

The Almighty Dragon General

Chapter 7022

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7022-Seeing James about to take action, Qadeer hurriedly shook his head. "I can release him. However, I can't do it without anything in return, otherwise, you would just kill me after I did."

Morgott shouted from within the formation, "Don't bother negotiating with him, James! Kill him and eliminate the threat permanently."

Yianni advised, "Think twice before taking action, James. I trust you."

Lesia parted her lips but could not find the right words.

At that moment, James looked down at Qadeer silently.

Qadeer pleaded, "We still have a past, James. Whether I was Emperor Jabari or Franciscus, I never intended any harm to you. Don't forget that I helped you get to where you are today!

'You value love and friendship, no? With what I've done for you, isn't it enough to ask for an exchange condition?'

James was unable to refute him. The reason he had not killed Qadeer was not just that they were still trapped within the Gate of Mystery but also because of their past.

Emperor Jabari and Franciscus had indeed played crucial roles in his life.

Regardless of his motives, his Soremsias did extend help to him.

After pondering for a while, James replied, "Only one condition."

Qadeer quickly negotiated, "Two! After all, both my Soremsias have helped you."

Lesia retorted, 'You're asking for too much! Don't give him anything, Master!'

James responded, 'Two is fine. However, you must answer a few questions as well.'

Qadeer agreed happily, "Okay, deal!"

James said without hesitation, "I'll ask the questions first. About my wife's fusion..."

Qadeer interrupted, 'You better not attempt it. It will bring catastrophe not only to upon you but also your wife and every other god.'

James frowned slightly.

Morgott shouted, "Don't listen to his nonsense. He is full of lies..."

Qadeer shouted, "Shut up! You'll also be affected. The Yin governor's reappearance will prompt the return of the Waitara Path's Soremsia."

James' brows furrowed tighter, whereas Morgott fell silent.

Yianni and Lesia exchanged surprised glances.

Qadeer said coldly, "It's true I was responsible for splitting her into two. You might think I did it to avert Yehria's Tai Chi Tribulation. However, in reality, I did it to prevent the Waitara Path's Soremsia from returning in advance. I was protecting the Greater Realms, you all, and, of course, myself."

Lesia was unable to listen to him any longer and shouted, "Nonsense! Stop this nonsense, Qadeer!"

Qadeer raised his head and retorted, "Do you really want me to reveal your past, Frona?"

Lesia immediately fell silent.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7023-James slowly turned his head to look at Lesia in the Nothingness Formation and asked, "What leverage does he have over you?"

Lesia took a deep breath. "Master..."

Qadeer interrupted, "Why don't you say it? You don't dare to. Because you know once he learns the whole truth, you won't be able to use him. You two will become enemies, and...uhm!"

James had waved his hand and commanded a black dragon to seal Qadeer's mouth.

The next moment, James appeared before Lesia. He said, "I won't listen to what other people say about you. I'll trust your words."

Lesia looked at him with gratitude, then turned to Yianni.

Understanding the situation, Yianni transformed into a Sword Light and rushed out of the Nothingness Formation.

Lesia explained, "Your life had basically been planned out for you. Or, in other words, you were being used, tested to achieve a greater goal." James remained silent, waiting for her to elaborate.

Lesia sighed and said, 'The Yin governor had set up your ventures in the Dark World. After entering the Genesis World and encountering me, I've been orchestrating your path, including encountering the few emperors' Soremsia.

"In essence, Qadeer and US had done the same thing, but for different reasons." With a guilty expression, Lesia said, "I know you hate being used and treated as a pawn. However, we had no other choice-"

James interrupted, "Was my wife involved?"

Lesia took a deep breath, sighed, and answered, "In all honesty, only the Yin governor can freely transverse the Haleth and Xanadu Realm.

James squinted and asked, "Is it because she's the last entity that was born from Xyloria Aura?" Lesia shook her head and answered, "Not entirely. It's because she's the eyes chosen by the Nine Nothingness Gods and is in charge of guarding the Omniscient Mirror.

"Unfortunately, Qadeer split her into two, and the Omniscient Mirror was lost."

James asked with a frown, "Why must it be my wife? And what is the Omniscient Mirror?"

Faced with James' questions, Lesia sighed and explained everything.

The Yin governor was chosen as the tribulation eyes to watch over the Leere Tribulation because she was born from the energy of the Xyloria Tai Chi.

After Morgott's disaster was over, out of the Five Primal Evolutions, only Taiyi and Taichu survived. The other three, as well as the Xyloria Law of Paths and the Yang governor, had perished.

Taiyi and Taichu were supreme beings, so they could not have a physical form.

The Yin governor was the only choice left.

