

Alpha's Blind Luna, Chapter 30

"Logan! We need to leave in soon! What are you doing?"

I put a necklace on and smoothed out my dress. We were taking the drive to Midnight Howl pack for Ty and Christine's baby shower. Ty asked me to come early and I was happy to, but Logan had gotten exponentially busier the past three days. I walked out of the bedroom and down the stairs. Bryan was walking up and he whistled.

"Looking good, Luna."

I rolled my eyes as we high fived past each other. Walking down the hall, the door was cracked open to Logan's office. He was on the phone, his head in his hands. There was double the amount of paperwork on his desk than there normally was.

"Look, I don't care whether this goes through or doesn't. If anything it's more paperwork for me to do. But I'm not going to just let them flip flop. They have 48 hours. If they don't agree, we will move forward with the other plans."

Logan looked up at me and waved me in.

"Yes. Yes. No. Not until I have the paperwork in my hands."

I smiled at him. He put up his hand and made a twirling motion. Turning on my heel, I let the purple sundress fall out. I had chosen black flats and a gold necklace that Logan had gotten me. He smiled and nodded his head.

"Yeah. No. Okay. I'll talk to you later." He hung up the phone and patted his lap.

I sauntered over to him and instead of sitting with my back against him, I straddled him. My fingers brushed his face.

"You look stressed."

He sighed. "The pitfalls of owning multiple companies while also managing a pack."

I kissed his forehead. "We need to leave soon."

"I know, I'm sorry. The gift is right here." Logan pointed to the chair off to the right.

A perfectly wrapped box in a pastel blue with a pink bow. Ty and Christine were going to reveal the gender at the party. One thing I learned about Logan was that he was a master wrapper. It was beautiful and meticulous; a skill I never thought Logan would master.

'Alpha. Luna.'

I looked at Logan, worried.

'A pack of rogues just came from the West. There were five of them. Group 6 took out two.'

'Where are they headed?' Logan asked, staring at me.

'Into the city main Alpha. Hectors already got Group 2 and 8 stationed outside the city to intercept.'

"Shit."

"Go Logan. It's okay." I rubbed his arm.

He kissed my cheek. "You've been looking forward to this for weeks, love."

"I'll take the Mercedes. You can follow me when you are done in the Bugatti."

He raised his eyebrow. "Auri, are you telling me you can drive?"

I looked at him. "When did I ever say I couldn't?" I winked as I jumped off his lap. He got up and headed out of the office after me, carrying the present.

"Alpha!" Bryan looked like he just got the message.

"Did you know Auri could drive?" Logan completely ignoring the panic in Bryan's face.

Bryan blinked, trying to register what he said. "Yeah. I mean, she's driven into the city multiple times with Hector and I."

I smiled at Logan who looked dumbfounded.

"But she's..."

"Only blind when I don't use Kai's eyes. Is that okay? I know you want to go. They asked me to come early anyways."

"I don't like you going alone." All three of us walked into the garage.

"I'm going on the opposite directions of the rogues. I'll be at Tv's and you will be done and on your way in no time at all."

He set the present down in the passenger side of the Mercedes'. Bryan hopped into the Jeep next to it. Logan wrapped his arms around my waist and pulled me into a kiss.

"I trust you and I love you. Have your phone close at all times. I'll be right behind you."

I nodded and kissed him again before he pulled away and jumped into the Jeep after Bryan. I waved as he pulled out and they drove off.

'He trusts us now.'

'Cause we kicked his ass.' Kai and I laughed.

Getting into the drivers seat, I pulled the seat way up. "Fucking shit. Why does everyone in this house have to be so damn tall?"

It took my three minutes to get the seat and mirrors adjusted so I could see out of them. Pulling out, I headed down the road and onto the highway. Flipping through the radio, I couldn't land on anything. I took out my phone and plugged it into the car, just hitting shuffle on my songs. Max and Morgan had dropped a fortune buying songs so I could practice with my phone and always have them.

I was about an hour into the drive when my song was cut short by my phone ringing. I answered it.

'I'm on my way.'

"That was quick!"

'I'll need to scope out that corner. Somehow they keep getting in on the northwest part of the territory.'

"Sounds like a job for another day."

Logan chuckled. 'Yeah. Exactly. Where are you? I might catch up with you in the Bugatti.'

I scoffed. "Logan. Morgan taught me to drive."

'Oh Goddess. I never should have let you go.'

"No, you're just lucky I didn't take the Bugatti."

