

Alpha's Blind Luna Online Free

Epilogue 3

***Logan's POV***

My hands were holding my son. He was crying, the cord still attached to Auri. I was shaking. She was dead. Her heart stopped. She had breathed her last breath. The mate bond felt like a flower that had gone grey and withered away. I stared at the small little life in my hands. The pup I didn't even know that was coming. My voice couldn't be found. My mind blank. (4)

Justin ran up to me. "FUCK!" He threw his med bag down and started to take out different tools. I watched as he tore a piece of duct tape with his teeth and covered the wound on her neck. He laid her flat on the ground and pulled out a defibrillator out of his bag. "ALPHA! CUT THE CORD!"

I looked at the cord and I pinched it. My nails elongated and I sliced it, still holding onto the end since I didn't have a clamp.

"STARTING!"

I watched as he paddled Auri's body. It jerked and I pulled my baby close. I had him against me, watching in horror. I vaguely was aware that more of my warriors had joined us. Justin just continued to work, he counted again, touching the paddles to her chest. His tears were falling down.

Logan, how do we fix this? We have to fix this! Cato cried from inside but I had no answer for him.

"She was supposed to come in today!" He yelled. "Damn it, LUNA!" He yelled and slammed his fist into her chest.

That's when we all heard it. A small gasp.

Justin's eyes went wide and he started barking orders. I watched as Everett came over and picked up her body, transferring her to the gurney.

"ALPHA! Wrap that pup in something to keep him warm. Follow us to the hospital NOW."

The doors to the ambulance slammed shut and I looked down at the little baby in my arms. Pulling my shirt off, I wrapped him up in my shirt. We were both covered in blood but I just looked down at him. His hair a shock of white.

"Little Vale, what happened while I was gone? How did you get so big?" I put my finger in his little hand and he closed his fingers around mine. I tried to smile but I just watched as my tears fell against his head. "Vale, I don't know if I can do this with your mommy."

"Logan!"

Bryan strode and bent down. "The..fuck..who is this?"

I looked up at him but he looked distorted through my tears. "Auri died. She died, Bryan. I held her throat, but she said..she ordered me..to make sure he was okay." I looked down at Vale, his cries had stopped, his little hand holding mine. "She gave birth but she died. She died. The mate bond just withered away. Bryan, I don't know..." I started to sob.

"We need to get to the hospital, Logan. He needs to get checked out. Justin took Auri there as well, right?"

I nodded, holding Vale closer to me. Bryan grabbed me under my arm and pulled me up. Unsteady on my feet, Bryan held me by my shoulders until I stopped swaying. I nodded to him again and we started to make our way to the front of the school.

"I'm going to take care of the kids. Send them home for the day. She had evacuated them all to the gym in time. I'll take care of Alpha's kids as well." Captain Everett spoke to Bryan but he was looking at me. "Auri and Lila, they both saved the kids here."

"Make sure you take care of Lila. We will bury her as a Captain. Retired or not, she gave her life to protect this pack." Bryan replied, making sure he kept a hand on my back as we walked.

Bryan opened the passenger door and I climbed in, never jostling Vale. He got into the driver's seat. I took the edge of the shirt that was still clean and I wiped off his little face. I felt a searing pain and I squeezed my eyes shut. There was still a thin thread left of the mate bond. I tried to cling to it, hold onto it for dear life. Every so often it would flicker out but I just continued to hold it as tight as I could.

"What's his name?"

I looked up at Bryan. "Vale. His name is Vale."

"He already looks like Auri with that hair." He mused as he drove

I nodded and touched his tuft of platinum hair. He moved around a bit and I repositioned my hand under his head.

"Did you know?"

I shook my head. "She said it when I mind linked with her as I came into range."

He swore. "I thought you were done after the twins)

"So did I."

"Do you... feel her?"

I bit down on my lip. "I can feel it flickering. It withered into a thread and I've just been holding onto it for dear life. Trying to not let it go but it flickers. Slips through my fingers sometimes."

"Auri is strong, Logan. She won't leave us that easily."

'He's right. I can still feel her as well. Just barely. She's fighting again. Fighting for us.' Cato added

It was so different this time. I had felt the pain. I had felt the mate bond wither away before but to feel it wither and go grey. Feel it as it blew away like dust. I couldn't function. I was on auto pilot. I just held tight to the precious child in my arms. Auri had ordered me to help. My head still hadn't grasped the situation.

"Let's go!" Bryan left the Jeep, running in front of the emergency room and opened the door for me.

I climbed out and walked into the room. Nurses swarmed me.

"Alpha! We will take him."

I looked down at Vale, asleep in my arms. I didn't want to let him go. My eyes filled with tears.

Bryan squeezed my shoulder.

"Let them take him. He needs to be checked out."

I placed him gently into the arms of a nurse. "His name is Vale." I said quietly.

"We will take good care of him Alpha, don't worry."

Watching them walk off, my hands felt empty. I just stood in the middle of the emergency room with nothing. Bryan pulled me into the door past the main room and pushed me into the restroom. I looked at myself covered in blood. My shaking started to worsen but Bryan still held my shoulder, grounding me.

"Clean up Logan. I'll grab you a shirt."

