

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 821

Anything For Her Chapter 821-Ultimately, Nicholas made the decision.

No matter what, all he wanted was a chance.

After finishing their meal, Sophie didn't leave immediately. She initially wanted to stay and spend some time with Tristan.

However, Nicholas refused to leave and insisted on staying as well.

Tristan held her hand.

"You must remember to get some rest after you get back and don't overtire yourself, okay?"

He was worried as she didn't seem to be in great shape.

"I got it. Don't worry about me," she said. Then, she turned to Nicholas. "Nicholas, you should see a psychologist as soon as possible! Don't waste any more time. This will be beneficial for you and everyone else."

She found him less annoying as long as he didn't throw a tantrum.

"All right. I know. But you have to promise not to avoid me in the future, no matter what." That was the only request he had.

Nicholas was contented as long as she stopped hiding from him and could continue to be present in his life. Everything else didn't matter.

"Okay. I promise."

"Really?" Nicholas thought his ears were playing tricks on him. After all, Sophie had always been firm on not giving him a chance for the past year.

"Yes."

Nicholas was overjoyed. In fact, his happiness could originate from simple things like that.

After dinner, Tristan accompanied Sophie back to the medical association while Nicholas tagged along.

Tristan was irritated to see how delighted Nicholas was. This man should really know when to stop.

Sophie fathomed Tristan must be unhappy, so she held his hand.

“I didn’t mean anything by agreeing to his request. I just thought maybe he won’t pester me anymore if his condition improves.”

Sophie had gotten sick of that kind of harassment and hoped she could put an end to it.

“I know that.” There was no way he couldn’t understand her intention.

The trio halted in their tracks upon reaching the entrance of the International Medical Association.

“Nicholas, if possible, please let Butterfly go.”

Nicholas wasn’t inclined to release Butterfly at that time.

“Sophie, I treat her very well, and she’s getting all her wishes fulfilled at my place. Therefore, you don’t need to worry about her.”

Anyway, regardless of what Sophie said, he didn’t plan on letting her go for the time being.

“She wants her freedom. Everything else you provide for her is irrelevant.” Butterfly was her friend, so Sophie had a good grasp on what Butterfly yearned for the most.

“All right. I got it.”

“I’m going in now.” She stopped talking afterward and entered the building.

Tristan halted Nicholas from leaving.

“Let’s have a match. What do you say?” Tristan cut to the chase.

Unexpectedly, Nicholas shook his head.

“I’m not interested in doing that.” He’s joking, right? My injuries haven’t even healed yet. I don’t want to get beaten up again.

“Don’t be too full of yourself, Tristan. You’ve also heard Sophie. She’s willing to give me a chance. Who’s to say how things will end up for us?”

Tristan didn’t respond.

He wasn’t planning on arguing with a fool. A chance? So what if he gets the chance? Sophie loves me, so no one else can be with her.

Meanwhile, Tristan had made arrangements for Caleb to return to the country. The latter was still in his condominium when someone knocked on his door. He opened the door and was surprised to see Tristan standing outside.

“Mr. Tristan, how did you know I was here?” Caleb was somewhat taken aback. Although he thought about seeking Sophie and Tristan’s help, he didn’t do so in the end.

Caleb was still trying to figure out a solution on his own. He didn’t expect Tristan would show up there all of a sudden.

“Pack your things. I’ll arrange for you to return to the country now.”

The simple matter of sending someone back to their country posed no difficulty for him.

“Did Sophie ask you to do this?” If it weren’t for Sophie, Tristan probably wouldn’t bother dealing with me since we have no familial or personal connections whatsoever.

“Yes.”

Tristan was reluctant to elaborate further.

Caleb actually felt very conflicted as he had already owed Sophie too much.

Even then, she held nothing against him and still wanted to help him now.

Hence, there was no way he would’ve been unfeeling toward her kindness. In truth, he was different from Charmaine and the others.

He had always hoped that he could protect Sophie better.

However, he still ended up hurting her.

Caleb didn’t have much to pack. Of all his belongings there, he only needed to take his identification documents with him.

After all, Anglandur was in a mess then, so he shouldn’t bring those unimportant clothes with him.

Soon, Caleb was done packing his things.

When he went outside, he saw Tristan standing beside a car. Noticing Caleb had come out, Tristan got into the car without saying anything.

Caleb had no choice but to follow suit.

The driver sent them straight to the airport. Even until he boarded Tristan's private plane, Caleb still found the whole experience surreal. My sister really found a capable man. While our entire family is at a loss for what to do, Tristan manages to send me back to the country effortlessly.

Meanwhile, after seeing Caleb off, Tristan sent Sophie a message on WhatsApp, informing her about Caleb's departure.

By keeping her updated, he figured she could now focus on her experiments with peace of mind.

After sending the message, he waited for her reply, but there was still no response, even after a long time.

Consequently, he could only drive back.

He didn't mind the lack of response because he knew she was busy, so she couldn't constantly check her phone.

On the other hand, Caleb finally returned to the Tanner residence. He heard Charmaine complaining about Sophie as soon as he arrived at the entrance, grumbling about Sophie's disinclination to help.

Charmaine's choices of words were also particularly nasty.

Willow merely sat beside her mother in silence. She had learned to endure at that point, knowing she had no right to criticize anyone before having the capabilities.

Sophie could now easily crush Willow with a flick of her finger.

Caleb's heart ached when he heard his mother badmouthing Sophie. Sophie has always been like this. She silently does many things but never wants others to know. Sophie is already making contributions without asking for anything in return, so how can her family members speak so maliciously of her behind her back?

