

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6882

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6882-Chapter 6882 His words immediately attracted everyone's attention. Faced with their hostile glares, Morgott shrugged and said indifferently, "Don't get me wrong. I meant everyone here except James and Thea."

Hearing his provocative words, everyone except James and Thea stood up, eager to fight him.

Truett retorted, "Damn it, you devil..."

Morgott pointed at Truett and said, "You shouldn't be angry. You don't even understand how the Greater Realms are divided, so it's ridiculous for you to be commenting on rules and regulations."

Everyone was furious at his words but was listening intently for an explanation.

Morgott slowly got up from the ground and said solemnly, "From nothingness to

From the nothingness comes the Wuia; from the Wuia emerged the Five Primal Evolutions. Thus, from nothingness to existence, death to life, stillness to movement. Ultimately, it came to forming the Xyloria Tai Chi and the Six Xyrisia Sacred Spirits."

"Then, Yin and Yang emerged from the Xyloria Tai Chi, heralding the opening of heaven and earth, the birth of the Great Realms, and the emergence of all living beings.

Everyone present paid close attention as if listening to a sermon.

Morgott took a sip of his wine and said casually, "In truth, this is the process of Dernaturae. However, what disrupted this natural order was none other than the Wuia that created it after observing and comprehending the emotions and desires of sentient beings. Wuia was the first out of the Six Xyrisia Sacred Spirits to gain an independent consciousness, which we later came to know as the Supreme Path.

Everyone present, including James, was surprised at his words, as it was their first time hearing such a theory.

Morgott elaborated, "The birth of the Wuia's consciousness is the mere beginning. The emergence of a consciousness necessitates the manifestation of a new form, marking the birth of humanity.

"For a significant duration following the Greater Realm's living beings, humans did not exist. However, after the Wuia gained consciousness, it wasn't satisfied with the countless beings that had been created. Hence, it gathered the good characteristics of many creatures, ultimately giving rise to humankind.

“It further developed the Five Primal Evolutions, resulting in the current humanity.”

James looked at Morgott and asked, “So we’re basically creations of the Supreme Path?”

Morgott affirmed with a nod. “Yes. It was a complete accident stemming from Wuia’s first selfish desire following its birth of consciousness. Hence, human nature is inherently inclined toward greed and selfishness. Their emotions and desires represent all sentient beings and are a natural occurrence overtime.

“Because of this, possessing a human form is the prerequisite for embarking upon the true cultivation path. As for non-human entities in the world, should they aspire to pursue the path of cultivation, they must cultivate to acquire a human form first.”

“However, even by doing so, they remain distinct from humans. Even after they adopt human emotions and desires, they could easily forsake them in their cultivation paths.

“Humans, on the other hand, are vastly different. We’re born with greed and selfishness. Emotions and desires are ingrained in US. Despite repeated efforts to sever them, they persist and will return when going through different experiences.”

Suddenly, Morgott’s face darkened.

“Perhaps Wuia eventually recognized its desires had betrayed the Dernaturae’s natural order. Hence, it painstakingly tried to correct these errors. Ultimately, it made the nature he had bestowed upon humans the greatest obstacle and source of suffering on our cultivation journey.

“Just look at those supreme beings in Zymurgy. Among them, none are humans that were conceived and born naturally, nor were they raised from childhood into adulthood by their parents. They did not have to walk every step to achieve what they have today.”

Morgott pointed at Truett and said, “You’re a human conceived and were birthed naturally but aren’t a supreme being. You’re merely a disciple of Tirta, who married her daughter, right?

Yegor faltered at his words.

Morgott snorted. “Your achievements and status are already the pinnacle of humankind. That’s so unfair. Why should we be punished for something not in our control?

“We aren’t able to sever our emotions and desires. Wuia never considered the fact its desire was what bestowed them upon US.”

These words ignited an uproar amongst the crowd.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6883-Morgott sneered, "They say I am a demon who kills people or supreme beings without blinking an eye. That I'm cruel and would commit heinous crimes."

He raised his voice and shouted, "But! I can say with confidence that no matter where I've gone, I've never killed a human."

Everyone lowered their heads and remained silent.

James narrowed his eyes, seemingly coming to a realization.

Morgott's spirit was undeniably potent. He could possess or manipulate any living entity, and he was immortal. It would not be long before his seal was lifted, and he could take over their bodies to seek revenge.

Considering his accomplishments, rebellious nature, and adherence to the principle that the strong should dominate, why would he pursue a bond akin to brotherhood with James, risking everything for him?

It dawned on James that Morgott sought comradeship and craved understanding and support. Therefore, he forsook his collaboration with Yehria and chose to side with two humans, including himself and Truett.

As the human with the most outstanding accomplishments, he suffered abject suppression and cruelty, resulting in a disdain for all non-human entities. Above all, his utmost hatred was reserved for Wuia, who had gained consciousness.

From his perspective, humans would not have existed and endured so much pain if not for Wuia's mistake, which stemmed from his desires.

Wuia shaped humans to be the most emotionally attuned beings, those who had comprehended the intricacies of emotions and desires. He saw this as a torment upon the humans.

