way toward him from the other end of the street.

They fought their way through the horde to reunite with him, but as they got closer, moon elf soldiers appeared and started battling the remaining creatures.

Teuila was the first to reach him. Archer, still covered in blood, cut down a Ratling and turned to her with a smile.

She looked at him with a smile of her own and asked, "Hey husband, are you okay?"

Archer chuckled and replied, "When did you start calling me husband?"

Teuila smiled and answered, "Is there a problem? Will you not be my husband in the future?"

He nodded before saying, "There's no problem, I like it."

As they talked, the other girls joined them one by one. Sera transformed into her humanoid form and arrived at the group.

She playfully snuck up on Archer and jumped on his back, nibbling his ear.

The group laughed at the sight, but he allowed her to do it as he asked, "How is it outside the city? Is the swarm still there and where are the Wvyerns?"

They all shook their heads and told him that they went back to the domain when they entered the city.

Archer was about to speak until he spotted large boulders flying into the city. Archer moved in front of the group and cast Cosmic Shield around everyone.

As the battle raged on, the sky darkened as big boulders headed for the city. One huge boulder seemed intent on hitting Archer and the group.

Without hesitation, Archer raised his hand, casting the powerful Cosmic Shield spell to protect them.

The boulder crashed into the shimmering shield, shaking it with great force. Archer gritted his teeth, feeling the strain on his magic as the shield absorbed the impact.

The girls huddled close, knowing their safety relied on Archer's skill and strength. With unwavering focus, Archer quickly recast the spell, making it even stronger.

The boulder kept striking the shield, rocking them, but they stayed safe. The ground trembled under the relentless assault, but Archer stood firm, refusing to give in.

Boulders crashed, buildings crumbled, and people were sent flying. Archer turned to the girls and opened a portal.

"Go to the domain, and I'll call for you when the boulders stop," he said.

Understanding they could get in his way, they nodded and stepped through the portal one by one. I think you should take a look at pandasnovel.com

As Hemera entered the portal, Archer dismissed his Shield and took off. He flew through the streets but soon ascended.

That's when he saw who was throwing the boulders into the city, there were five giants standing in the distance.

He made his way toward them as he cast Azur Comet at the group, a violet light appeared in the sky as it dropped to the ground.

Without warning, the Azur Comet struck the ground with a force that shook the earth. The impact point was close to the group of giants that were menacing the city.

As the violet comet made contact, a magnificent explosion of azure sparks erupted, painting the night sky with radiant colors.

It was a breathtaking sight to behold, almost like a celestial dance of light and energy.

The shockwave from the explosion rippled through the area, pushing back the swarm of creatures, Ratlings, and Rat-Ogres alike.

The giants were thrown off balance by the immense force, stumbling back in disarray.

For a moment, time seemed to stand still as the beauty of the explosion engulfed everyone present.

The bright azure glow illuminated the entire city, momentarily casting away the shadows of war and darkness.

As the light began to fade, Archer saw the giants stagger, visibly weakened by the celestial impact.

It was a crucial moment, and he seized the opportunity as he whispered to himself. "Draco."

He quickly turned into his dragon form and started attacking the giants. Archer roared with a mighty fury, his white scales shimmering in the aftermath of the Azur Comet explosion.

The giants, disoriented and weakened, tried to regain their footing, but it was too late.

With a powerful flap of his wings, Archer lunged at the closest giant, his claws extended like deadly blades.

He slashed through the giant's thick armor with ease, tearing it to pieces. The creature bellowed in pain as its life force drained away.

Ignoring the chaos around him, Archer turned his attention to another giant. He coiled his long, muscular body and sprang forward, jaws wide open.

His sharp teeth sank into the giant's flesh, crushing bone and muscle. The giant struggled, but its massive strength was no match for the dragon's fury.

Archer swiftly moved to the next giant, using his powerful tail to knock it off balance before striking with his claws and teeth once more.

The giants were caught completely off guard, unable to comprehend the onslaught from the dragon.

With each attack, Archer's dragon form moved with incredible grace and precision, his movements were fluid, his strikes lethal, and his presence dominated the battlefield.

The other creatures in the vicinity, including the Ratlings and Rat Ogres, were terrified by the sight of the Archer tearing apart the giants with such ease.

