The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6906-After a moment, James suddenly slapped his forehead and chuckled.” Stephen, Leuko, thank you.”

Stephen chuckled. “We owe our lives to you, Master. We’re family. You don’t need to be so polite with US.”

Leuko, standing aside, rolled his eyes and inquired, “Has Ms. Thea forgiven you yet, James?” James furrowed his brow, glanced back at Thea in the Forbidden Bloodshade, then shook his head with a rueful smile.

Stephen looked at James and said, ‘We’re aware of what happened. If needed, we could revive Lyla-“

James waved his hand to cut him off and sighed softly. “Let’s discuss this later.

Don’t bring it up in front of my wife.”

Stephen and Leuko exchanged glances, then nodded simultaneously.

James frowned and said carefully, “I must make a trip to Zymurgy. We’re in the dark about the Fortieth Heaven. I should investigate a little and see if I can cultivate the Five Spirits.

“As for my wife and children, I’ll entrust them to you for now. In the Great Historial Land, you’re invincible. When the time comes, you’ll know what to do.”

Stephen and Leuko nodded once more.

James walked toward the two children and lifted them. Stephen watched but hesitated to speak.

Leuko interjected, “Actually, it isn’t that hard to integrate the Five Spirits. I can harness the Chaos Essence to create Three Spirits. Stephen can use the Hongrome Essence for the remaining two.” Stephen chimed in, ‘That’s right. Why do you have to go through such great lengths.”

James said smilingly, “What I seek is the Five Xloria Pearls, which is what you can’t give me.”

Stephen and Leuko gasped at his words.

James kissed his children's cheeks and said, 'Train diligently. I hope my children will be able to join me in the battle against Zymurgy.'

Stephen took a deep breath and said solemnly, "Yes, Master!"

Leuko asked worriedly, "Are you familiar with the Five Path Emperors, Master?"

If you go recklessly..."

Stephen leaned close to Leuko and reassured, "Don't worry. Hurry and hand over what we've prepared for master."

Leuko sighed and nodded. With a sweep of her hand, a beam of purple light shot toward James and gathered into a radiant information orb.

"Master, this contains our compiled insights based on past recollections about the power dynamics above the Fortieth Heaven, including details on the Five Path Emperors. You must study it thoroughly. Many lives may depend on it."

Upon hearing this, James smiled, gently placing his children down before accepting the information orb.

"I've forgotten that you two are born from Hongrome Essence and possess greater knowledge of Zymurgy than I do." "With your precious gift, I'm sure I'll survive."

James turned and patted his children's heads. Then, he cast an emotional glance at Thea, who was cultivating in the Forbidden Bloodshade. In an instant, he vanished in a flash.

Thea slowly opened her eyes after James had left.

"Is bidding farewell already too much to ask? Or have we already become strangers?"

Upon hearing her words, Stephen and Leuko turned to Thea.

"Mother!" "Mom!"

Zuriyin and Lyall dashed into the Forbidden Bloodshade and threw themselves into Thea's embrace.

Leuko rushed over to explain, "Master had come to bid you farewell. He..."

Before she could finish, Stephen stopped her.

Thea embraced her children and slowly turned to them. "Although he has the information orb, he's still walking on a tightrope between light and death," she said.

Stephen said in surprise, 'Then why didn't you stop him?'

Thea shook her head and sighed. "Who could stop him? He has been suppressing himself. As the first in the Greater Realms to integrate the Three Treasures, he needs some opponents."

Leuko asked anxiously, "What if he gets trapped?"

Thea closed her eyes and said, 'Then we would fight for him.'

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6907-In the Forty-Seventh Realm of Zymurgy, amidst the vibrant hues of a grand temple, enveloped in sacred light. Two flashes of light emerged, and a man and woman appeared.

The man possessed a striking handsomeness, yet his messy hair and the ominous purple-red aura swirling around him hinted at a darker nature.

His companion, draped in a flowing black robe and a veil of mystery, exuded elegance. Her long hair cascaded down, and her every movement held a captivating allure.

It was none other than Morgott and Yehria who thought they had escaped from James.

Since their escape to Zymuegy, they had disguised themselves and concealed their auras.

With Yehria's guidance, Morgott lifted 70 seals and fused them with his fragmented spirits. His Demonic Body had been cultivated to near perfection, and he had regained about eighty percent of his prime.

Though they could not navigate Zymurgy with ease, their ambition remained unsatisfied.

Standing together, they gazed upon the imposing plaque in the grand hall ahead of them with the words, 'Taishi Grand Temple.'

Morgott asked, "Is this the final fragment of my spirit?"

Yehria nodded solemnly, 'Yeah, but lifting the seal won't be easy.'

Morgott asked Yehria, "Don't you have the Xyloria Tai Chi Axe? Is it not good to use any more?"

Yehria shook his head ruefully. "It's only applicable against Tirta Power because of their connection."

Suddenly, her face flashed with slight fear as she looked at the plaque.

“What we’re confronting is Taishi Power. It’s a seal crafted by Taishi.”

Morgott asked anxiously, “Then what am I to do? My last spirit lies within this seal. It has my Three Treasures, Five Spirits, and my Tyrant Spear.