Finding the reincarnation of the Waitara Path was essential to solving the Leere Tribulation. The Yin governor was the only one who could undertake this task.

According to Lesia, Thea was supposed to become the first Tai Chi and seek the Waitara Path's Soremsia. However, Yehria interfered with this plan.

Thea endured 81 reincarnations because of Yehria. Despite being the last hope, Thea chose to endure the tribulation due to the task of resolving the Leere Tribulation.

After learning that the Yin governor had been split into two and that their plan to resolve the Leere Tribulation had been ruined, Lesia had to personally descend to the Haleth Realm.

After Lesia's explanation, James stared at her coldly and said, "So, have I become the tribulation eyes?"

Lesia sighed and said, "More or less. As long as you seize the position as the Supreme Path, you'll be able to stand against the Waitara Path's Soremsia.

"If you fail, your wife will become our last option. We can still fuse her two halves. However, it's uncertain whether we can find the Omniscient Mirror again."

James clenched his fists and asked, "So my meeting and relationship with my wife was also part of the plan?"

Lesia shook her head and said, "No. It wasn't. The Yin governor does indeed have deep feelings for you and never intended to use you. Back in the Dark World, she only paved your path to help you.

"Actually, there's something I've not told you. I'm afraid the Yin governor..."

James frowned and urged, "Cut to the chase." Lesia took a deep breath and said, "If it weren't for you, Qadeer's Soremsia would not have the chance to split the Yin governor into two, nor would she have gained consciousness while still a Heavenly Path."

James felt like he had been struck by lightning. If it were not for him, his wife would not have failed her task. The Leere Tribulation might have already been solved, and his wife would have become a deity beyond his reach.

However, she went through persecution and 81 reincarnations because of him.

She had sacrificed so much and endured great suffering. James felt like he could not bear the weight of her love.

Lesia apologized, "I'm sorry, Master. I shouldn't have told you..."

James raised his head and said, "No. You should've told me earlier. Do you suspect that I'm the Waitara Path's Soremsia?"

Lesia replied with a trembling voice, "It would be great if you were. If his Soremsia had your virtue, we wouldn't have had to set up such a complex plan."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7024-James looked at Lesia and gradually shut his eyes. "Does my wife know all this too?"

Lesia replied, "She's aware of some of it. But since she hasn't fully regained her identity as the Yin governor, she hasn't regained all of her memories."

James was struck by a mix of shock, emotion, and sorrow. He thought to himself, 'My silly wife. Even though she only knows fragments of the truth, she could've still shared them with me. With just one word, I would seize the position of Supreme Path without any questions. I could even challenge the Nine Nothingness Gods if she asked.'

After pondering for a while, James opened his eyes and asked, "What else have you hid from me? Lay it all out now. I don't want any more secrets."

Lesia looked at James and asked anxiously, "Are...are you not angry?" "Of course, I'm furious. According to you, all my wife's sufferings stem from the Leere Tribulation, which you've tasked her to resolve," James responded, discontent evident in his voice.

"Why don't you fix the mess you've made yourself? Is it because you hold yourself in such high regard that you're not willing to?"

Lesia fell silent.

James smiled bitterly and said, "But thinking about it, if you hadn't tasked my wife with such a burdensome duty, I might never have crossed paths with her."

Forthat, I owe you thanks!" Lesia chuckled in relief after hearing James' words.

"I thought you were really going to turn against me."

James looked at her, extended her hand, and said, "If you don't give it to me, I might."

Taken aback, Lesia asked, "What do you mean?"

James replied, "Don't play dumb. I'm not oblivious to your habit of stealing my Chaos Absinthe. You've accumulated quite a lot, no? Ms. Herodias had given me quite a lot."

After a brief pause, Lesia burst into laughter.

She waved her hand, and more than a dozen jars of Chaos Absinthe floated before James.

Without hesitation, James took them all, uncorked one, and devoured its content.

Lesia felt relieved after watching him.

She felt the need to reflect on herself. She had underestimated James' intellect, comprehension, and even his foresight.

For someone as proud as James, being manipulated was a significant blow to his pride and dignity, and it was difficult to accept.

However, James accepted it with remarkable calmness, showing no anger but rather trying to understand it from a different perspective. He was a real man who knew when to let go of anger and think of the bigger picture.

In him, the spirit of enduring criticism with a calm demeanor, even stooping low for the greater good, shone brightly.

If a person like James could not achieve greatness, then who else would be worthy?

After drinking half a jar of the Chaos Absinthe, James set it down and asked, "Should I continue negotiating with Qadeer?"

Lesia replied smilingly, "Absolutely. We're still in the Gate of Mystery, remember? Even though you've entered the Zenthur Rank, it's impossible to escape this place."