They scattered in fear, giving him even more room to unleash his devastating assault. In the midst of the chaos, the city's defenders were in awe of the majestic display of power.

They didn't know why Archer was helping, but they were happy that he was on their side and helped deal with the creatures.

As the last giant fell, he stood amidst the wreckage, his dragon form radiating with celestial energy. The once imposing threat had been reduced to scattered body parts.

After transforming back into his humanoid form, Archer was breathing heavily, exhausted from the battle. He looked around at the aftermath of his fierce attack.

That's when he noticed Blightborns, Fiends, and Ratlings charging at him. Archer smiled as he cast Frost Nova.

A freezing wave of icy energy radiated from him, spreading outward in all directions. The temperature plummeted instantly, and a thick layer of frost covered the ground.

The incoming creatures were caught in the path of the Frost Nova. Their movements slowed as the icy chill gripped them, their skin frostbitten and their limbs stiffening.

Archer's violet eyes glowed with magic as he held the spell, freezing the creatures in place. The once frenzied swarm now stood frozen.

The city behind him seemed to hold its breath, and the silence was deafening. Archer took a moment to catch his breath, the frost dissipating from the ground, leaving behind a trail of icy beauty.

But he knew the respite would be temporary. With the creatures frozen, he had to seize this opportunity.

He took a deep breath and let out a stream of violet flames that washed over the swarm, after he did that he cast Void Blaze.

Between both flames, the creatures were burned to ashes and Archer used his draconic claws and slashed at many ice statues.

They crumbled into nothingness as the battlefield went quiet as the remaining creatures tried to flee.

Chapter 228 Your Majesty, He's Returned

Archer didn't let them flee but cast Celestial Arrows and Element Bolts made from Lightning and sent them after the creatures.

Each spell found its mark and wiped out the remaining swarm, that's when he opened a portal and the five girls walked out.

They looked around and saw hundreds of bodies and chunks of ice all over the place. Ella approached Archer.

When Ella got closer she spoke to him. "Arch, are you okay? Why didn't you call us sooner? We've been worried."

The other girls nodded their heads when they heard the half-elf's question, he looked at them and spoke.

"Sorry you lot, I got carried away when I saw the giants but they all started to run in the same direction."

That was when the nervous Hemera spoke up. "They were fleeing west towards the Republic of Delphosia and three kingdoms."

Archer nodded and whispered, "Draco."

A bright light blinded the Lunarian soldiers, but the girls managed to cover their eyes as Archer returned to his dragon form and lowered his body.

They climbed up on his back while Sera also transformed into her dragon form, eager to fly with him. Once all four girls were on board, Archer flapped his wings and took off.

Soaring into the sky, Archer flew westward, while the girls rested on his back. Sera flew around him, playfully nipping at his long neck.

He tried to nibble her back, but she skillfully dodged his large head, then landed on him and rubbed her head against his affectionately.

[The Lunarides Families POV]

Hecate and her maid, Eleni, managed to make it back to the palace, thanks to the timely intervention of a white-haired boy.

Upon entering, Eleni noticed Hecate's distant and contemplative demeanor. Gently tapping the Moon Elf, Eleni brought her back to reality, even though Hecate mumbled something incoherent.

With excitement in her voice, Hecate shared, "It was him, Eleni! It wasn't just a dream; it was real!"

As they walked further into the palace, their progress was interrupted by the head maid, who conveyed the summons from the princess's father: "Princess, your father has summoned all family members to the dining hall."

Acknowledging the message, Hecate turned and briskly made her way toward the hall. Eleni couldn't help but notice that her mood seemed exceptionally good.

Upon entering the hall, Hecate found her parents and all her siblings present. While some siblings looked concerned, others appeared unfazed.

Hecate took her seat at the end of the table, with Eleni standing off to the side.

At that moment, Emperor Menelaus Lunarides, Hecate's father, spoke, "The battle sounds like it's calming down. I'm just waiting for the General to bring us news."

The children nodded in agreement, but the first Empress, Gorgo Lunarides, inquired, "Do we know who's attacking the city? They would have to be incredibly brave to attack Larissa so boldly."

Menelaus nodded in response to his first wife's question, "Yes, Gorgo, they are bold. They are attacking both the Solarians and us simultaneously. According to the intelligence reports, they have defeated the invaders with the aid of a star dragon."