He laughed. 'Alright. Alright.'

"I miss you."

"And I vou. Be safe.'

"Always. You too."

'Always.'

The phone ended and the song that had been interrupted started to play again.

'We have the best mate.' Kai happily mused.

'See you say that like we didn't have our issues.'

'Yeah but the moon goddess knows.'

I rolled my eyes and turned up the song. I started to sing again, practicing some of the more challenging songs that Max and I would play together.

The next few hours went quickly and I found myself turning into familiar territory. Driving down the same roads I used to sit in the back seat of my father and Melissa's car. Or when Tv would take me out. It made me a little nervous and even Kai was on edge.

We turned down the street to Tv's new house. I was familiar with the area and Ty had actually driven me by the house before, declaring that it was going to be his house one day. It made me smile that Ty got the house he wanted.

"That you paid for.' Kai scoffed.

'He doesn't know that. He just thinks he's getting a really good monthly.'

'Which you set up that after a year of owning the house, all the money they paid would be deposited then back to them. In one lump sum.'

'One of my more genius plans. I smiled. I mean, I don't know how I didn't get caught paying for his car.'

Kai laughed as we pulled into the driveway. Turning off the car, I grabbed the present. Walking up the to the door, I took a deep breath and let darkness engulf my vision.

'You sure?'

'I don't know how much Ty told his mate. I don't want to freak her out.'

'Alright. If you need me.' Kai sat back.

I knocked on the door and waited. I heard thundering inside the house and the door swung open.

"Auri!" Ty tore the present from me and lifted me into a hug. "I missed you!"

I smiled, hugging him back. "Hey Ty."

"You know Tyler, it's rude to not introduce us!" I heard a female voice behind him.

He set me down. "Auri, this is my mate Christine. Christine, this is my best older sister."

"Only. And it's lovely to meet you." I smiled but she pulled my into a hug.

"Ty has told me a lot about you. Just do you know, you always have a place here if you need it." Christine was small but could feel the bump of her pregnancy.

I blinked and got a good look at Christine. She was startled for a moment but she smiled. "Ty did say your wolf worked in tandem with you but it's actually fascinating to see."

"You get used to it." Ty put his arm around my shoulder. "Is Logan coming in?"

"We had some issues back at the pack. He'll be along in an hour."

"Wait. Did you drive here?!" Ty looked at the window. "In a Mercedes?!"

I chuckled. "Logan's taking the Bugatti."

"Bu. Bugatti?!" Ty looked like he was going to cry.

"If you want a spin, you have to ask him. That's his baby."

He whined at me and I shrugged.

"Auri, come here. Would you please do something about his hair?! He refuses to let anyone else do it. And I don't understand!"

I laughed. "Is this why I'm here early?"

"Partly." Ty looked down.

"You do look like a mop top. Come here. We'll cut it."

Ty brought a sheet to put on the floor and sat in a chair. "Does Alpha Logan know of your expert hair cutting skills?"

I came around and looked at Ty's face. It had filled out a little more, not looking like such a scrawny teenager anymore. There were also more laugh lines. He looked happy. It made me smile. Kai stepped back as I ran my fingers through his hair. My cutting skills depended solely on touch. It was easy to make sure that the sides were same all by feel. It was also making it symmetrical with the face easier as well. I realized early on that your eyes can deceive you.

I snipped quite a bit off, not knowing when I could be back or when Ty would have time to get it cut again with a pup on the way. Something that would grow out nicely.

"You weren't kidding."

I finished and Christine was leaning against the doorway. I smiled and stepped back to look at my work. It suited him nicely. The short brown hair now fell nicely and smoothly.

"His face has filled out a little more, so it holds up better against shorter hair."

"Did you just say I got fat?!" Ty whined.

Christine put her hand over her mouth, giggling.

"No, I said your face filled out more."

"Auri!" Ty got up and looked in the mirror. "I mean the hair looks great but..." he squished his cheeks.

Christine linked her arm in mine. "I think we shall be best friends."

I chuckled. We cleaned up the mess and I made some of my iced tea at the behest of Ty, who was still pouting.

"Auri, there is another reason why we asked you earl." Ty said after he took a sip of iced tea, sighing.

"How can I help?"

"So, we have the gender reveal. Ty and I actually don't know either it's in this envelope." Christine was sitting at their kitchen nook, holding up an envelope.

"We want you to make your cake and put the gender in the frosting. So when we cut it, we find out."

