

Revenge On Love Rats After Rebirth by Olivia Marsh Chapter 1337 Selena'S Decision

Chapter 1337 Selena's Decision

The last sentence successfully made Vivian's face turn pale and Freddie's face even more unpleasant. Even the other people in the research institute looked at Selena with surprise, as Selena had always worked alone before. This caused many people to focus their attention on her during the power struggle in the research institute, sometimes neglecting Osvaldo.

It was the first time Selena had openly relied on Osvaldo's power to bully others. This made those who were accustomed to her strong style, as Miss Turner, feel uncomfortable.

Leia happily recorded the scene and sent it to Osvaldo.

If Madam Selena had said that she wanted the young master to support her, how could he be absent?

As someone who was immediately taken out by his girlfriend during a crisis, the young master of their family was also very aggrieved...

Now that he had a rare opportunity, he naturally couldn't let it pass!

Seeing that the Shaw siblings were so angry that they couldn't speak, and that the meeting time had arrived, Selena smiled elegantly and sat down next to Patrick.

Diego, as the visible leader of the research institute, was the first to stand up and interrupt the tense atmosphere between the Shaw family and the Turner family.

He looked at Selena and said loudly, "Thanks to everyone's support back then, I was fortunate enough to take this position after Mr. Turner left. After so many years... I am getting old and, due to physical issues, it is obvious that I am no longer suitable for continuing as the director of this institute."

His gaze fell on Selena, looking at the beautiful girl's face, thinking that she was Nevaeh and Callum's daughter, as well as the genius of Lab 717.

Diego's face showed relief, and he spoke in a warm tone, "The research institute was originally supported by the Turner family, and it was because all of the Turner family's male heirs died on duty and Patrick was too young to take control of the institute that we, the old folks, took over the position temporarily."

"Now that Oscar has returned, Patrick has grown up, and Callumo's daughter has inherited everything from him and become the physics genius of Lab 717. It's time to return this research institute to them."

Ignoring the many gloomy and agitated gazes in the room, Diego looked hopefully at Selena and said, "Selena, do you want to take over as the director of the research institute, inherit the wishes of your father, your grandfather, and countless ancestors of the Turner family, and protect this research institute, all the researchers here, and H Country's scientific research cause?"

Amidst the watching eyes of the public, Selena calmly stood up, smiling as she faced the intimidating gaze of the Shaw family. "Of course, this research institute is the life's work of my father and grandfather, and I will protect it well. I promise in the name of Lab 717 that as long as I am here in the research institute, H Country's scientific research cause will always be ahead of other countries."

In the last sentence, Selena's words were both domineering and elegant.

However, once it was known that she was the super genius of Lab 717, no one dared to question her statement.

After all, the big shots of Lab 717 were evident in their regard for Selena.

At this point, the group couldn't help but curse Constance.

If it wasn't for that woman being meddlesome and arresting Selena, Selena's identity as a super genius of Lab 717 would not have been revealed, and things would not have come to this point today.

After Selena finished speaking, Diego immediately laughed heartily and said, "Good!"

After he finished laughing, he looked at the crowd and said, "I recommend Selena as the next dean of the institute. Does anyone have any objections?"

Not to mention that Diego has been away from the institute for many years, but even as the current dean, he does not have the right to directly appoint the next dean.

Therefore, no one was in a hurry when Diego announced his decision.

However, immediately after Diego asked this question, a large group of voices opposing the decision emerged.

"I object! Although Miss Turner is gifted in scientific research, she is too young. A nineteen-year-old girl becoming the dean of the institute... if this were to spread throughout H Country's research community, we would become a laughing stock!"

"Diego, your decision is too absurd. Although Miss Turner is gifted, her qualifications are there, she has only been in the institute for half a year!"

"She climbed from the lowest level to the position of dean in just six months. How can we convince others of this?"

"I also object! Diego, you're joking with the future of the institute! Miss Turner has just become the head of the scientific research department, and now she is the dean of the institute. With this kind of speed, how do you think other people who have contributed to the institute for so many years will feel?"

Selena listened to those opposing voices without changing her expression. After all, this situation could be predicted in advance.

Her qualifications were too shallow, and her promotion was too fast, which was a fact and a disadvantage.

It was entirely normal for these people to object. But Selena didn't take these opposing voices to heart. She was confident that she could suppress these voices with her strength. What Selena really cared about was-

Selena's gaze shifted from the motionless Freddie sitting across from her to Christ.

Christ seemed to know Selena was looking at him, and he met her gaze with a smile.

The meaning of that smile was unclear.

Selena furrowed her brows and looked away.

After the opposing voices had died down, Diego spoke up again, "I have considered the questions you all have raised, but I believe they can all be overcome."

"Although Selena is young, she is calm and methodical in everything she does, as can be seen from her previous actions."

"I don't think this should be a reason to oppose her."

"And as for the issue of her rising too quickly, I think everyone has overlooked something."

"The research institute belongs to the Turner family, and now it has returned to its rightful owner."

"Furthermore, Miss Turner's research abilities are among the best in H Country and even the world."

"We should trust her. As Lady Nevaeh and Mr. Turner's daughter, she can lead H Country's research to new heights!"

Diego's intention was clear. He wanted to push Selena into a leadership position and return the research institute's sovereignty to the Turner family's descendants.

Many people who knew Diego's character were not surprised by this outcome.

Although Diego had been away from the country for many years, many people had not forgotten that he was once promoted by Wilfred.