“Without them, I’m still incomplete. I’ve recovered eighty percent of my strength and can kill a few trash at the Soma Daeclon Rank. However, I still stand no chance against a powerhouse like James.”

Yehria’s face darkened as she retorted, “Who are you calling trash?”

Morgott quickly corrected, “Ah, I forgot you’re also at the Soma Daeclon Rank.

However, didn’t your cultivation rank drop? You’re only at the Nith Xaeclon Rank at best right now.”

Upon hearing these words, Yehria was struck by a sudden surge of anger. With clenched fists trembling with restrained anger, she turned around and murmured, ‘Your words would drive anyone to think of vengeance against you!’

Morgott merely shrugged, his gaze fixed on the Taishi Grand Temple. “Cut the nonsense and summon the Xyloria Tai Chi Axe. We’ll have a chance if we can even crack it a little.”

Yehria sighed and summoned a giant axe that emitted colorful light rays.

The axe descended toward the Taishi Grand Temple.

A loud boom echoed as the temple erupted in a dazzling display of divine light. A powerful force surged outward, knocking Yehria away.

Even the formidable Morgott could only muster a defensive stance amidst the potent force.

He surrounded his body with a shroud of purple-red light as he braced himself.

The overwhelming force subsided moments later, and the luminous expanse of divine light dissipated.

Morgott slowly raised his head and looked at the unscathed Taishi Grand Temple in astonishment. ‘The Xyloria Taishi sure is exceptional. Compared to the Xyloria Tirta and Taichi, he is so much stronger.’

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6908-Morgott swiftly turned around and fixed his gaze toward Yehria's direction.

Behind him was a pile of rubble, yet Yehria was nowhere to be found.

Morgott called out, "Are you still alive, Yehria?"

The demolished ruin trembled, and a figure emerged.

Yehria coughed up blood, her hair unkempt, her complexion ashen, and her body cloaked in thick soil.

Upon witnessing Yehria's disheveled appearance, Morgott erupted into laughter.

Yehria brushed off the debris, and a swirl of black and white light enveloped her.

She instantly restored her to a lady-like appearance.

At that moment, she frantically scanned her surroundings, her expression a mix of anxiety and fury, before letting out a piercing scream.

"Where is my innate Xyloria Tai Chi Axe? Did you pick it up?" Morgott frowned and shook his head. "I don't have it. Why would I want it?"

Yehria immediately appeared beside Morgott and stared at the Taishi Grand Temple in horror.

"Could Taishi have taken it?" Morgott stared at the Taishi Grand Temple in shock.

Yehria shouted, "What's so great about an outdated deity?! The Xanadu Realm is over! You don't have to pretend to be so righteous!" "Give me back my axe!

It's the most precious treasure of the Tai Chi Sect! How dare you take it away?

Yehria jumped to her feet and became even more aggressive. She charged at the Taishi Grand Temple, but Morgott instantly grabbed her.

Yehria pointed at the Taishi Grand Temple and cursed, "Let go! You old woman!

You're already dead! Why are you showing off your power? You..."

Morgott dragged Yehria and shouted, "Okay! Let's leave quickly. Otherwise, we'll be trapped here." Yehria roared, "What are you afraid of? Taishi is already dead! If I don't get the axe back, how will I kill Yehria and James?!"

Morgott grabbed Yehria from behind and said, "James is here! If we don't leave, we'll be killed." Yehria writhed, shouting, "No, my axe!!!"

Thud!

Morgott slapped Yehria's face, knocking her to the ground.

Morgott glared at Yehria and shouted, "Damn it! How many times do I have to repeat myself?!! James is here! Do you get it? If we don't leave, we're done for!"

Yehria's eyes widened, and she muttered, "J-James?" "You foolish woman! Do you even comprehend what kind of danger we're in?" Morgott snarled, then wrapped them with a crimson-purple aura before disappearing into nearby ruin.

To conceal their presence, they buried themselves in the ground.

In the blink of an eye, amidst the void of the Forty-Seventh Heaven, a spectral figure descended, transforming into a striking young man clad in a black robe.

His posture was erect and handsome, and his speed was astonishingly swift and alarming.

With one hand tucked behind his back, he stood at the spot Morgott and Yehria had just vacated, gazing up at the Taishi Grand Temple bathed in holy light.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6909-After a while, James bowed three times in a row. Just as he was about to take action, the temple's door swung open.

A multicolored divine light emerged from within the Taishi Grand Temple.

Observing the unfolding spectacle, the handsome young man stood dumbfounded for a moment before ascending the staircase leading up to the temple. Each stride was deliberate until he reached the open temple door. With ease, he stepped inside, vanishing into the vibrant hues of divine light.

A flash of colorful radiance engulfed the temple entrance, and the door was sealed shut, reverting to its original state.

Only then did Morgott and Yehria cautiously emerge from their concealment among the ruins. They gazed at the Taishi Grand Temple with bewilderment.

After a moment, Yehria asked angrily, "How did that brat waltz in so effortlessly?"

Morgott's eyes sparkled with admiration as he chuckled, 'That's James for you.