With human greed, one could only envision the agony they had to endure to see such great things before their eyes, yet so out of reach.

The place fell eerily silent.

After some time, Thea broke the silence. "What do you suggest, Morgott?"

Morgott said solemnly, "The Supreme Path is the root cause of all turmoil.

Though it was forced to flee, everything it left behind was left to Zymurgy's supreme beings to take advantage of.

"Unless we overthrow Zymurgy and seize the position as the Supreme Path, any discussion of order is futile."

Morgott lifted his gaze to James and said, "Perhaps in terms of sheer strength, you're not even half of what I was in my prime. However, you're smarter than me. With your wisdom and group of comrades, your odds against Zymurgy are much higher than when I fought them alone."

James looked at him and said, "Speak your mind."

"My proposition is very straightforward-strength reigns supreme," Morgott emphasized, then pointed his fingers at James, elaborating, "By strength, I don't mean just your strength. I'm referring to the consolidation of all the powers you currently wield."

"For now, set aside your concerns about the Greater Realm's living beings. Use your existing resources to strengthen your trusted allies so their cultivation bases match or surpass Zymurgy's supreme beings. By doing so, defeating Zymurgy is only a matter of time."

"Moreover, you're the ruler of the Great Historial Land. To train up a group of peerless powerhouses only requires some time."

"Only by defeating Zymurgy will you be able to enforce order."

Upon hearing Morgott's words, James could not help but draw a deep breath.

He had entertained similar thoughts before, but Morgott possessed much more decisiveness.

At that moment, all eyes turned to James, seemingly in concurrence with Morgott's proposal. Their gazes brimmed with anticipation and eagerness.

Taking his time to settle back into his seat, James finally broke the silence and said coldly, "There's no need for rules to be imposed on the Greater Realms' living beings. We shall only heed the laws of cause and effect, refraining from orchestrating any predetermined arrangements." With these words, he lifted his gaze and fixed it upon Truett.

James instructed, "Skynett was initially intended for collecting intelligence, right?"

I need it to expand and reach all corners of the Greater Realm. It'll be our eyes, ears, and recorder of cause and effect."

Yegor sighed, "Achieving this solely with the strength of Skynet. I'm afraid M James interjected, "I'll grant you anything you want in the Greater Realms.

Yegor's eyes immediately lit up, and he quickly agreed, "Say no more! I'll start working on it once I return."

James turned to Zenda and said, "Choose a few capable individuals from the Great Historial Land and task them with overseeing the affairs of the Greater Realms. They will be sent to the Greater Realms and administer the Karma Tribulation upon the living beings there."

Zenda promptly rose to her feet and bowed, acknowledging the command.

James exclaimed, "Commanders of the Jademora Empire?"

Rubella hurriedly stood up. Seeing that Lyla remained seated, she gently tugged her up.

"After you return to the empire, assemble a group of skilled soldiers as reinforcements. Have them on standby and ready at all times."

Rubella and Lyla exchanged glances and then nodded in response.

"Truett," James addressed again, "As the leader of the Righteous Alliance, I trust you know what needs to be done, right?"

Truett chuckled and nodded. "Don't worry. I'll see it through."

James nodded approvingly, then stood up and said smilingly, "Let's all make ready."

As the group dispersed, Herodias halted James. "I have something to discuss with you."

James looked at Thea hesitantly.

"She can stay." Herodias nodded.

Thea's expression tensed, seeming somewhat nervous.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6884-After everyone else had left, Herodias slowly sat down with a solemn expression.

Thea and James looked at each other, hesitant to speak.

After contemplating, Herodias said, 'Tell me the truth, James. Did you receive Emperor Yarden's inheritance?"

James was momentarily stunned but nodded at her question.

Herodias further inquired, "Was it all of his inheritance?" James replied uncertainly, "I encountered his remnant soul and am not sure." Herodias pressed, "Did you obtain his Soul Condensation Art?" Thea looked at James nervously.

James was momentarily taken aback before he turned his hand over and summoned a vibrant fire lotus from his palm.

Thea's eyes sparkled with excitement, whereas Herodias covered her mouth in astonishment, her wide eyes reflecting shock.

James asked, "Is this the one?"

Herodias stood up and channeled a purple-gold Tirta Power into the fire lotus. A translucent figure instantly materialized within the flames.

However, it was still and devoid of consciousness.

James watched in awe at the spectacle.

Thea stated, "There's insufficient Tirta Power. It's still unable to move or speak."

Herodias clenched her teeth, extended her palms toward James, and unleashed a torrent of Tirta Power into the fire lotus.

Gradually, the translucent figure took the form of a handsome man with well-defined features, thick eyebrows, and large eyes.

Thea exclaimed, "It worked! It really worked! It's the Xyloria Tirta!"

James wore a look of astonishment at the sight. He had not anticipated to have inherited such extraordinary Supernatural Power from Emperor Yarden.

However, the use of Chaos Essence in casting the Supernatural Power was staggering. Most of what he saved was almost used up, and the consummation was still ongoing.

James had no choice but to take out a Chaos Absinthe and consume it to replenish his Chaos Essence.

