

Chapter 621 To Meet The Fowler Family Officially! (Part.)

But Waylen replied with a smile, "She and Marcus are having a discussion downstairs. Actually, we came to see Matthew. I hope we've not disturbed you in any way?"

Since they had come to see their grandson, Julie had no reason to stop them.

She quickly stepped aside and invited them in. "Please come in. You're most welcome. The apartment is rather small, but please do feel at home."

After welcoming them in, Julie fumbled in the cabinet for the best tea, which was specially reserved for Marcus. While she was wondering what to do next, Matthew suddenly ran out of the bedroom in his pajamas.

Waylen was looking around the apartment when the little boy suddenly bumped into him and grabbed his legs tightly.

This instantly melted Waylen's heart. He really wanted to hug the cute little thing but he didn't want to frighten the boy, so he bent down and gently caressed his face.

Matthew, on the other hand, was quite curious. He looked at Waylen and then at Rena.

Rena loved the child the moment she saw him.

She knelt down on the floor and cradled his face in her hands. The shape of his face strongly resembled Melissa's, but his facial features were so identical to that of Marcus. She could tell when Matthew got older, he would certainly look like his father more. With this thought in her mind, she gave him a kiss on the cheek and said, "What a lovely boy you are! He's such a sweet kid, Waylen."

Waylen also kissed the child and said in a proud voice, "After all, he's a member of the Fowler family."

Rena rolled her eyes at him but didn't bother to argue with him at all.

She picked Matthew up and then sat him down on the sofa. Then she turned to Julie to ask whether the child had had dinner yet.

"Yes, yes!" Julie hurriedly replied. "He had some pork ribs. That's his favorite dish."

Waylen felt Julie had done a great job in taking care of the child and his mother.

He wanted to thank her properly for all she had done, but he then changed his mind and kept quiet.

After a while, he stole a glance at Rena who was sitting quietly with Matthew on the sofa.

He didn't want to be too forward. No matter how smart he was, he knew that his wife was smarter, and she probably had a better idea on how to handle the current situation.

Of course, their main aim was to take Matthew back with them.

But at the moment, that did not seem very possible. Obviously, Marcus and Melissa were still not reconciled. Hence, Waylen and Rena couldn't just snatch the little boy from Melissa by force.

Meanwhile, Julie wasn't sure about their plans for Matthew and hesitated to voice out her concerns.

Waylen bent down again and touched Matthew's head affectionately as he mused out loud, "It'd be better to leave Marcus and Melissa settle things on their own. After all, it's not appropriate for us to get involved in the affairs of a couple. However, this apartment is way too small for four people to live in. How could Marcus be so careless? He needs to arrange a bigger house. I will talk to him about it later."

"Exactly! It's too crowded for four people," Rena concurred.

"I'm glad you can see what I mean," Waylen said in satisfaction. "In fact, we need to look for somewhere better. Moreover, the young couple should have some private space of their own. Let's talk about it later and make sure we arrange everything as quickly as possible."

Julie was surprised to hear them discussing this issue.

She was not sure whether Waylen and Rena had any clue about the situation on ground.

Marcus and Melissa hadn't seen each other for three years. Even though they had a child together, it would take some time before they would be able to find a way to get along with each other again. In fact, would Melissa even agree with the idea in the first place?

By now, Waylen had carried Matthew in his arms like a baby.

"Matthew, would you like to see Daddy every day?" he asked with a wide smile.

Though he was young, Matthew knew that Waylen and Rena were members of his family. He nodded enthusiastically and declared, "I love Daddy!"

It was right at this time that Melissa came in with Marcus following right behind her.

Hence, they both heard what Matthew said.

With a languid smile on his face, Marcus took off his overcoat and put it on the rack, as if he was at his own place. Then, he changed into a pair of slippers and even fetched another pair for Melissa.

Melissa was rendered speechless by this action.

Marcus then went over to carry Matthew in his arms. "Silly boy!" he said playfully and gave him a kiss on his cheek.

For the past few years, Matthew had been living with Melissa and Julie.

Even though they did their best in taking good care of him, he never really did have a father figure in his life. The little guy held Marcus shyly and rested his head on his shoulder. Marcus, with his eyes filled with love for his son, patted him gently on the back.

Waylen and Rena were touched by this scene.

Their son was indeed a father!

"Have some tea, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler," Julie said in a low voice, breaking the silence in the room.

But Waylen didn't care for tea. He just wanted to hold his grandson!

Marcus glanced at his father and handed Matthew back to him. Then he went to the kitchen and came back with a bowl of rice and some soup. Putting them on the table, he said casually, "Help yourselves! I am going to grab a bite first!"

Hearing that, Waylen and Rena were shocked.

After all, Marcus had been very picky since he was a child. When did he become so down-to-earth?
