

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6536-The new alliance's main hall was also thrown into a frenzy.

Yaquis, leader of the Yaquis Sect and the New Alliance, sat upon a gleaming chair, his expression grave as he surveyed the leaders of various sects.

"Has any of your sects been training up beast tamer or summoner? Why have I not been informed about it?"

The powerhouses present exchanged uneasy gazes and lowered their heads in fear.

They had experienced Yaquis's ruthless methods and the consequences of his wrath before. His questioning might end with someone losing their life, hence they were afraid to answer him.

Observing their reticence, Yaquis' said coldly, "Xantoni, Lamuel, and Tace."

At his command, three formidable figures emerged from the crowd, their expressions betraying a palpable sense of unease.

Fixing them with a piercing gaze, Yaquis questioned, "Your sects hold dominion over the Xyndaros Genesis World and the Sanctum Genesis World. What are your thoughts on this matter?"

The three exchanged wary glances, then knelt.

Tace immediately replied, "Sir, you're well aware of our dynasty's strength. We can't train up a beast tamer or summoner at the Quasi Daeclon Rank."

Lamuel raised his head and said, "Our sect focuses primarily on curses. We shun the practice of beasttaming and summoning. If you don't believe me, feel free to send inspectors to verify."

Xantoni quickly explained as well, "In Tempestara, training beast tamers and summoners is beyond our capabilities."

After hearing their earnest responses, Yaquis narrowed his eyes thoughtfully and said, "I was hoping it would've been a talent under your command."

Yaquis stood up and commanded, "You three are to investigate this matter. If there is indeed a summoner or beast tamer who has reached the Quasi Daeclon Rank, you must bring him to us. We can't let him fall into Xachary or Gladwin's hands.

"If the individual proves obstinate, then eliminate him without any hesitation. We can't let them stand in our way."

Then, Yaquis looked toward a young man standing nearby and said, "Accompany them, Nandos. No expense should be spared to recruit him to our side."

Nandos was momentarily taken aback. He nervously scratched his cheek and asked, "Are you suggesting I front a mysterious and powerful individual capable of calling forth the flying spirit beasts of the Genesis World, Dad?"

Yaquis's expression darkened. He reprimanded, "You are the heir to the Yaquis Sect, Nandos! You are destined to lead our sect in the future. Should I be the one to go?"

Confronted with his father's order Nandos quivered, then swiftly turned and left the hall.

Yaquis watched his son retreat in frustration and resignation. After suffering under James' hands, Nandos fell into Xachary's clutches and endured torment, even coming close to death. As a result, he became timid and devoid of ambition.

Nevertheless, the present circumstances demanded that Nandos be trained and prepared as a leader. Otherwise, the Yaquis Sect and New Alliance would fall into an outsider's hands.

On the border between Xyndaros Genesis World and Kunyunt Genesis World, a vast multitude of flying spirit beasts continued to gather from different directions, heeding Yukha's summons, and filling the entire void.

The spectacle unfolding before them was nothing short of breathtaking, leaving Jacopo and Xainte, who stood behind James, utterly awestruck.

They had thought they had a grasp on the capabilities of Biefren, but now it was apparent that they knew very little.

His pet alone had triggered the gathering of countless flying spirit beasts across the Genesis Worlds, alerting the different sects.

Surprised, they could not help wondering how strong Biefren was when he unleashed full strength.

Suddenly, Yukha warned, “Tai Chi’s loyal hounds have arrived. Will you take action?”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6537-James unleashed his Zen throughout the surroundings. After a while, he shook his head and said, “These ants aren’t worthy of my time.”

With a wave of his hand, he summoned forth the Peacock Queen, Queena, who burst forth from his golden form and swiftly transformed into a magnificent nine-tailed peacock within the void. Instantly, the air crackled with the palpable and formidable Marciais Power, filling the space with an aura of majesty and dread.

As this display of strength rippled outward, the flying spirit beasts, who had been paying homage to Yukha, fell silent in an instant.

“Don’t you enjoy a good fight? Clayton, who boasted a Seven-Star Combat Power, could dominate the original world. Surely you’re not one to lag behind?” James quipped, casting a playful glance at Queena.”

Queena asked, “Do I kill them all?”

With a chuckle, James replied, “Don’t go too hard on them first. It would be best if we could herd them toward the Sky Bridge. Then, if they refuse to submit, kill them.”

Queena immediately let out a piercing cry, unfurling her massive wings and swiftly soaring over the heads of the assembled powerful figures from various sects, effectively cutting off their escape routes.

With a graceful movement, Queena flicked her wings, sending a flurry of feathered swords cascading through the sky. With a series of muted impacts, these blades, infused with Marciais Power, swiftly pierced through thousands of creatures.

A deafening roar echoed through the air as the assembled powerful figures, who had rushed towards Queena, were falling from the sky and their enveloped in a haze of blood.

Those who arrived later hastily employed their weapons to shield themselves from the onslaught of feathered swords raining down from above. Their faces etched with shock, they began to retreat slowly toward the Sky Bridge.