As he took a sip of his wine, all eyes remained fixed on him, eager to hear more.

The emperor continued. "These creatures are known as the swarm, and they have emerged all over Mediterra. The Western Kingdoms are falling one by one to their relentless assault. However, the Delphosians managed to halt their advance at the Astraios River."

When Menelaus mentioned a star dragon, everyone's eyes widened. Hecate smiled because she knew the dragon he was talking about and the little dragons he gifted her.

Seeing her smile, her eldest sister the first princess Acantha spoke, "Why are you smiling, witch? Did you have another 'vision' of our doom?"

Hecate gazed at the black-haired girl, her bright red eyes shining. "He will not choose you," she replied.

Confused, the older girl looked on until her second brother intervened, saying, "Leave her alone, Acantha. You don't always have to bother her."

The youngest princess chimed in, "Agesilaus, she has a point. Hecate's visions may seem like a lie, but I have a feeling they were the truth. However, things wouldn't have gotten that bad."

Hecate, hearing this, spoke again, "It's because he got involved. The swarm would have overwhelmed us from the south, but he put a stop to it."

As she stopped, her second mother, Hyacinthia, teased, "If he doesn't pick your big sister, who's he gonna choose? A witch with crazy visions of the future like you?" I think you should take a look at pandorasnovel.com

Hecate looked at the older woman and said, "He will choose who he chooses; fate will decide. Maybe it's me, maybe it's Chryseis or Lampito."

Just as Menelaus was about to speak, they heard a hurried knock on the door. He then called out, "Come in!"

The empire's top General rushed in and knelt before the Emperor. He reported, "Your Majesty, the creatures are continuing to appear and attack from all directions."

He went on to provide all the details of the ongoing events, prompting Menelaus to contemplate a plan to deal with the situation.

As the General finished informing him, another knock was heard. Menelaus looked towards the door and allowed them to enter.

The Royal Guard captain rushed in and knelt before speaking, "Your Majesty, the swarm is dying off, thanks to a stranger's help and his magic."

Menelaus eyes widened and quickly asked, "Who's this stranger?"

The guard quickly replied, "It's a young boy with dragon wings and claws, his flying around the city taking out many creatures while his Stone Men helped our troops."

Everyone got excited upon learning they would receive the same help as the Solarians. Menelaus nodded his head and said, "Where is this boy now? He will be rewarded."

The guard was about to reply, but they suddenly heard large crashes, and the palace shield started making weird noises.

The whole family rushed to the balcony and looked out over Larissa. They saw massive giants throwing boulders that rained down on the city.

That's when they saw something flying toward them and a bright light appeared. After the light faded a large white dragon could be seen.

It charged into the giants and started butchering them, they could see things blood from where they were.

After fighting for a while the dragon vanished then reappeared shortly after and took off into the distance.

Hecate watched all this and knew it was him, the boy she longed to meet. She only had to wait a little while later before he comes to get her.

Three weeks passed and there was no news from the white dragon, only that he appeared in the Solarian capital Larissa.

Emperor Menelaus sat in the palace garden with his advisor, a young man with grey skin and black hair.

"Your majesty, the Solarians have engaged Princess Hemera Helios to the dragon. We should do the same and offer Princess Acantha as his bride," the advisor suggested.

After a brief pause, the advisor continued, "If one of our princesses marries the dragon, it will bring together the Sun Elves and us. This unity will enable us to rule over half of Mediterra together, rather than facing constant opposition."

Menelaus nodded in agreement, impressed with Tomos' suggestion. "Yes, that's a great idea, Tomos. When we manage to track him down, we shall offer Acantha as his bride."

However, Tomos couldn't ignore the rumors circulating within the palace. "Your Majesty, what if the third Princess's dreams are true? What if he chooses her?"

Upon hearing this, the Emperor sighed, doubting such a possibility. "I don't think he will. In Mediterra, she's known as a witch due to her cursed grey hair and red eyes, unlike other Moon Elves who have dark hair and eyes."

The Emperor despised the fact that his third daughter bore these cursed features, prompting him to inquire about the dragon. "What can you tell me about this dragon?"

