

The Almighty Dragon General

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7506-“No, this...” Youcef was about to speak when Yaretzi interrupted him.

Yianni frowned and sent a telepathic message to James. “Is someone impersonating you?”

James narrowed his eyes but did not respond. He had a feeling someone might impersonate him, but the timing caught him off guard.

Even a powerful individual like Clayton had been deceived, and close confidants such as Rebella and Truett were fooled. The impersonator had done an impressive job.

James wondered, ‘Could this be the life-and-death tribulation involving betrayal that Silver had mentioned?’ Thea, who had been supporting Thora, said, “We’ve admired Emperor Caden for a long time. Would it be possible to introduce us? Moreover, the affairs of the New Shahrzard Dynasty involve my friend. We’d like to see if Emperor Caden is as selfless and righteous as the rumors suggest.”

Wyot, brimming with excitement, suddenly turned around to look at James’ group.

“Mr. Clayton, these are some seniors that Skynet’s Young Master has brought...”

Clayton looked at them and said, “Of course, they must come with us. Jaime has already reported their visit to the Grand Steward and Vice Grand Steward. They are interested in becoming friends.”

After hearing this, James and the others exchanged glances and then stood up. It would be wise to check on the impostor and gauge the other party’s strength.

Clayton looked at Yadira and the other high-ranking members of the Dooms who were kneeling on the ground.

“It seems you all have many complaints about the Jademora Empire and Emperor Caden. Our empire is always open to advice and feedback. If you have anything to say, you can do so in front of Emperor Caden.”

After speaking, a light beam shot out and bound them together.

Wyot’s expression changed instantly.

Yadira shouted angrily, “What do you mean by this, Seraphon War King?”

Clayton said solemnly, "Emperor Caden gave the order to either tie you up or kill you on the spot. Do you prefer the latter?"

Yadira and the other high-ranking members went pale at his words, too afraid to even breathe.

Clayton turned to James' group and made a welcoming gesture. "Please come with me to the golden palace."

Wyot immediately took the lead, guiding them away from the Doom Ancestral Palace.

Clayton followed them, pulling the light beam that bound Yadira and the other high-ranking members.

As they passed through the Doom territory's void, the members raised their heads and watched in shock. It was rare to see so many ve high-ranking members together, let alone bound together.

A rumor that the Doods were about to face a crisis spread instantly, causing panic in the fourth and fifth layers of Forladtt Land.

The golden palace, which symbolized the Jademora Empire's highest power and core, was located on the third layer of Forladtt Land, surrounded by Aquasoul.

The orders issued from the golden palace were absolute, capable of significantly affecting the fate of the Greater Realms.

The Imperial Guards surrounding the golden palace had increased more than tenfold compared to the usual amount. The closer guards had higher cultivation ranks. Apart from the Xerion War King, Jacopo, the other twelve war kings were present. Despite their arrival, they could only wait outside.

Otherwise, if the Greater Realms' various sects noticed such a large gathering at the golden palace, it would cause a huge uproar.

Clayton led James' group to the golden palace and then slowly descended to land on a huge field.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7507-Looking at the neatly lined-up armored guards, James and the others frowned simultaneously.

"Wait outside the palace. Anyone who dares to move will be killed without mercy," Clayton ordered, directing his words toward Yadira and the Doods' high-ranking members. Shortly after, a group of guards at the Ninth Xaeclon rank rushed over and surrounded them.

Yadira was anxious but hesitated to speak.

“My guests, please come this way,” Clayton addressed James’ group, making a gesture of invitation.

After looking at Thea, James smiled faintly. “Thank you for the hospitality.”

With that, he took the lead and ascended the stairs. Thea, Yaretzi, Yianni, Youcef, and Wyot followed him.

As they stepped into the golden palace, a series of explosions suddenly sounded on both sides.

James and the others were startled by a full 81-gun salute. Then, on the red carpet in front, a handsome man in a purple robe, accompanied by a woman, hurriedly came to greet them.

“My name is Truett. I welcome you on behalf of the Jademora Empire,” the handsome young man clasped his hands and immediately bowed to James’ group.

“Welcome, respected seniors. I’m Rubella.” The beautiful woman also greeted them with a respectful bow and clasped hands.

James was relieved by their humble behavior. After so much time had passed, they were his most trusted comrades. It was unfortunate they could not reunite because of the circumstances.

Seeing Thea staring at them without any expression, she gently tugged his sleeve.

“Oh?” James snapped back to his senses and then returned the gesture. “Thank you for having us. I’m Jarren Caino. I have just left seclusion and am still unfamiliar with the recent changes of the Greater Realms, so I came to visit.”

Truett and Rubella straightened up at the same time with a look of respect on their faces. After all, Jaime had already used special channels to inform them about James and his group’s mysterious background. Hence, they dared not neglect it in the slightest. James pointed at Thea and said, “Let me introduce you. This is my wife.”