Witnessing the unfolding chaos, Jacopos demeanor shifted, a restlessness stirring within him. "How about allowing me to join in?"

James raised his eyebrow and said, "Do you benefit from it?"

Jacopo replied, "Absolutely. My master said our capacity for bloodshed is insufficient, that's why we're unable to unleash the Soul Seizing Sword Art's full potential. We must participate in more battles and claim more lives to improve our strength.

James was taken aback, nearly stumbling in disbelief. "Is Clayton trying to mold my children into coldblooded killers that derived pleasure from slaughter as a means to empowerment? How many innocent lives would be sacrificed at their hands? Thankfully, I can use the Terrastride Step to solve their Karma.

Otherwise, I shudder to think how my children would ever reach greater achievements."

He looked at Xainte and asked, "Do you want to participate too?"

Xainte lowered her head and replied, "I'm a gentle lady."

James laughed, "Alright. Then, you only have to kill if they resist while at the Sky Bridge."

Jacopo and Xainte exchanged excited glances before respectfully clasping their hands at James. Then, they swiftly flew off in opposite directions. With Queena leading the way, they orchestrated a coordinated assault, herding the powerful forces toward the Sky Bridge.

Initially, the different powerhouses tried to fight back. However, they were overwhelmed by the onslaught and found themselves at a disadvantage. After almost losing their lives, they retreated toward the Sky Bridge.

Yukha resumed his human form and approached James once more, asking, "So you orchestrated this just so they could have some practice?"

James met her gaze and said, "The stronger opponents haven't revealed themselves. It seems the commotion wasn't loud enough."

Yukha was speechless. If he wanted to attract stronger opponents, he could easily do so with the strength at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank. She asked, "So what's the plan?"

James looked at her and said, "Don't you know how to read minds? Take a guess?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6538—"Surely, you're not thinking of luring all of the Genesis Worlds' forces now, right?" Yukha looked at James in disbelief, as if he were a demon.

James watched the numerous powerhouses from different sects being forced into the Sky Bridge with a faint smile.

"That's simply not possible. There are countless sects in the Genesis Worlds. It'll be hard to lure them all out at once—" said Yukha.

James interrupted, saying, "That's not my goal. However, I do want to as many as I can get. After all, we'd need some people to practice with."

Yukha drew in a sharp breath as she observed the multitude of creatures swarming toward the Sky Bridge, her heart lurching with extreme shock.

These unwitting beings, akin to ants drawn to a lure, had likely been enticed by the spectacle of her summoning flying spirit beasts, believing some great fortune or opportunity awaited them. Little did they know, they had fallen into the trap laid by this scion of the Chosen One.

Things unfolded according to James' plan. With the relentless expulsion efforts of Queena, Jacopo, and Xainte, hundreds of millions from the Genesis World were forced into crossing the Sky Bridge.

Among this sea of creatures, even the weakest was at the middle grade of the Yuraeceon Daelm Rank's Eighth Tribulation Countless formidable individuals stood among them, including many at the peak of the Yuraeceon Daelm Rank's Ninth Tribulation, and more than twenty were at the Quasi Daeclon Rank.

Seeing that it was almost time, James smiled and shouted, "Jacopo, Xainte, Queena! Come back. Let me open your eyes."

After killing a few thousand creatures trying to escape, the three retreated from the Sky Bridge.

Immediately afterward, James stretched out his hands and terrifying gray and black powers surged toward the Sky Bridge.

The force swept through, piercing those attempting to flee or resist, instantly obliterating their souls.

This potent, mysterious power, akin to bamboo in its strength, followed the path of the Bridge to the Sky, swiftly traversing the Xyndaros Genesis World, Sanctum Genesis World, the Lustus Sect's Genesis Region, Skynet's Genesis Region and arriving at the Dark World's entrance, ultimately forming a barrier. With that, the Sky Bridge actively divided the Genesis Worlds in half.

At this moment, all the creatures and powerful individuals forced onto the Sky Bridge were astounded to find that the void no longer consisted of Tai Chi Gas. Instead, thick layers of gray clouds, accompanied by Quasar Lightning blanketed the vast land.

Sharing their astonishment were Matias, Princess Lumia, and Wayra, who had headed to Skynet in advance.

As they gazed upon the spectacle in the sky, they felt an unprecedented atmosphere, their hearts heavy with complexity.

"It's about time for a change. Does this mean we're now under Forty-nine's command, freed from Tai Chi's grasp?" Wayra remarked, casually holding half a jar of Qhairos.

Princess Lumia frowned, saying thoughtfully, "It seems unlikely that we've broken free from her control. Even though Forty-nine is at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank, can he really divide such a vast space from the Tai Chi World?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6539-Princess Lumia turned to Matias, and asked, "Even if he really could separate the space, will Tai Chi just let it happen?"

Wayra also fixated his gaze on Matias, asking, "Don't just stay silent. You're the wisest one here. Tell US your insight."

Matias said calmly, "I don't know any more about Forty-nine than you do. However, with the wisdom and strength that he has shown, I assume he has prepared a backup plan."

