

Hunter's P.O.V.

After we finish our lunch without Aziza showing herself, I walk with Chase to his room and the second the door is closed I ask him about our extra workload.

"What else did you find out about Samyrah?" Chase asks me and I tell him that after her parents died, Roger moved her in to the Pack-house on to the Alpha floor.

"Fuck. The same goes for Meara, she was twelve when she lost her parents due to rogues. How old was Samyrah when her parents died?" He asks and I tell him that she was the same age as Meara.

Chase tells me about the Pack-doctor who might have some more information and that we are tasked with looking in to him. "Why do we need to do that?" I ask him and the second he looks at me I regret asking the question.

He tells me what he found out and what he had blurted out in front of Aziza, he tells me how she reacted to his thoughts. "She wants us to send our report directly to the Council, she doesn't want to hear a word about it." He says.

For a minute I let his words run through my mind, before I say "Maybe we should inform the others. This is not something we want them to tell Aziza if they figure this out on their own."

The look on his face tells me that he had not thought about that and then his eyes glaze over. "They will meet us in the office. Ragnar is there already and he has not seen Aziza." Chase says and we hurry down the stairs to the office.

Aziza's P.O.V.

I am in my room, going through everything I wrote down on Roger's chosen Mates. I am still not comfortable reading it, but I am not gagging any more.

Thinking back on Chase's words Jenny becomes enraged again and I am doing everything I can to calm her down, but nothing seems to work. When even Brennan's smiling face can't calm her, I take a drastic step.

I close my eyes as I recall Ragnar in his Lycan-form, the way he looked as I opened the backdoor and his movements as he strode towards the tree-line to shift back in to his Human-form.

It calms her down and for some reason I draw comfort from it as well. As I open my eyes I hear rushed footsteps going down the stairs and I wonder what is going on.

I release the block I had put on my mind-link and think to myself "If it is important they will link me." I return to the files on my tablet and soon I am engrossed by the information on Roger's Father and his eleven chosen Mates.

Ragnar's P.O.V.

Chase and Hunter are the first to show up in the office and I wonder what it is they want to talk about, but I know neither one will say a word until the others are here.

Kaiden is the last one to enter and as he closes the door he asks "Shouldn't we wait for Aziza?" Chase shakes his head as he says "No, she asked me to run an extra investigation with Hunter and was adamant that we did not tell her what we uncovered.

She wants us to report directly to the Council and if my hunch is correct I can't blame her for that." Chase tells us about the couple he met with yesterday and what they had told him about the Pack-doctor.

"Meara was twelve when her parents were killed by rogues and Roger moved her in to the Pack-house on to the Alpha-floor. Hunter found out the same thing about Samyrah.

I told Aziza that it wouldn't surprise me that the Pack-doctor found out what Roger was doing with them." Gunnar's Lycan roars and I have a feeling we all will be roaring soon.

"When I told her it wouldn't surprise me that he forced them to do the same for him or that they watched each other, she started gagging." My Lycan is roaring and I have to give it my all not to shift in this room again.

It takes us all a good while to settle down our Lycans and when we finally do, I tell Chase I will take the assignment as mine is already completed. The look on his face tells me that he is more than willing to hand over the assignment to me.

My mind is running in circles on what Chase told us and I can't blame Aziza for not wanting to know. I just hope the truth is not as gruesome as we all suspect.

Roger's P.O.V.

When Eva was taken out of her cage for her trial, Talon had a small smile on his face and I wondered what it had been about.

We waited patiently for her to return and within minutes after she did, Talon started roaring. He has been pacing in his cage ever since and neither one of them wants to answer my questions.

One of the guards walks up to Talon and tells him to cut it out, which only makes him roar even louder. "You really thought it was going to save her, didn't you?" The guard asks Talon.

Eva starts to cry even louder and some of the other guards actually start laughing. The guard turns to me and says "I think he had not counted on his Daughter being a cold hearted Bitch."

I look at Talon and then I return my attention to the guard, wondering what the hell he is talking about. When he tells me what happened during the trial, my heart stops for a split second.

I only met Tali once, but I had heard more than enough about her from Talon. If I have to describe her based on that I would say that she is kind, softhearted and compassionate, but hearing the guard talk paints a whole different picture of her.

After he finishes speaking, the guard turns towards Sofia cell and I see the smirk on his face. Every day one of the guards walks in to her cage and beats the crap out of her, after that every guard leaves the room for Kijani to do to her whatever he wants.

I want to kill him, but I know I will never get that chance. The ice cold look in his eyes tells me that he would welcome it and I don't want to give him that easy way out.

I watch as the guards leave and I am surprised when I see that there is another guard with Kijani as he comes down the stairs. He looks at me with as much hate in his eyes as Kijani, but I don't remember ever seeing him.

"Roger, let me introduce you to Lucas. The two of you never met, but you were family once. Lucas is the Brother of Perryn." And that is when I see the resemblance with my fated Mate.

Lucas is already crouched down next to Sofia and I see the horror on her face when she hears who he is. Sofia is the only one that truly knows what happened to Perryn or so I thought.

Kijani looks at me as he says "Lucas and I will enjoy our time with Sofia as you watch, after all that is what you like to do. We have a special treat for her and we really hope that you will enjoy the show." Lucas chuckles as he pulls Sofia to her feet.

 Wait! I Have Something to Say!

 Send a Gift to the Writer!

Commented [Ma1]: