

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7436-Morgott's eyes widened in shock.

"What are you giving me? There aren't many things that can impress me." Harper's stern look quickly silenced him.

James spread his arms, and a divine light enveloped the entire Jawdat Region.

The Jawdat Region's Nine Holy Temples rose into the sky and rotated.

Morgott and Harper watched in astonishment.

The Nine Holy Temples were lined up in a row but separated into three groups.

James pointed into the void, and a few dozen more temples emerged, connecting the Nine Holy Temples to form a dazzling and colorful pattern.

The temples formed a heart, emitting dazzling lights.

The scene was magnificent and luxurious.

"Open!" James shouted and spread his hands.

Two divine lights spread throughout the Jawdat Region, forming a barrier along its edges.

Under the divine light, a beautiful terrain appeared within the barrier.

Harper and Morgott watched as the scenery changed rapidly before it settled.

They looked around and found that the Jawdat Region had transformed into a magnificent paradise.

Harper gasped, "Wow! Is this the power of the Haleth Realm's ruler? You're capable of changing and shaping any space at will?" Morgott shook his head in disbelief, "No! This isn't just power! It's his gift for your marriage." He glared at James with jealousy.

"You're so mean, James.

You were supposed to let me borrow the Jawdat Region for a while.

Now you're giving it away to someone else? "We're supposed to be good friends! How can you do this to me?" James withdrew his arms and showed an evil grin.

Morgott felt a murderous aura from the side.

He turned to it and met Harper's glare.

He felt a shiver down his spine and quickly tried to escape.

However, Harper had already grabbed his ear.

'Tm sorry, darling! I was wrong! I didn't mean it ... ' "What did you mean 1 then?" Harper glared at him fiercely, pulling his ear harder.

Morgott screamed and waved his hand.

'I didn't mean anything! Nothing at all!' Harper demanded, "What do you m mean he is giving it to someone else" Morgott's lips twitched in pain, and he explained, "No ... 1 spoke too quickly ... " He pointed at James and shifted the blame.

'It's his fault! He did it on purpose! He set me up! He's so evil!

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7437-"It's the path's fault, the Jawdat Region's fault! It's the Heart Temple's fault. Argh!"

Before he could finish speaking, Harper knocked him to the ground and began beating him up.

After a while, Harper tidied up her messy hair, smiled, and looked at James. Embarrassed, she said, "Your gift is too expensive. I feel bad accepting something so valuable." James rolled his eyes. "If you feel bad, I can give it to someone else."

Harper quickly shook her head. "No, no! What I mean is, I'll accept it. Otherwise, you'll be sad."

James was rendered speechless.

Morgott got up, grinned, and said, "Of course, you must accept it! If he were my disciple, I'd ask for half of the Haleth Realm!"

James said nothing but stretched out two fingers and pointed at the Heart Temple in the sky.

A beam of divine light shone, engraving several large words on the plaque before the Heart Temple.

"Historia Palace?" Harper murmured, then abruptly turned to James. "What is the meaning of this?"

Morgott frowned and asked, "Yeah? My wife's name is Harper! The Historial Palace is where the Waitara Path used to be cultivated. Why would you place it here?" James rolled his eyes at Morgott. "Do you know how to read? It's called the Historia Palace, not the Historial Palace."

Morgott was stunned by the response.

James said, "In the Genesis Worlds, you created the Historial Power and were admired by all living beings. You deserve the title of Historial Goddess.

"Now that I'm the ruler of the Haleth Realm, I have the power to deify you. I confer upon you the title of the Jawdat Region's Supreme Historial Goddess, a First-ranked Deity. You'll be stationed in the Jawdat Region, and the Historia Palace will be your dojo."

While speaking, James reached out to Harper and cast Waltraud Light toward her.

Surrounded by the potent force, Harper spread her arms and slowly ascended into the air with great excitement. She gradually transformed, emerging in a purple-gold robe and a black-and-white jade belt. Tovel.net dashing red cloak resting on her shoulders exuded a mighty aura.

Morgott widened his eyes and exclaimed, "Wow! You've really become a deity! You even have a twenty-five-tassel crown."

Harper raised her gaze and looked up at the crown on her head. Twenty-five rows of tassels hung from her crown, each with forty-nine diamonds shining brightly.

