

181 181- Tamia's Lycan

Aurora: 1

Placing the phone in my pocket, I was grinning ear to ear.

"Asshole!" I muttered while standing up, fixing my training sweatpants.

After spending two days with him, I couldn't wait to be with him again. Goddess. I was missing him.

Come back, my king!

With a sigh, I ran a gaze over the ground where my warriors were sitting in groups, chatting and discussing.

"Hey, Gavin," I waved at him, "I need to go to the office to do my official work," he showed me a thumbs-up sign and got busy with the leg pulling of his friend.

Once inside the office, I opened my laptop and thought of the stuff that needed to be done.

"Urgh. I'm missing him!" I let my head fall on the desk, "Sebastian!" I groaned into the desk and then straightened.

"Coffee?" I smiled when Emily's smiling face popped through the door.

Ah. She is a blessing.

"A chocolate croissant, too," I snapped my fingers.

I looked at the work pile on my desk and then took out my phone, "See. What have you done!" After typing him a message, I sent him a snapshot of my desk that had several files piled up.

He sent a sad emoji and then sent back a text, "Send me your picture, wife. I need to see you."

I rolled up my eyes and glued the phone to my chest. I had rarely taken a selfie, nor was I a pro at it.

"Fine!" I mumbled and sent him a selfie.

"Sweetheart. This isn't your face. All I can see is a black mask," And then there was an angry emoji.

Ha-ha.

I took off the mask and took another selfie. I was waiting for the picture to get through when I heard a gasp.

Emily was standing in the doorway, holding a cup of coffee. Her eyes were staring at the floor. For the first time in life, I didn't feel ashamed of my face.

"Come in, Emily," I tapped the surface of my desk, "Thank you for being so thoughtful."

181 181- Tamia's Lycan

She offered me a wobbly smile and then turned on her heels to leave.

I took a sip of my coffee and then held the mask between my index finger and thumb. There was hardly one week left in Amora's arrival.

She wanted me to choose a third spot, and I'd already decided that my third place would be the moment Tamia decided to shave off my head.

This time I would shave her head. History needed to change a little bit.

But first, I needed to go into the past and bring the stone for Amora that she needed for her magic.

My focus moved back to my phone when it pinged again.

Another message from Sebastian.

"You're so se*xy. I'm coming back this evening."

What? I laughed. He was supposed to be away for two days.

"No, Seb! You can't. Beta Hunter is here. Stay there and make this world a better place for all of us."

In reply, he sent me an eye-rolling GIF.

"Back to work now!" I slid the laptop towards me and started typing the report. My phone kept pinging because my warriors were in contact with me.

After getting my work done, I stretched and yawned loudly. Staying with Sebastian might have filled my emotional void, but now I was having sleepless nights.

When he was closer, all I wanted to do was touch him, and wanted him to make love.

"You will still have sleepless nights if he isn't with you," Aria reminded me, and she did have a point.

Yeah. Sebastian King is the death of me.

"Thinking about Sebastian?" The voice behind me made me jump in terror. I got on my feet fast and moved away to maintain some distance.

"What are you doing here, Tamia?" I struggled to steady my racing heart.

"Tamia? For you, I'm Luna Tamia, darling," She walked to my chair and sat down.

I kept looking at her with my arms folded on my chest, "Are you here to sit on my chair? So, now you like the head warrior seat more, Tamia?" I asked her, raising my brow.

She threw her head back and laughed. There was some weird undertone in her voice. The bitch used the magic to reach here.

"Aurora. Her intentions aren't good," my wolf tried to warn me.

"What!" Tamia revolved my chair a bit and gave me a daring look, "Don't tell me that your little wolf is scared of me."

So, Aria was right. Tamia did know about her presence.

"I have work to do, Tamia. Can you just fu*ck off?"

"Whoa!" she laughed again, "You know how to cross a line, Phoenix," Her eyes were slowly turning orange.

I could see her arms getting thicker, and long nails were slowly emerging from her knuckles. Her face was also pulling back, getting scarier as hair started popping out slowly from her face.

"Aurora..." my wolf started backing off, "Aurora. Run! Go out where your warriors are..."

Can't I use my hands to push her?

I asked myself, but Aria shook her head, "No time for this, Aurora. Run!"

Without wasting a minute, I raced to the door and ran out without looking back.

"Send a mindlink to Sebastian!" I shouted at the Lycan guards standing there, "Tell him my life is in danger."

Poor them didn't know the Luna was inside my office.

I didn't even bother to cover my face and kept running until I reached the ground.

My warriors got up in alarm when they saw me running to the middle of the ground without wearing my mask.

"Phoenix," Gavin got near me. Before he could ask me, I saw the she-Lycan heading towards me with a growl.

Now, all the warriors could see her, and they were confused.

They didn't know if they were supposed to block their Luna or keep their head warrior safe.

Behind her, I saw Tina, coming out of the building in shock.

Tamia's Lycan looked around until its eyes found me. It growled loudly and slapped several times on her chest.

And then?

It started running towards me with full throttle.