The man within the fire lotus suddenly said, "If you have something to say, hurry up. Although this young man has acquired Emperor Yarden's inheritance, his Chaos Essence is limited."

Upon hearing this, Herodias continued to infuse Tirta Power into the fire lotus. At the same time, she cast a glance at James and said, "Dad, this man is the hope of the Greater Realms. Not only is he the Chosen One, but he has always successfully integrated the Three Treasures. Now, he only needs to regulate the Five Spirits..."

The Xyloria Tirta nodded lightly and replied, "I understand. Give it to him."

Herodias gasped in shock, "But Dad, you may never return without the Xyloria Tirta Pearl. Then what about the Tirta Sect..."

"Haha," the Xyloria Tirta let out a carefree laugh and responded, "Silly child, what exactly is the purpose of our existence?"

Herodias was left stunned.

The Xyloria Tirta said, "Now that a hero has emerged, he will undoubtedly elevate the Supreme Path to its pinnacle. For this very reason, not only would our lineage be willing, even the Five Evolutions will sacrifice."

Herodias took a deep breath and nodded in agreement.

At that moment, Thea suddenly interjected, "Sir, I'm curious. Morgott can also be considered a hero, so why did you..."

"The Yin governor?" The Xyloria Tirta turned to Thea and scrutinized her. "

Ah...you're incomplete."

Thea bowed respectfully and extended her hands toward him.

The Xyloria Tirta came to a realization. He sighed and asked, "The Morgott you speak of, it's Havelock Darrow, right?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6885-Morgott's original name was revealed to be Havelock Darrow.

Thea, James, and Herodias were utterly astonished.

The Xyloria Tirta sneered, "He isn't worthy of being called a hero. He is bloodthirsty and ruthless. His heart harbors excessive hatred and has no consideration for the lives.

"He lacks morality and only thinks of himself. Even though the Supreme Path was at fault, he would still have been forced to go into hiding." The Xyloria Tirta directed his gaze towards James, who was consuming Chaos Absinthe and restoring his Chaos Essence.

“This individual has encountered difficult circumstances and endured numerous hardships, yet has been sheltered and mentored by many. Even Emperor Yarden vouched for this being. How could I not acknowledge him?”

Thea looked at James with pride, her eyes gleaming with admiration.

James said abruptly, “But I have no interest in becoming the Supreme Path. I don’t want to become ruthless and indifferent or be a formless entity devoid of desires and feelings...”

Before he could finish, the Xyloria Tirta’s laughter cut him off. “Who said you would have to become all those to be the Supreme Path?”

James asked, “Isn’t that what the Supreme Path should be like?” The Xyloria Tirta replied smilingly, “That was the requirement imposed for the Xyloria gods. The Xanadu Realm is of the past, and you’re currently in the Haleth Realm.

“The Xanadu Realm transitioning into the Haleth Realm is a natural process that occurred where life is derived from energy. With life being formed from energy, the outcome would always be a birth of consciousness.

“The Tai Chi, Yin, and Yang are existences formed through energy. The genesis and renewal of all things signify the end of the Xanadu Realm.

Now, it’s the era of the Haleth Realm, where beings that reproduce dominate.

“As for us, entities born through energy are merely here to serve you now.”

James took a deep breath and asked, “What’s the ultimate goal of cultivation?”

The Xyloria Tirta shook his head and said smilingly, “I can’t answer that. Every living being has their own fate. Perhaps knowing yourself is the only way to discover the ultimate goal of cultivation.

James asked, “So even if I become the Supreme Path, I won’t be able to know myself completely?” The Xyloria Tirta replied, “I’m not sure. But I can share the Supreme Path’s creed-the Supreme Path accommodates and is tolerant.” James fell silent, contemplating these words.

Xyloria Tirta’s body began to flutter and disperse.

Herodias cried out anxiously, “Dad! No...”

The Xyloria Tirta said gently, “Don’t be sad. My final wish to witness the person who will become the Supreme Path has been fulfilled.

As he spoke, he looked at James again, “Integrating the Three Treasures gives you immortality, but the Fire Spirits will allow you to gain a Limitless Body, Ultimate Serenity, and converge to all paths into one.

“My daughter has the Xyloria Tirta Pearl and can pass it to you anytime.

Thank you for allowing me to see her one last time.”

Stunned, James murmured, “Sir...”

The Xyloria Tirta suddenly shouted, “Remember, Herodias. There is no eternity in this world apart from paths. Do not cling to gains and losses. It will be a great blessing if you can take a step forward in your cultivation path. The Tirta Sect and I will be proud of you.”

After speaking, the Xyloria Tirta’s body became transparent and disappeared.

“Dad!” Herodias suddenly shouted hysterically.

It was a pity that the Xyloria Tirta would never return.

When James retrieved the fire lotus, he discovered a purple-gold Tirta Power merging into his body.

Shortly after, a flood of unfamiliar information surged into his mind, including the secret of Morgott’s seal and many unknown anecdotes about Zymurgy.

Herodias collapsed to the ground with a thud.

Thea quickly rushed to support her, but Herodias raised her hand and stopped her.