"In case what you're worried about happens, he must've already left US with a way out."

Wayra frowned and asked, "A way out? In other words, he's not sure about this plan?"

Princess Lumia punched Wayra and said, "It's a gamble, Wayra. There's no guaranteed outcome. You should've already known that before making your choice."

After giving Wayra a scolding, Princess Lumia turned to Matias again and inquired, "So are you saying that if anything happens, Forty-nine has already made plans for US to retreat into Skynet's Tirta Grand Formation?"

Matias nodded and added on, saying, "We can also pretend to be forced into helping him. Even if James loses, Tai Chi won't do anything to US."

At this point, a look of emotion appeared on his face again: "This is the difference between Forty-nine and Yaquis, Xachary, Gladwin, and those other older guys. Although they are all trying to use US, Forty-nine is at least upright and open about it."

After listening to Matias' analysis, Wayra and Princess Lumia looked at each other. Gradually, the tension on their faces relaxed.

Matias sighed, "The only concern I have is for our elders. I don't know how they are doing. Although I can sense them approaching, their fates..."

Wayra asked anxiously, "Do you mean I might never be able to see my parents again?"

Princess Lumia sneered, “How old are you? Are you still a child or something?”

Wayra said, “I...I mean I can't have Tempestara's foundation destroyed because of my choice.”

Princess Lumia sighed, “Our sect's foundations have been destroyed long ago. The moment the Genesis Worlds was shattered, we were left with nothing.”

Wayra fell silent.

Matias slapped his thigh and stood up abruptly, saying, “Since I've already made a decision, I will not regret it. At least between Tai Chi and Forty- nine, I have more faith in the latter.”

He looked at Wayra and Princess Lumia, then said, “However, we should still save our family and sect members. I hope Forty-nine will show some mercy.”

After speaking, Matias disappeared into the void.

Wayra and Princess Lumia looked at each other, and then hurriedly followed after him. They could not be certain about the outcome of their choice, but they wanted to at least save their family and elite members.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6540-Yukha, who was on the Sky Bridge, suddenly asked, “So with the Sky Bridge as the boundary, one side is the Genesis Worlds controlled by Tai Chi, and the other side is under your reign?”

James crossed his hands behind his back, not answering her question.

Although the Sky Bridge was created by Tai Chi's Direguard Lock, it could only balance powerhouses from the Genesis Worlds.

To completely escape Tai Chi's control, they must create a powerful formation like the Tirta Grand Formation and the one in the Forladtt Land.

However, at present, regardless of whether there are sufficient materials to cast such a super formation, the sheer energy required to construct it was beyond the capacity of a being like him, who was only at the Fifth Xaeclon Rank.

After James left the Ying's Void, he contemplated employing his Marcial's Power or Curse Magic to subdue the Genesis Worlds and control them to enter the Forladtt Land and Skynet, leaving Tai Chi with nobody under her command.

However, the Forladtt Land and Skynet's controlled area had limited cultivation resources. It was impossible to accommodate that many living beings.

Since these sects could not be separated from Tai Chi's control, even if he used Curse Magic or killed them, Tai Chi would eventually free and resurrect them.

Ultimately, it all amounts to naught, repeating Franciscus' errors, a move that will aid Tai Chi in leveraging the power of all realms to openly oppress him and his allied forces, leaving them with little chance of victory.

Therefore, he was trying to create a huge commotion while secretly making other plans.

Primarily, the construction of the Sky Bridge was aimed at disrupting the order of the Genesis World, therefore, diminishing the two major forces under Tai Chi's control. Furthermore, he could expand the space for the Solstice Alliance and increase its strength significantly.

At that moment, the Sky Bridge and extensive barrier had successfully connected the Yin's Void, Skynet, and Forladtt Land.

This method is a common method used by various sects in the Genesis Worlds to seize territory. It neither violated the Law of Paths Law of Tai Chi. Even if Tai Chi found it suspicious, she would not dare to act recklessly since it did not violate the Law of Paths.

After careful consideration, the first phase of James' plan to undermine the Law of Tai Chi had finally begun. The current results seemed promising and seemed to come with some unexpected positive outcomes.

At that moment, three beams of light appeared in the void and manifested into three figures.

James looked at Princess Lumia, Wayra, and Matias' anxious expressions, James said smilingly, if you need to ask for something, we should find a suitable place to discuss it."

With that said, James raised his hand and gestured forward.

In a flash, a formidable Marciais Power struck a rolling mountain below, swiftly giving rise to a colossal floating palace above it. Countless black inscriptions and restrictions enveloped the palace.

Princess Lumia, Matias, and Wayra were in awe at the sight.

James turned to Yukha and said, "Attend to your duties."

He waved his hand, and his powers wrapped around Princess Lumia, Wayra, and Matias. Then, he hastened toward the palace.

Once inside the palace, James instructed calmly, "Alright. Show me your loved ones through energy balls."

The trio exchanged glances, then presented energy balls one after another.

James casually glanced at the energy balls, and then three rays of light suddenly flashed in the hall.