“Quiana Talen,” Thea took over the conversation and bowed to them.

James was stunned but also agreed that it was safer to use a fake name than her real name.

After that, James introduced the rest of the group to them. Yaretzi changed her name to Yovela Yinzela, and Yianni changed her name to Yunta Langdon. Though Youcef had already exposed his true strength in front of Jacopo, he still used a fake name, Hefiz Yosiro, just in case.

Truett and Rubella greeted everyone one by one, then finally set their eyes on Thora.

Rubella stared at her and blurted, "You're still alive?"

Truett instantly grasped the situation and reassured, "I'm glad you survived. Don't worry. We'll make sure you are compensated for the sufferings you endured." Thora's eyes reddened, and she attempted to kneel to the ground. However, she was stopped by Thea.

At that moment, James sensed a figure flicker on the throne at the end of the red carpet. He said coldly, "Let's cut to the chase, Grand Stewards."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7508-Truett and Rebella exchanged glances, fully grasping the implications of James' words. They motioned for James and his companions to proceed further into the hall.

Once James and his comrades were seated, Truett and Rebella took their places on the elevated platform.

Truett commanded, "Mr. Clayton, summon the Thirteen War Kings."

Clayton turned, his voice echoing with authority, "The Grand Steward summons the Thirteen War Kings!"

Immediately, several Bohnwer Lights flashed outside the hall. The war kings of the empire, renowned for their formidable strength and high status, began to enter the hall one after another. These figures were James' former acquaintances and family, now holding significant power within the Jademora Empire.

As the war kings stood side by side in the hall, their eyes fell upon James and his companions. Strangers were rarely seated in the sacred golden palace, a privilege typically reserved for only the highest- ranking officials.

Both groups observed each other. Over the years, the war kings had made significant progress in their cultivation. Most had reached the peak of the Soma Daeclon Rank, with the least advanced at the peak of the Yitro Daeclon Rank. Xitlaly and Maxine were notably near the pinnacle of the Daeclon Mahayana.

It seemed the Greater Realms' Spiritual Evidence was on par with Waltraud Power, as it had significantly boosted his confidants' cultivation growth.

Rebella's eyes fixed on Wyot. She asked, "Did you bring all the Doom's high-ranking members, Dravon War King?"

With a resigned look, Wyot replied, "Yes. I've brought them. They're waiting outside the palace."

Truett's expression darkened. "Bring them in."

Following his order, the guards escorted Yadira and Doom's high-ranking members into the palace. The sight of the grand hall and the powerhouses present left them visibly terrified, their earlier arrogance replaced with palpable fear.

Wyot barked, "Kneel! Have you forgotten the rules?"

Yadira hesitated, her face showing displeasure. However, the high-ranking members behind her immediately knelt and kowtowed. "Greetings to the Grand Steward, Vice Grand Steward!"

Though they were arrogant in the Jademora Empire, they did not dare display such insolence in the presence of the two highest authorities of their empire.

Yadira, however, maintained an upright posture, arrogantly staring at Truett and Rebella.

Rebella ignored her defiant posture and turned to Thora. "Come, explain what happened."

With Thea's encouragement, Thora stepped forward and recounted the atrocities Yadira and the Doom Army had committed. She provided detailed accounts of her dynasty's destruction, instantly inciting the war kings fury. They looked at Yadira with contempt, as if ready to tear her apart.

Yadira interrupted arrogantly, "Are you done now? Is it my turn yet?"

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7509-Maxine sneered, "What else do you need to say? You're still so shameless even now."

Yadira glared at Maxine and snorted, "To distinguish right from wrong, and to uphold justice, one must have evidence. Does the Ythran War King want to violate Emperor Caden's Daoism?"

Maxine's face darkened. Just as she was about to react, Xatia quickly stopped her.

Rubella interjected, "Go ahead, but make sure you give a proper explanation."

Yadira said confidently, "There's nothing to explain. The Doom Army's mission is to maintain the Jademora Empire and uphold Emperor Caden's principles. Those who defy the rules will face the wrath of the Doom Army and be wiped out without mercy."

Yadira pointed at Thora. “The New Shahrzad Dynasty refused to participate in the empire’s Wyrth Selection and challenged the empire’s principle that no one can be obstructed from participating. It was reasonable for us to send troops to eradicate them.”

Her words caused an uproar.

Thora cried out anxiously, “That’s not true!”

Yadira interrupted angrily. “What’s not true? The Jorvath War King, Adair, personally arranged the Wyrth Selection. You can ask him about it. The other realms participated in the selection, except for the New Shahrzad Dynasty. Why is that?”

“It’s not like that...” Thora tried to explain, but Rubella interrupted her.

