

Contract With Alpha Logan by Misha K

Chapter 46

Kylie POV

Beta Asher was standing in front of Graham, and he had a panicked expression on his face. "Alpha Logan has surrounded the Lunar pack with his wolves. They are ready to attack us and I don't know why? But Shir is also with them!"

Graham's mouth dropped to the floor. "What the fuck! I knew, that bloody bastard was a traitor."

Meanwhile, Zoe pulled the sheet over herself as she listened to the conversation. "I told you, Alpha Graham," she interjected. "He was selling secrets to Alpha Logan on Kylie's behest. You shouldn't have let him go."

"Shut up!" Graham roared, snapping his head towards her. "What I shouldn't have done is agree to whatever the f u c k you planned. Look where has it got us now!"

She started shaking and crying. "Alpha Graham, I only wanted your Luna back in the pack. I love you so much that I couldn't stand it when you felt horrible about her absence."

Graham stabbed his fingers in his hair as he glared at me. "If you think I am going to leave you, then you are mistaken! In fact, I am going to use you to make him retreat."

The news of Alpha Logan and his warriors surrounding the pack to attack it was a complete surprise to me. Hope rekindled in my chest and a lump of emotions formed in my throat. He had come here to save me. "You may try it, Graham," I said with a hoarse throat. "But Alpha Logan will eventually take me back."

Enraged, he stormed to me and slapped me across my face. I screamed as my head hit the wall behind. The skin split and blood oozed out. It trickled down my forehead, over my eyes and down my jaws. He sat down and pinched my chin to lift my face up. "Then you don't know me, bitch!" Without looking at Zoe, he said, "Take her to the basement, Zoe, and keep her there till I win this war."

"With pleasure, Alpha Graham," she scowled at me.

Graham shoved my face and got up to leave. Asher was waiting for him at the door. They spoke in hushed tones and went away. The guard closed the door of the room. Zoe climbed out of the bed. She hurried wearing her clothes, saying, "You are a filthy cunt, Kylie. You have no regard for your people. You are so fucking selfish that just to get out of here, you've called Alpha Logan to attack on your husband and mate. I am yet to see someone as horrible and emotionless as you are. I'm sure that the Moon Goddess is going to give you a horrible punishment." She came to me and opened my chains, but shackled my wrists behind my back. "Come, let me take you to hell! Once Alpha Graham beats Alpha Logan, trust me, you are going to see your worst!"

"I don't think that stage will come, Zoe," I said to her, my blood trickling down to my throat. "Don't even talk about punishments with me. Because when I will get my hands on you, I won't throw you in the dungeons, I will kill you and throw your body to vultures!"

She pushed me hard, and I fell to the floor on my knees. A sudden wave of pain struck my knees, causing tears to fill my eyes. She grabbed my hair and yanked me up. “Come on, bitch. No time for pleasantries.” She took me through the secret passage that opened from the room and into the backyard. “Hurry!” she hissed when I faltered. If she took me to the basement, there was no way I would ever escape. That basement was windowless and two levels below the ground floor.

Graham POV

Upon hearing that Alpha Logan had come to attack my pack, my rage was off the charts. It was all because of Kylie. That b c h was going to get the best of me after I negotiated with Logan. I knew that Alpha Logan was a beast and his wolf was the strongest. But I also knew what his weak point was. My Luna. And my Luna was going to be my winning chip.

Along with Asher, I reached the main gates of our pack’s territory. In the night, I could see that Alpha Logan had come with a large number of wolves. If I fought with him, I was sure that he would destroy my pack, but I wasn’t here to fight with him. I was here to negotiate. My warriors were standing right behind me, and I could sense how nervous they were. They had never seen such a large number of wolves.

Alpha Logan was standing several meters away from my pack, right in front of a line of trees. His warriors surrounded him. Ace and Katy were also there. And Shir. I snarled at Shir, and he narrowed his eyes.

I leaned towards Asher and said, “Tell them I want to negotiate before the war starts.”

Asher opened his mind link with Shir and conveyed my message to him. Shir leaned towards Alpha Logan and delivered my message.

“Okay,” Alpha Logan said. “I am ready to negotiate.”

My lips curled up. He was a fool in love with my Luna. And I was about to outsmart him.

We both came forward in the center, asking our warriors to wait for our signal. Ace, Katy and Shir accompanied him, while I came with Asher.

“What are your terms?” he asked, crossing his arms across his chest. I could see how his muscles bulged in anger, and I enjoyed seeing his rage. He had to keep calm in that tension because I held the trump card.

I think he flinched, but maybe I imagined. He raised an eyebrow in surprise mixed with shock. “Aren’t you, her mate? Besides, once you kill her, I will kill you.”

I chuckled and shook my head. “You don’t know me. You’ll never find her. If you want her alive and well, you better retreat.”

“There’s no doubt that I want her alive and well, but I won’t go back. Give me Kylie now, or face the wrath,” he snarled, displaying a wild animal’s ferocity.

I snarled back. My Alpha wolf didn’t like the challenge. “You don’t know what I am capable of, Alpha Logan. I will kill her even if that is the last thing I do, but I won’t give her to you. How dare you steal my wife? You helped her to file a case with the Elder Council. I am going to make sure that she never sees the light of the day from this day forward!”

He narrowed his eyes as his fangs slipped out. His voice turned animalistic when he said, “You have exactly ten minutes to make your decision. After that, I am not responsible for the consequences.”

“Fuck. Off! The moment you attack my pack, I will kill Kylie,” I said and turned to leave. I was so fucking furious, but I would not buckle under his pressure.

There was a pin drop silence for a few minutes till I walked to my pack’s gate. And then a panicked voice sounded from behind. “Alpha Graham!” I turned sharply to see.

What happened next was something I had never imagined.