Tomos retrieved a folder from his storage rings and handed it to Menelaus. "We don't have much information, only what we gathered from the Solarian and Zenian traders. He's a young boy, probably around 16-17 years old, traveling with a group of girls. which includes three princesses, a maid, and a dragon girl."

This news confused Menelaus, and he questioned further. "Which three princesses has he got? How many kingdoms has he wandered into?"

The advisor swiftly replied, "The three girls are Teuila Aquaria, Nefertiti Sharifi, and Hemera Helios. Their engagement was announced a week ago. The first two girls are from the Aquaria kingdom and Zenia Empire in the Southlands, but there is no information about the other two young women."

Taking in the details, Menelaus pondered for a moment before asking, "What is the boy like?"

Tomos promptly responded, "He's greedy and aloof, but kindhearted. Moreover, he enjoys 'Bandit Hunting' as a pastime, but instead of helping the victims, he merely kills the bandits and keeps their treasure for himself."

Just as the Emperor was about to talk the Captain of the royal guards approached and kneeled as he spoke. "Your Majesty, he's returned and is at the southern gate."

Chapter 229 Earthquake

Archer soared westward for several hours, his keen eyes scanning the landscape below.

However, to his annoyance, he found that the scenery remained unchanging, just as it had been when he first took flight.

They flew over cities, towns, and small villages causing panic, while he flew Archer decided to check his status.

'Status.'

[Experience: 3200/20000]

[Level Up: 207>254]

[SP: 30>114]

[Hp: 6000>6500]

[Mana: 28150>30150]

[Strength: 4850>5350]

[Constitution: 4750>5250]

[Stamina: 4900>5400]

[Charisma: 4300>4800]

[Intelligence: 4460>4960]

[Anti-Magic: 0>1]

[Crown of Stars: 2>3]

[Chain Lightning: 1>2]

[Solar Flare Barrage: 1>2]

[Frost Nova: 0>2]

[Stone Warden: 2>3]

[Azur Comet: 0>1]

[Mana Manipulation: 0>1]

[Aura Detector: 5>6]

When he saw his status he decided to spend the points after seeing if the girls were okay, Archer turned his head and saw them lazying around chatting.

Sera was laying on his neck stretched out like a cat, he turned his head back and started upgrading his stats.

He put twenty points into each stat apart from Constitution and Charisma which got seven each.

[SP: 114>0]

[Hp: 6500>6700]

[Mana: 30150>30750]

[Strength: 5350>5550]

[Constitution: 5250>5320]

[Stamina: 5400>5600]

[Charisma: 4800>4870]

[Intelligence: 4960>5160]

Archer calculated that he had earned 1,841,200 experience points from all the kills and felt pleased with his progress.

Just then, his Dragon Senses kicked in, and he swiftly cast the Cosmic Shield around the girls as boulders hit him with incredible speed.

Archer was knocked off course by the large boulders and began hurtling towards the ground.

In a swift, instinctive motion, he spun his body, positioning himself to shield the five girls with his wings, protecting them from danger as they fell.

The impact was earth-shattering, creating a massive crater, dust, and smoke engulfed the area.

Sera crawled out from under Archer's limp wings, shaking her head as she surveyed their surroundings, realizing they were in a deep hole.

The other girls stood up one by one, and Sera transformed back into her humanoid form, approaching Archer's head.

They noticed that he was unconscious but still breathing, and saw that his wings were damaged.

Some of his scales were cracked, and a few of his horns had snapped off. Sera walked to his side trying to wake him up.

But that soon changed as he opened his eyes and stared at her as he raised his head and shook it.

Archer saw that he was at the bottom of a crater, he saw the girls were okay and sent them all back to the domain as his Aura Detector started to warn him.

The girls were angry but knew they stood no chance with the number of giants coming their way, he quickly climbed out of the crater when they were gone.

As he did a giant closed in on him, Archer took a deep breath and fired a dragon's breath into its chest.

With a resounding thud, the creature crumbled to the ground, but in its place emerged more adversaries.

Undeterred, Archer charged ahead, displaying the agility of a large cat, leaping and clawing at the giants with remarkable speed and grace as he took many of the creatures out.

He spent over a week hunting down giants and creatures of the swarm until he came across a large stone passageway in the western mountains.

Archer had been going back to the domain every night to see the girls, and initially, their anger toward him was understandable.