Rubella turned to Adair and asked, “Is this true?”

Adair replied, “There were indeed no participants from the New Shahrzad Dynasty in the Demon Region’s Wyrth Selection.”

The hall burst into another wave of uproar.

Thora rushed forward and shouted anxiously, “That’s not true! When we received the Wyrth Selection Token the Doom Army had already arrived. Before we could even comply, they launched a full-scale attack on us. We didn’t even have the time...”

Yadira snorted, “Is that so? As far as I know, the Wyrth Selection Token was issued fifty epochs ago.”

“The New Shahrzad Dynasty is located in the Tai Chi World, which is closer to the Imperial Capital than the Dark World. Yet, the Dark World received the Wyrth Selection Token, but you didn’t? That’s nonsense.”

Faced with Yadira’s relentless accusations, Thora hurriedly fell to ׀.

her knees before Truett and Rubella. “We did not receive the Wyrth Selection Token. If you don’t believe me, send someone to investigate. I will accept death if any of my words are a lie.”

Truett and Rubella exchanged glances, both frowning. They had a rough understanding of the situation. However, Yadira was more than just a normal high-ranking member of the Doom Race. She was a close confidant of the chancellor, Xezal. Without irrefutable evidence, it would be hard to deal with the matter.

After a moment of hesitation, Truett asked, “Why hasn’t the chancellor arrived yet?”

Clayton stepped forward and snorted, "She said she will be in seclusion, and the empire's affairs have nothing to do with her."

His answer caused a surge of commotion. Everyone knew that Xezal played a huge part in planning and strategizing for the Jademora Empire, building its foundation and prestige. Now that there was an issue regarding the Dooms, how could she not show up?

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 7510-Suddenly, a furious voice echoed from outside the hall. "Since Xezal won't show up, I'll handle this race myself!"

In the next moment, forty-nine purple-gold Sword Lights descended from the void outside the hall, aiming for the Dooms' high-ranking members.

With a deafening rumble, the Sword Lights struck the ground, causing the hall to tremble violently. Over forty of the Dooms' high-ranking members exploded instantly, their blood and flesh splattering everywhere.

Those who survived immediately fled in different directions.

Faced with the unexpected massacre, Truett, Rebella, and the war kings were stunned. Their expressions changed drastically. No one had ever dared to act out in the golden palace, the highest authority in the Jademora Empire.

Meanwhile, James and his companions remained calm, as though they had anticipated this outcome.

After a moment of silence, a massive purple-gold Sword Light began to coalesce. It swiftly descended at the hall's entrance, forming into a mysterious figure.

As the figure materialized, hundreds of purple-gold Sword Lights burst from his body, darting toward the Dooms' higher-ranking members.

Startled, Wyot quickly cast a huge shield with his Bohnwer Light to block the Sword Lights.

A series of buzzing noises echoed as the Sword Lights clashed with the shield. Neither side seemed willing to yield.

"How dare you take lives in the Jademora Empire's golden palace? Who are you?" Wyot shouted angrily as he struggled to block the attacks.

The figure at the hall's entrance exuded a murderous aura. Commanding his Sword Lights, he revealed his true appearance.

It was a handsome man with long white hair, dressed in a white robe. As he controlled the Sword Lights, the strong winds blew his cloak dramatically, giving him the appearance of a domineering warrior. Upon seeing the man's face, Wyot and the other war kings were taken aback.

Truett exclaimed, "It's Xzavion!"

Rebella gasped, "When did he come out of seclusion? He's using the Fiery Ten Directions Sword. Has he reached the Daeclon Mahayana?"

Hearing their discussions, James scrutinized Xzavion.

It had been eons since he had sent Xzavion, Quattro, and Stephen back to the Dark World to establish a secret passage to the Genesis Words. That was the last time they had met.

James did not expect Xzavion's appearance to have changed so drastically or his strength to have increased so much.

Thea whispered, "He reached the Daeclon Mahayana, but his foundation isn't stable yet."

James replied, "Yeah. Since he's here, we don't need to take action for now."

He reminded Thea, Yaretzi, Yiannin, and Youcef to remain still.

Xzavion's Sword Lights and Wyot's shield were at a standstill, neither side willing to give in.

However, it was clear to any discerning eye that Wyot was struggling and that Xzavion had the upper hand, attacking effortlessly.

The Dooms' higher-ranking members, protected by the shield, were horrified. They were shocked that Xzavion had appeared, reached the Da clon Mahayana, and had the audacity to attack the golden palace in front of Rebella, Truett, and the other war kings.

Yadira regained her composure, rushed over, and shouted, "Have you gone mad, Xzavion? How dare you take action in the golden palace? Do you want to become the Jademora Empire's public enemy?"

Xzavion squinted his eyes. "So you're the real culprit?"