I looked at the two of them, stunned. "You want me to bake your gender reveal cake?"

Christine nodded and Ty put a hand on my shoulder. "If that's okay with you. Maddie gave me the list of ingredients, so we should have everything."

Tears shinned in my eyes. "Of course I would! It's an honor!"

Between the three of us, we set up and started baking the cake. I settled on a three layered cake. Big enough to feed the group they were having.

Christine turned on some music and two of them sang as we mixed the batter. She was almost as bad as Maddie, in both staring me down as I worked and singing. They were cute though.

"Auri sing!!" Christine tried to push me to sing.

"You really don't want that." I smiled as I poured the batter into the mold and put it into the oven.

"Come on Auri, I don't think I've ever heard you sing!"

"That's for a reason, Ty."

"What? Afraid you'll show us up? Or be totally terrible?" Christine wiggled her hips only making it funnier by the bump sticking out.

"Yes. Exactly."

"Here! Here! Sing the chorus with me!" Ty took the spoon he'd had been licking and used it as a microphone.

He sang the main part and I rolled my eyes, putting my hands on my hips. When the chorus came, I sang out the chorus line. Both him and Christine started at me like I was an alien. I finished but Ty didn't pick back up again.

"Auri, when did you learn to sing?" Ty sounded upset.

"I started singing at a club in the city when I was 16. I knew I could sing probably when I was 14. I would sing with the pianist at the club."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"Ty, there are a lot of things you don't know about me. Did you really think I worked at the factory for 11 years? You know what kind of factory it was. I found friends and a paycheck elsewhere." I gave him a sad smile. "Don't be upset."

"I started singing at a club in the city when I was 16. I knew I could sing probably when I was 14. I would sing with the pianist at the club."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"Ty, there are a lot of things you don't know about me. Did you really think I worked at the factory for 11 years? You know what kind of factory it was. I found friends and a paycheck elsewhere." I gave him a sad smile. "Don't be upset."

He came over and pulled me into a hug. "I just would have felt a little better knowing that I didn't need to worry about you so much. Or that I needed to worry about you more."

I patted his back. "Well, now we don't have to worry about any of that. So it's fine."

A roar of an engine tore through the kitchen and Ty leaned back, bouncing up and down. Shaking my head, I let go and we walked over to the door. Ty opened the door and Logan was striding up the walkway.

Ty held out his hand. "Alpha Logan, glad you could make it."

Logan took it, shaking it hard. "Nice to meet you, Tyler. Auri has nothing but good things to say about you."

I smiled up at Ty. "Logan, Ty is a bit of a car nerd. Do you mind showing him the Bugatti?"

Logan smiled, pulling me in and kissing me on the head. "Of course. We'll take a spin around the block."

I leaned up and smiled at him. He kissed me on the lips and tossed Ty the keys.

"Wait, I get to drive?" Ty let out a squeak.

"How else are you gonna take her for a spin. Let's go. I'll show you all the extras."

Logan let me go and gave me a sad smile. I gave him a small wave. Christine took my arm and brought me back into the house. She poured her and I some more iced tea.

"He seems so sweet with you."

I smiled, blushing. "I was scared of him at first. His Alpha presence is pretty intense. But he just cares deeply about his pack."

"I'd been to a couple Gatherings with him. He was so stoic and scary. The complete opposite of his Beta. "

I nodded. "How Bryan and Logan don't kill each other on a daily basis, it blows my mind. But Bryan keeps Logan on his toes."

"Ty took over as Beta and Collin took over as Alpha. His dad is still up in his business. It's been a bit of a mess at the pack house. Ty pretty much has to play peacekeeper between the two of them. It's ridiculous."

I rolled my eyes. "Logan had to teach me a lot about the pack and how it's run just because I was never even registered." I took a sip of tea. "He also runs his pack very differently. So he showed me both."

She smiled. "You love him, don't you?"

I blushed. "I mean, he's my mate."

"Girl, there is a difference between wanting to jump his bones every two minutes and actually loving the man." Christine wagged her eyebrows. "I love your brother. He's gentle and kind and everything his parents aren't." She grumbled the last sentence.

I chuckled. "We've had the greatest example of what not to do."

The buzzer went off and I took out the cake. Setting it aside to cool. I looked back at her, eyes cast down. "I do love him. Absolutely."

"Good! Make sure he treats you right! After all you've been through, you deserve some happiness."

'She's a good one. I like her.' Kai added.

'Me too, Kai. I'm glad she's Ty's mate.'