The next second, Harper suddenly flipped her hands, and a terrifying Waltraud Light struck the void.

A colossal cyclone formed in the void, sucking in the millions of universes around them.

Morgott exclaimed, "Wow! This is amazing! Even the Waitara Path didn't have such a glorious presence!"

James suddenly asked, "Have you made a choice?"

Harper hurriedly nodded. "I want this one!"

James smiled calmly and waved his hand. The cyclone quickly shrank, forming into a disc-shaped divine light. It lowered to hover behind Harper's head, enveloping her whole body. Her presence was so sacred it inspired worship.

Next, James summoned thousands of energy balls, commanding them to rotate around Harper. James said, "Pick one."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7438-Morgott asked hurriedly, "What is this?"

However, nobody paid attention to his question.

Harper was busy selecting from the energy balls while James calmly waited for her.

"This one!" After a while, Harper suddenly grabbed a rotating energy ball and crushed it.

Instantly, a large knife with a dazzling light appeared in her hand.

Morgott's pupils trembled in shock.

James was also stunned.

Harper waved the big knife and said proudly, "With this, I can bully Morgott every day. Doesn't he have a Demonic Body? I should be able to cut through him with this knife!"

As soon as she spoke, the Jawdat Region trembled, seemingly infuriated by the knife's force.

Morgott felt a shiver and said, panicked, "Wait, what? You want to use this against me?"

James laughed, "I also think that's a little inappropriate. After all, you're a beautiful woman. It would be weird for you to swing around a huge knife."

Harper carried the big knife on her shoulder and said, "No, I want this! I can chop down my enemies with it. It suits my taste perfectly."

Morgott suddenly fell silent.

James nodded and chuckled, "As long as you're happy."

While speaking, he waved his hand and retracted the other energy balls.

Seeing that James paid him no heed and was done with the gifting, Morgott became anxious. "That all, James?"

"Yes!" James nodded.

Morgott stared at him and pouted, "Don't you think you've forgotten something?"

James shrugged and said innocently, "Nope. I'm done."

Morgott appeared before James in a flash. "Are you pretending not to see your handsome friend standing right before you?"

“You made my fiancée a god but treat me like thin air. Don’t you have anything to offer me?”

“Could you have defeated Xanthakos, entered the Historial Palace and seized the Haleth Realm so easily without me suppressing Quintinus and Amos?”

‘I held them back, allowing you to deal with the Waitara Path’s soum spirit and comprehend the Forty-Nine Daoisms!’

Morgott’s volume grew louder, and his gestures became more on exaggerated as he expressed his dissatisfaction.

“I’m always the first candidate when you need someone to do tough jobs. Yet, I’m always forgotten when you’re giving rewards?”

Morgott inched closer to James and hissed, “Though we’re friends shouldn’t be doing free labor!”

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7439-“Though I have no desires and am generous, you should still show appreciation for me. Even if you offered me something and I refused, I would feel my effort was worth it. Don’t you think?” James chuckled as he watched Morgott pace back and forth angrily.

Morgott waved his hand impatiently. “Say something! I know you’re not a stingy or shameless person. I wouldn’t have become friends with you otherwise.

Though I’m usually carefree and don’t expect you to reward me, giving me a status shows how much I mean to you. At the very least, you should give me a title! Whether you like it or not, I must have one today!”

James took a deep breath, looked at him condescendingly, and asked, “Are you done?”

“Yes. It’s your turn to give me an explanation,” Morgott said angrily, ready to start a fight.

James looked at Morgott and smiled. “You want to settle accounts? Reward for merit and punish for faults, right? Alright, let’s do it.

“I remember us being enemies when we first met. Your fragmented soul possessed my son and forced us to go against each other. Do you think that’s a merit or fault?” Morgott was stunned by his words.

James put his hand behind his back and continued, “After that, you were seduced by Yehria and helped her escape to Zymurgy. What about that incident?”

Morgott immediately argued, "How can you blame me for that? You arranged for it to happen to see what forces were behind her. I simply acted according to your plan." James asked, "But did you do a good job?"

Morgott was at a loss for words.

James pointed at him and continued, "Then, when we entered the Great Historial Land, who tried to devour my Hongrome Children?"