James looked at Qadeer trapped outside the Nothingness Formation. "Is he really Emperor Jabari and Franciscus?" Lesia sighed and answered, "I know what you're thinking. People embody both good and evil. His Soremsia is no exception.

"If he desires kindness, he can surpass all beings. If he leans toward malice, he could embody pure evil.

"It's unfortunate that he has strayed too far. His lust for power had already blinded his eyes. In the end, he became the very devil he condemns."

James shrugged, "He is willing to risk it all for his goal. Is there anything he actually cares about?" Lesia replied, "He wants to become the Supreme Path and also yearns for the Waitara Path's return. Perhaps he might even harbor some affection for his children.

James turned around and looked at Lesia. "Do you remember Lucille Babs?" Lesia nodded at his question.

James squinted and said, "She's Franciscus' daughter. Doesn't that also mean she's Qadeer's daughter, just like Yehria?"

Lesia's eyes widened in shock. "Are you suggesting..."

James grinned and said, "Doesn't he want to negotiate? Then, we'll do it.

However, we won't be able to leave yet."

Lesia looked at James with a mix of bewilderment and curiosity. She could not figure out what James' goal for staying within the Gate of Mystery was.

Could he possibly be drawn to the abundant Innate Energy? Perhaps he wanted to seize Qadeer's Gate of Mystery?

Qadeer's voice came from outside the formation. "I warn you, James! Frona is a scheming woman, and her words can be deceiving! You shouldn't trust her.

"Think about it. Whether I was Emperor Jabari, Franciscus, or one of the Yin and Yang elders, have I ever harmed you?

"She's our real enemy! We must unite to overthrow her and claim back our worlds!"

James and Lesia immediately exchanged meaningful smiles.

"You want me to doubt my comrades and trust an ambitious old scoundrel like you? I'd have to be insane." James looked at Lesia and asked, "Shall we put on a show?"

Lesia agreed smilingly, "Sure. I'll shed some tears for you."

James smirked and pointed at her mischievously. Then, he swiftly dashed out of the Nothingness Formation.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7025-Qadeer found himself in a state of panic, his mind consumed with thoughts of how to extricate himself from the current situation. He was acutely aware that James' decision to confer privately with Lesia was a clear indication of the trust placed in her. The realization cast doubt on the effectiveness of his provocations.

Yet, he could not linger in this situation any further. The presence of Lord Goyo had made him anxious. If he lost control of the Forty-Ninth Heaven, it would yield dire consequences.

However, releasing James from the Gate of Mystery was not an option. Allowing him out would only invite a more formidable opponent in the future.

In the midst of his unease, a shadow darted before him, and James reappeared.

Qadeer, eyes wide, hastily cautioned, “James, do not succumb to the honeyed words of that woman, you...” James interjected coldly, “I’ve only asked one question. The next question is, when should I merge my wife’s two halves?”

Qadeer stood stupefied by the suddenness of the question.

James maintained a stoic silence regarding the matter with Lesia, adding to Qadeer’s perplexity and heightening his anxiety.

After a momentary pause, Qadeer composed himself and awkwardly inquired, “Did that cunning woman urge you to merge the Yin governor’s two halves?” James retorted, “I’m the one asking the questions.”

Qadeer took a deep breath and answered, “Regardless of what she said, you must exercise caution in making decisions. My advice is not to do it until the Waitara Path’s Soremsia is found.”

James stared at him and sneered, “This brings me to the third question. You’re a disciple of the Waitara Path and are supposedly loyal to him. Yet, why are you trying to prevent his return? Do you harbor aspirations for the Supreme Path’s position?” Qadeer raised his head and smirked.

James stated coldly, “Don’t keep me waiting. My patience is wearing thin.”

Qadeer explained, “It’s simple. We’re very different beings. They’re born from Xyloria Aura, and we’re not.”

Locking eyes with James, Qadeer continued, “You’ve likely overheard my altercation with Frona. That should elucidate my stance.” “From nothingness, they were born. It’s indeed a feat worthy of reverence.

However, they will forever be able to dictate our fates and monopolize our cultivation resources. Would that not be tyranny marked by coercion and oppression?” Qadeer’s visage contorted with anger. “The Xanadu Realm is over. These entities born from Xyloria Aura should’ve long perished and returned to nothingness. We live in the Haleth Realm. Our destiny should be shaped by our own hands.

“Why should we let them dictate our fates? Even if someone has to rule, it should be someone who dominates the natural competition amongst ourselves and not by the imposition of the so-called divine laws.” Qadeer roared, “Moreover, these supreme beings had gained consciousness and feel superior over US. What gives them such audacity? Even their offspring also presume to lord over US. But by what right?”

Qadeer’s final words resounded with passion, leaving James deeply moved.