Even Taishi has to show deference and open the doors for him.”

Yehria shot him a fierce glare. “Whose side are you on?”

Morgott replied, “Yours, of course.”

Yehria retorted, ‘Then why are you praising that bastard James?’ Morgott argued, “You shouldn’t be so vulgar. I’m simply respecting the strong. If you’re so jealous, why not become as strong as him?” Yehria seated with frustration, “Enough nonsense. Do you think he noticed us?”

Morgott scoffed, “Ha! Do you think we’d still be safe if he discovered US?”

Yehria was momentarily at a loss for words.

Morgott took out a jar of wine, took a sip, and said, “Don’t worry. Although they’ve crumbled, these used to be Taishi Sacred Mountains. They’re able to conceal US.”

Yehria sighed in relief and suggested, “Well, let’s wait for him here. He’s definitely after the Xloria Taihshi Pearls. Once he comes out, we’ll strike and seize the pearl. Then, we’ll force him to help me regain my Xyloria Tai Chi Axe and your remaining spirit.”

Morgott, who had just taken a sip of wine, suddenly spat it at Yehria’s face.

“What the heck?” Yehria protested, wiping the wine from her face.

Morgott looked at her in shock and asked, “What are you thinking? Did I hear you correctly? You want to attack James when he leaves?” “Are you scared?”

Yehria taunted him.

Morgott retorted coldly, “It’s not about fear. It’s about going against a brick wall.”

“You...” Yehria began.

Morgott interjected, “Considering the disparity in strength, even with our powers, and we give birth to ten children, we’d still be pale compared to him. Engaging in such folly would only result in our demise.”

Yehria scoffed, “And what if we have someone stronger go against him?”

Morgott looked at her and asked, “What do you mean?” “It’s nothing. Let’s observe and wait,” Yehria dismissed him, then snatched the wine jar.

Then, she tilted her head back and took a long swig.

On the other hand, Morgott fell into thought.

Within the Taishi Grand Temple, James scanned the colorful divine lights around him.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 6910-Upon entering Taishi Grand Temple, he anticipated encountering a magnificent sight, a towering statue, or even Silver in person. However, what greeted him was far more dull than his expectations.

“Your name is James Caden, right?” Suddenly, amidst the vibrant divine glow, an ethereal voice resonated. It sounded sacred and exquisite, capable of cleansing the mind of impure thoughts.

James jolted, swiftly scanning his surroundings before replying, “Yes.

That’s me! It’s an honor to be in your presence, Ms. Silver.” “You’re the Chosen One, a disciple of Emperor Yarden, who integrated the Three Treasures and is also the ruler over the Greater Realms. Despite your achievements, you remain remarkably humble. You’re much better in every aspect than those two unsightly beings outside.”

James bowed respectfully at her praises. Just as he was about to speak, he was interrupted.

“You need not say a word. Wesley has already come to see me and conveyed everything.”

James lifted his head abruptly and said, “Madam, he...” “He has his purpose, and you have your journey. Now, allow me to show you a painting.”

With those words, a colorful aura enveloped James, unveiling a painting of breathtakingly beautiful women.

Three women adorned the scene in the painting, each exuding an otherworldly aura that left James stunned.

Silver inquired, “You should recognize them, right?”

James replied, “I only recognize the woman in the middle. She...she looks like my wife, but looks more...” “More beautiful?” Silver laughed, “Silly child. That is your wife, the complete Yin governor.”

James gasped at the revelation. He never expected his wife, in her complete form, to be so stunning. She was like a goddess and embodied all the qualities women could only dream of-perfect and flawless.

“You should also know the other two. That’s your second body, Frona. The other is Yehria, lingering outside the temple.”

James’ eyes widened in shock. Upon closer inspection, he found that the other women in the painting resembled Lesia and Yehria. However, they had much more exquisite and captivating appearances.

After a while, James asked, “What’s the purpose of showing this to me?”

Silver explained, “They are your Quiver Tribulations. It’s one of the three great tribulations you must face. It’s also the hardest to overcome.”

James nearly staggered at this revelation. He would understand the Yin governor being part of his Quiver Tribulation but could not comprehend why Lesia was also included. Even worse, he was in disbelief that Yehria was also one of them.

Silver saw through James’ thoughts and chuckled, saying, “Quiver Tribulations aren’t always necessarily romantic. They can be related to all kinds of emotions like love, grace, and even hatred.

“You and the Yin governor represent a love tribulation, which is almost impossible to eliminate. You and Frona symbolize a grace tribulation. Although it can be severed, you don’t wish for such an outcome. Meanwhile, you and Yehria are entangled in a hatred tribulation that will be hard to overcome.”

James furrowed his brows and asked, “Are you suggesting I must resolve these three tribulations before proceeding?”

Silver replied, “I simply want you to recognize what lies ahead if you seek greater heights in cultivation. Not only do you need to integrate the Five Spirits, you’ll need to overcome three great tribulations.

James inquired, “Besides the Quiver Tribulations, what are the other two?”

Silver did not respond. Instead, she waved her hand and summoned numerous Wama Energy Balls.