However, thanks to Hemera's defense of him, they eventually calmed down and became more understanding.

She managed to convince them that he was doing it for their own safety, the first time he returned to the domain each girl gave him a kiss and pampered him.

He stood in his humanoid form at the cave entrance, flanked by Hemera and Teuila, while the other three girls were back in the domain, helping out there.

Hemera spoke, "I've never heard of a large cave like this in the western region before. Do you think this is where the giants came from?"

Teuila nodded and added, "We have nothing like this in the south. Father would have sent a message. But the entrance is big enough to fit them."

Archer remained silent, and the two girls noticed his demeanor, prompting Hemera to ask, "What's on your mind, Arch?"

He replied, avoiding direct eye contact, "I'm getting an eerie feeling from the tunnel. There seems to be a large space beyond it."

At that moment, several pings emanated from the tunnel, and Archer swiftly began casting Celestial Arrows.

Like homing missiles, the arrows zoomed toward the odd-looking Ratlings and Rat Orges, bringing them down like sacks of rice.

The two girls were astonished, Teuila looked at him and inquired, "How did you know they were coming?"

Archer glanced at his ocean princess and replied, "I have a skill that allows me to pinpoint where they are coming from."

Just as he was about to proceed toward the entrance, an idea struck him, and he instructed the girls to wait while he opened a portal and jumped into it.

Archer reappeared in the library and made his way to the Earth Magic section, pulling out a book he remembered buying.

After finding the book he was searching for, he read the title, "Earthquake."

He returned from the portal and started reading the spellbook. After a couple of hours, he successfully mastered the spell.

[Earthquake learned]

With a smile, Archer addressed the girls, saying, "Follow me, ladies. Today, we will deal with this threat and then head to Hemera's home to celebrate."

They nodded in unison and began walking down the tunnel, with Archer and Hemera continuously casting spells to take out the numerous creatures that came their way.

Ratlings, Rat Ogres, Blightborns, and Fiends were swiftly cut down, and Teuila skillfully handled any sneaky assailants that attempted to approach them.

For several hours, the trio continued this relentless assault. Archer employed a combination of Celestial Arrows and Crown of Stars, effectively eliminating the assassin-like Ratlings.

The girls contributed to the fight as well, with Hemera's sun magic burning through dozens of creatures.

Eventually, they reached a vast open space deep within the earth, with dark tunnels extending into the distance.

The ground trembled under the onslaught of more incoming creatures, causing Archer's Aura Detector to go haywire.

To counter the swarm, he unleashed a barrage of spells. Celestial Beams, Celestial Arrows, Frost Novas, and Eldritch Blasts, all aimed at the approaching horde.

Hundreds of creatures were killed in the wake of his powerful magic. Teuila dutifully protected the two as their spells caused explosions, further decimating their foes.

He cast Stone Wardens, and the formidable Stone Men emerged, rushing into the heart of the battle with their massive arms swinging forcefully, sweeping away the swarm.

Amidst Archer and Hemera's relentless barrage of spells, explosions continued to erupt all over the battlefield, creating a chaotic scene of immense power.

They noticed even more creatures pouring out of the other tunnels, Archer opened up a portal and told the girls to enter.

The two of them reluctantly agreed and entered, when they did he turned to the incoming creatures and cast Void Blaze.

It washed over the swarm and burned them to ashes, he quickly cast Thunderwave as a few creatures lunged at him.

"Thunderwave" Archer said, and a powerful shockwave rippled through the cavern, knocking the creatures away in all directions.

In a swift move, he cast a new spell, "Earthquake!" The ground trembled and quaked beneath him, and the entire cave shook violently.

Rocks and stalactites fell from the ceiling, and cracks spread across the ground. The creature's angry roars turned into terrified cries as they struggled to stay on their feet.

Some were swallowed by the collapsing ground, while others were crushed by falling debris. The once endless swarm was now scattered and weakened.

Archer watched as chunks of rocks and stalactites started to collapse, sealing off all the dark tunnels that led into the heart of the cavern.

The cave trembled with each resounding crash as tunnels collapsed one after another.

Terrified cries of creatures filled the air, growing louder as they realized their escape routes were disappearing rapidly.

The once formidable horde was now trapped, With the cave on the brink of destruction, Archer knew he had to act swiftly.