I nodded and leaned over the sink, unable to take my own reflection. Bryan left my side and I turned on the water. Starting with my hands, I washed off the blood. I scrubbed my arms as well. Once I looked clean, I leaned against the sink and closed my eyes. The mate bond down was more than a single thread. It was more of a ribbon. I clung to it for dear life. As I held onto it, I felt a soft hand brush my cheek. ②

"Auri!" My eyes snapped open but I was alone. She reached out through the bond! Our mate is going to be okay!' Cato cried out. Not until I see her, hear her. I can't have hope. I can't hope.' I closed my eyes again.

"Logan, here." Bryan came in and handed me a shirt.

Pulling it on, I took a deep breath. We walked out of the restroom just as a nurse rushed out of the operation room. I looked at Bryan and he shrugged. We sat down in the chairs outside the door and I leaned forward. My elbows on my knees and my head in my hands, I focused on holding the mate bond. Not letting it go

"Alpha"

I looked up, startled. I looked at the clock. Three hours had passed.

"Your son is doing good. Perfectly healthy. Her water had actually broken and even though it was a month early, you wouldn't know. There are a couple more tests we are running but he should be all set to go by tonight."

I nodded. "I'm not leaving until.." I looked at the operation room.

"We will take care of him Alpha, as long as you need."

"Thank you."

I took up my original position, scared that me getting distracted would make me lose the bond. It was still there though, thicker. Color coming back to it rather than the grey that it had turned. Bryan got up and I looked up. Justin had come out of the room. I stood as well, staring at him. "Justin..."

"She's okay, Alpha."

My knees buckled and I fell to the floor. Bryan grabbed my shoulder for support.

"I don't know how, honestly, with those wounds, I genuinely don't know. She refused to give up though. We got ourselves one hell of a Luna." Justin ran his hands through his hair. "There is."

I looked up at him, my eyes filled with tears. "Alpha, she won't ever speak again."<sup>2</sup>

My eyes widened and I felt Bryan's hand clench and start to shake.

"The damage to her neck. her vocal cords is not repairable. We did what we could, so it wouldn't cause her pain in the future, But.." Justin's voice trailed off.<sup>3</sup>

My head bowed and my fists balled up. Auri was going to have to go through it again. Part of her soul, her identity, ripped away. Our kids would never hear her lullaby again. Vale would never hear his mother's voice. I started to sob

"She's alive, Logan." Bryan knelt next to me "I need to go check on the baby. I'll come back and tell you when you can go in to see her." Justin left us in the hallway.

I squeezed my eyes shut and sucked in my breath "She's alive. She made it."

"Bryan, she's never going to sing again."

He nodded. "But she will be there. It will be an adjustment but you guys have done it before. Overcome everything thrown at you. You can overcome this "

My lip quivered and my tears flowed down my cheeks. Bryan picked me up off the floor and set me back in the chair. I leaned over and tried to breathe through the shaking, through the tears. Taking up the chair next to me, Bryan kept a hand on my back as I leaned forward. We waited in silence, only listening to my own deep strangled breaths or the clock on the wall

It's okay Logan. My family is what defines me now. Not just my voice or my strength.

My head shot up. 'Auri?' My disbelief in hearing her. Cato whined.

Who else? Silly Alpha.'

I stared at the door. 'Justin hasn't cleared us to go in yet.

She chuckled through the link. 'I'm here. Even if there is something separating us.

Auri, you died. You died.' I cried with Cato.

I know but I couldn't give up on my promise. I couldn't stop fighting. But Lila..she...

We will take care of Lila's family, I promise. 'I stood up and walked to the door, standing a foot from it. 'Why must you do this to me so often, Auri. I'm going to lose every thread of sanity I have left.!

Aurichuckled again. 'How's Vale?'

Justin went to check on him but the nurse told me he was good about five hours ago. Healthy and full term even though he was born a month early.

'Vale was the right choice then,

This time I choked out a chuckle. 'Grew to an adult in one day? Your humor is not amusing, my love.!

It's called being clever, Logan.

He looks like you. Has your platinum hair. A little tuft of it. He didn't even cry that much. Held onto my finger the entire time!

"Goddess, if you are bothering her through mindlink, I swear I will kick you out of my hospital now." Justin came strolling up

"She started it." Was all I could get out.

Tattle tale.

I smiled as he pushed open the door with his back. He was holding Vale, now swaddled in a blanket. He gestured to me and I walked in after him. Auri was sitting up against a pillow. Her neck and shoulders were wrapped in bandages. She was smiling though and I went to her side. Leaning over, shakily I pressed my lips to hers gently. My lips left hers and I kissed the top of her head.

Justin leaned over and moved her hands gently. He placed Vale in her arms and she smiled wider, tears coming to her eyes. I sat on the edge of the bed, pressing my body into the pillows. I let her lean against my chest and kept my cheek pressed against the side of her head, looking down at our baby.

Her hand ran over his face gently. Vale cooed against her touch.

He's beautiful.

Of course he is, he takes after you, my love.

Her head leaned into mine. Justin had stepped back for a moment, watching us. He was smiling but I could see something else. My eyes narrowed.

"Justin?"

He cleared his throat. "Vale is healthy and strong. All his tests were normal."

"But?"

Auri had tightened her hold on Vale. My hand wove around and held her arm as tight as I dared. Justin shifted his weight before he leaned over and pulled the blanket back. Vale was no longer as red as he had been when I bundled him up. Justin exposed his right side and turned himself slightly to my view and looked up at me. I inhaled sharply.

Logan?' Auri sounded scared. She couldn't see what Justin was showing me but instinctually she pulled Vale even closer and leaning further into my body.

"He has the Alpha King mark. Auri, Vale is the next Alpha King."