"Don't you remember who helped you retrieve your main body and permitted you to devour Emperor Stavros' Gate of Wuia to be reborn?" Morgott's lips parted, but he couldn't utter a word in response.

James slowly approached Morgott and said, "In the Forty-Ninth Heaven, I told you not to kill indiscriminately. Did you listen? Moreover, you kept your real identity a secret from me. How do you explain this?"

Feeling a guilty conscience, Morgott mumbled, "I...I... Have I not done anything good? Have I really only caused trouble?"

James nodded and said, "You've done good work too. However, have you done more good than bad?"

Morgott stared at James speechlessly, unable to retort.

James cursed, "On top of all this, you had eyes on Harper! You're lucky yet that you succeeded and got a great bargain. Look at yourself. You're a coward, aren't good-looking, and have no culture or wisdom. Though you're one of the Ten Holiness derived from Xurraeus, you can't cultivate your own Daoism. What exactly do you have besides bloodthirstiness, cruelty, and a bad reputation?"

James circled Morgott and asked, "Yet you still want a dowry from us?"

And to be so greedy and ask for half of the Haleth Realm? Do you deserve it?" Morgott trembled, silently accepting his ridicule.

James said deliberately, "But if you really want a title, I'll grant you one. What do you think about the King of Trouble? Is that title to your liking?"

Morgott immediately raised his head. "No! That's too negative. Can't I have something else?"

James asked, smiling, "So you only want a title? Are you not interested in the Xanadu Realm anymore?"

Morgott was stunned by his words.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7440-James stared at Morgott and said, "I'll give you time to think about it. It might be hard to figure it out with your intelligence, so you should ask your wife for help."

Morgott raised his head solemnly and replied, "That won't be necessary! I can make my own choice! Now that I have Harper, I don't care about the Xanadu Realm. However, I must still have my revenge and restore my dignity!"

James squinted at his response. Morgott had always come across as humorous, impulsive, and bloodthirsty. However, he was showing a completely different side of himself at that moment. Under his funny and brutal exterior, he had endured many sufferings and hardships.

Staring at Morgott, James waved his hand and teleported Harper into the Historia Palace. Then, he sat cross-legged and summoned a jar of Chaos Absinthe before Morgott. Naturally, he took out another jar for himself and began to drink.

Simultaneously, a grand formation surrounded them.

After being momentarily stunned, Morgott quickly understood the situation. He picked up the jar of Chaos Absinthe in front of him and chugged it down.

James said, "My Chaos Absinthe isn't free! After drinking it, you'll have to speak the truth!"

Morgott grinned and set down the jar. "I helped my wife get a valuable gift and even got myself a jar of Chaos Absinthe! It's worth it!"

He laughed heartily under James' sharp gaze.

James' face darkened. "Don't be so frivolous!"

Morgott sighed and shook his head. "We're friends who have been through thick and thin! What is this called?"

"Best friends?" James replied instinctively.

Morgott looked at James and said, "That's right! We're best friends! We should trust and help each other in times of crisis. You want to know what happened to me that made me so persistent in seeking revenge, but I know you will intervene to try to help me. With your personality, you'll spare no effort and even fight to the death for me."

James' brows furrowed at his words.

Morgott looked at James and said, "But we're not strong enough yet. It will only burden you and divide your focus if I were to tell you."

“You’ve just become the Supreme Path, and there’s a whole mess in the Haleth Realm to deal with. On top of that, the Leere Tribulation hasn’t been resolved, and the Waitara Path’s Soremsia might return soon. Right now, you must be in a dilemma about whether to merge the Yin governor’s two halves.

In my opinion, your top priority should be establishing rules for the Haleth Realm, then conferring deities murgy and creating your hierarchy. By doing so, Zymurgy will have order, and peace will gradually return.

“You will have to stabilize the Haleth Realm to have the strength to face the Waitara Path’s Soremsia and secure peace.”

James looked at Morgott with newfound respect. Morgott, who was usually vulgar and arrogant, had such meticulous thoughts. Though he could not create his own Daoism, he understood the Haleth Realm’s problems well. On top of that, Morgott always prioritized James’ issues.

However, James was sure that Morgott would have dragged him into his revenge plan without hesitation if not for the Haleth Realm’s unresolved problems.

James felt warm, knowing that Morgott was a true friend who would endure any hardships with him.