With swiftness, he cast Gate, and a shimmering portal materialized before him. Without hesitation, Archer leaped through just as the final tunnel collapsed.

The quake's force sent shockwaves through the portal, but he emerged unscathed on the other side.

Standing outside the cave, Archer witnessed the mountain trembling with the aftershocks of the collapse.

The once-dark entrance to the cavern was now buried beneath tons of rubble, forever sealing the creatures within.

But Archer wasn't finished. He chanted, casting Meteor Swarm, and fiery rocks fell from the heavens, visible for miles around.

As they plummeted, he whispered to himself, "Draconis."

His wings appeared, and he swiftly took off, flying away from the incoming explosion, which arrived seconds later.

The shockwave enveloped him and sent him crashing to the ground, only coming to a stop when he used his claws to come to a stop.

Chapter 230 Dreams Of The Future

Archer sat up, coughing as dust filled the air around him. He scanned the area, but it didn't pick up anything.

He finally stood up and started looking around, he was surprised to find the mountain that once stood in front of him had disappeared.

Ignoring the incident, he shrugged it off and made up his mind to open a portal to the domain, stepping through it.

As Archer entered the portal, he found the girls gathered together, with Hemera and Teuila explaining the recent events.

All five of them turned to him, and before he knew it, Sera had lunged at him, latching onto him and playfully biting his ear, which made him laugh.

After she had her fun and jumped off him, the rest of the girls greeted him with a hug and a kiss.

They all sat down, and Ella asked, "Arch, what happened?"

Sitting with them and getting comfortable, he began to explain what had transpired. While he was talking, Hemera walked past him, prompting him to grab her and pull her onto his lap.

Archer started kissing her beautiful brown neck but noticed she tensed up like a scared rabbit. Concerned, he stopped and asked, "Are you okay?"

Hemera nodded with a small smile. "I'm fine, you just caught me off guard. Are we still going back to Ravenna in the morning?"

He nodded, "Yes, we will leave early in the morning."

Archer was about to continue the conversation, but Nefertiti interjected, "I need you to come to my academy. A new young master is trying to court me, but he won't listen. I want you to introduce yourself."

He turned his attention to the pink-haired girl and smiled. "Okay, we will do it in a few days."

Nefertiti smiled as she responded, "Thank you, husband."

Archer's smile brightened the moment, but fatigue gradually crept upon him.

Ella observed his weariness and responded with a warm smile, proposing to the other girls, "Why don't we prepare some food for him while he takes a rest? He must be exhausted."

Everyone agreed and got to work. Teuila lay on the sofa, engrossed in reading a spellbook. Hemera went to the library to explore it even more.

Sera accompanied Ella to help with the cooking, while Nefertiti studied a tome she had obtained from her academy.

Archer lay sprawled on the cozy sofa, his steady breathing indicating a peaceful slumber.

The events of the day had undoubtedly taken a toll on him, and he had dozed off while the others worked around him.

Ella, with her warm smile and caring nature, noticed the opportunity to rouse him gently.

She approached the sofa with a soft tread, not wanting to startle him. As she stood beside Archer, she reached out and gently shook his shoulder.

"Arch," she whispered, "wake up. The food is ready."

As he stirred, Archer's eyelids fluttered, gently nudging him awake from his slumber.

Blinking several times, he endeavored to acclimate himself to the surrounding light and make sense of his environment.

Finally, his gaze settled on Ella, and a drowsy smile tugged at the corners of his lips. "Mmm, Ella," he mumbled, his voice still laced with sleep. "Is it time to eat already?"

Her nod and warm smile encouraged Archer, who rose from his restful position, stretching his limbs as he made his way toward the table.

After they finished eating, he got up and made his way to bed. Before he started making his way to bed, he kissed each girl goodbye.

They watched him walk away like a zombie and smiled as Archer entered the bedroom, stripped down, and fell onto the bed.

As Archer dozed off once more, he soon found himself drifting into another dream. When he finally awakened, he discovered himself in a beautifully adorned room.

Initially, nothing seemed out of the ordinary, but as he glanced around, he noticed a tuft of grey hair peeking out from beneath the sheets, catching his attention.

As he approached the sleeping person, he gently lifted the sheet and was taken aback by the sight of a breathtaking Moon Elf woman sleeping there.

She had beautiful silver hair and long elf ears that twitched as she slept, she wore a black nightgown that added to her allure.

Archer couldn't help but be intrigued by her smooth, blemish-free grey skin. He wondered where she came from but felt a strange connection with her.

Suddenly, two screams echoed from outside the room, and two little girls rushed in, giving Archer a heart attack as they shouted "Mater!"

"Mater! Mater, wake up."

The girls stopped running when they saw Archer and their faces lit up with huge smiles as they lunged at him.

The two little girls flew through the air and latched onto him. Their actions reminded him of Sera's antics.

It didn't take long for him to realize that these two were his and the sleeping woman's children.

Both of them had grey hair and grey skin, but one of the girls had violet eyes, while the other had red. They both had two little white horns and purple scales on their bodies.

He looked at the two with a smile and felt a strong love for the two fairy-looking girls. All three of them heard rustling and turned their heads.

The woman sat up as she rubbed her eyes and smiled when she spotted them. The girls jumped off him and rushed over to her.

They jumped on her, and Archer noticed that the girl's behavior didn't bother the woman, who had a beautiful smile on her face as she cuddled the two adorable girls.

As Archer's gaze lingered on the grey hair, a soft knock echoed through the room, and the door slowly creaked open.

In walked another woman, her hand gently clasped by a little girl with short blonde hair and captivating violet eyes.

The little girl's eyes lit up as she took in the scene before her, and she greeted the sight with an innocent smile.

Before she could do anything, the scene changed to another bedroom. There, a Moon Elf sat on the balcony, overlooking what looked like Larissa City.

She appeared sad, but then he saw himself landing on the balcony, instantly bringing a smile to her face as she lunged at him with joy.

The woman hugged him tightly, showering him with kisses. Archer observed the scene unfolding until it changed again.

He found himself drawn into a grand hall, where a family eagerly awaited to greet him. In the hall stood an older Moon Elf man and three women, along with their three sons and five daughters.

Just as the man was about to speak he woke up, Archer was looking up at the ceiling. He felt a weight on him and found Sera sleeping on his chest.

Ella and Hemera had their heads on his shoulders, and he felt Nefertiti and Teuila using his lower half.

Smiling as he felt them clinging to him, but he started to maneuver himself out of bed while trying not to wake them up.

He cast Blink and reappeared in the middle of the room, Archer made his way out onto the balcony to relax.

The cool morning breeze brushed against his face as Archer leaned against the railing, gazing out at the vast expanse of his domain.

The landscape spread before him, a tapestry of beauty and wonders. Verdant forests, rolling hills, and pristine lakes adorned the view.

In the distance, he could see the villages and towns, bustling with life as the dragonkin began their day.

Smoke rose lazily from chimneys, and the sound of morning greetings echoed through the air.

From his vantage point, Archer's gaze swept over the domain, from the majestic mountains on one side to the glistening sea on the other.

He cherished this place, a sanctuary for both him and his girls. As the morning sun climbed higher, the colors of the landscape intensified, and the beauty unfolded before his eyes.

Archer took a deep breath, savoring the crisp air and the tranquility of the moment.

He heard birds chirping and the distant hum of life below filled his senses, bringing a sense of serenity that eased the weariness from the battles of the previous day.

Time seemed to stand still as he stood there, lost in thought. The worries of the world outside faded away, replaced by a sense of connection with his magical realm.

He took a seat, laid back, and began to recall the two little girls from his dreams. He wondered if this was Tiamat's doing, but soon stopped dwelling on it.

Archer took out some chocolate and started eating, enjoying the cool and breezy weather and the view.

After getting some alone time, he heard footsteps approaching the door, that's when Nefertiti walked out onto the balcony.

She wore a white robe over her nightgown. When he saw the pink-haired princess, he smiled as she approached him.

"Morning, Nefi. How are you this morning?" Archer greeted her.

She smiled in response and sat on his lap, cuddling up to him. Archer ran his fingers up her smooth back.

"My husband, thank you for accepting me and not pushing me away when you could have," Nefertiti spoke gratefully.

Archer smiled warmly at her words and squeezed her tight, replying, "I'd never push my beautiful pink princess away. You already mean a lot to me."