Caleb stepped into the house and glared at his mother.

"Mom, you don't know anything, and since you know nothing, you shouldn't say anything. Don't you realize how hurtful your words can be?"

Charmaine was taken aback to see her son had returned.

"You're home, Caleb? How did you come back? Do you know how worried I've been?" Charmaine hugged Caleb tightly.

He gently pushed her away.

“Mom, I’m serious. You’re being too unfair to Sophie,” he uttered irritably. “Sophie is not obligated to help me. Besides, I’ve returned now because of her assistance, isn’t it?”

An embarrassed look spread across Charmaine’s face.

“Isn’t that what she’s supposed to do? You’re her brother, so she should help you, right?” Don’t tell me we should’ve begged her instead?

Caleb shook his head. “Mom, nothing in this world should be taken for granted. She’s your daughter, but have you helped her do anything unconditionally?”

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 822

Anything For Her Chapter 822-She had no right to expect such of Sophie when even she, as a mother, could not do so.

Charmaine was at a loss for words.

“Caleb, I’m sure this isn’t what Mom meant. This is the first time you’ve been back in a while. I’m sure she’s just worried about you.”

Willow hurriedly spoke up for Charmaine.

Caleb almost couldn’t bear acknowledging the person Willow had turned into.

She had always been the vainest of them all. Despite being only twenty years of age, she now resembled a woman a decade older from the rural countryside.

No matter what had happened, his heart ached for Willow, and he couldn’t find it within himself to continue chastising her.

“Willa, now that I’m back and our family is whole, stop involving yourself in such a mess in the future. Let’s cherish the time we have together and let bygones be bygones. It doesn’t matter who was in the wrong. The most important thing is our happiness as a family.”

“I understand, Caleb. Don’t worry. I get where you’re coming from.” She hoped never to experience life on the remote island ever again.

Sophie was someone she could not afford to offend.

She finally understood that after everything that she’d gone through.

“Caleb, you should get some rest. I’ll be preparing a scrumptious dinner later.” Despite being unhappy with Caleb’s attitude, Charmaine didn’t want to cause tension in their relationship, as it was a rare occasion that he returned.

On the other hand, Sophie was occupied with work until eleven at night and only saw Tristan's text message while taking a break.

She replied: "Thank you." Just then, she saw someone smoking on the balcony. She walked toward him and asked for a joint, which she placed in her mouth.

"Do you need a lighter?"

The man inquired after noting that her cigarette remained unlit.

She shook her head.

She did not like smoking. However, she was so stressed that she'd settle for inhaling the tobacco scent.

Sophie was an outstandingly gorgeous woman. At that moment, she was dressed in a lab coat while languidly resting her arms on the railing.

Despite being fitted in such simple attire, she looked magnificent.

She was one of those natural beauties that could be doing absolutely nothing yet still turn heads.

The man next to her swallowed instinctively.

"Ms. Tanner, I—"

Sophie turned in the direction of his voice and saw a good-looking man who was tall and well-built.

"Is anything the matter?" She cocked her brows.

He was intimidated by how aloof she seemed and shook his head at once.

"It's nothing."

He had planned to flirt with her as it would be considered a win even if all he could get was a one-night stand from such a stunning woman.

However, he gave up under her piercing stare.

Once the man had left, Sophie was left alone and started feeling bored. She'd been spending the entire day cooped up in the lab and was about to go mad.

She decided to give Tristan a call. "What's up?"

"I was thinking about you."

"Tristan, don't you think you've become rather cheesy as of late?"

"Is that so? Not at all! But I was indeed thinking of you. I always am."

"Fine! I admit that I miss you too."

"What is it? Haven't had a breakthrough yet?"

"Yes."

"Darling, why not come back home and rest for a day? Perhaps you should have a change of scenery since working non-stop for days hasn't yielded any results. Who knows, this might be just what you need to achieve a breakthrough?"

He couldn't offer any help regarding the virus except for providing her with moral support.

"Don't worry. I won't be coming home tonight. Be good."

The cigarette was still positioned between Sophie's lips.

"Okay. I will!"

They continued chatting and hung up only when Arius came looking for Sophie.

"D*mn, I doubt I can take this much longer! All these failures are starting to take a toll on me."

Sophie gave him a side-eye.

"That's about enough. Whining doesn't solve anything."

Arius saw her biting a cigarette and surmised she was troubled as well.

"Sophie, are you regretting your choice to pursue medicine?" It was often exhausting to study in the medical field.

"Not really." Although she was at an impasse, she believed that she'd pull through eventually with a little more grit and perseverance.

"Well, you sure have strong faith!"

"That's enough chit-chat for now. Back to work!"

Arius held her back immediately.

“Do you have any idea what time it is? Enough talk about work. Go back and have some rest!”

Just then, someone called out to the both of them.

“Professor Gullifer, I have bad news. Dr. Smith has fainted!”

Barney had regained consciousness by the time Arius and Sophie reached him.

Thankfully, it was due to over-exhaustion and wasn't anything serious.

“Dr. Smith, haven't I told you to take a break and head home if you feel tired? You should accept that your body is aging and is not as it was before.” Arius was at a loss for words. What was the point of pushing past your body's limit so others could remember you for your achievements?

Isn't one's body their most important asset?

Barney was behaving irrationally out of sheer desperation as he'd reached a research bottleneck.

Alas, he'd collapsed at such a crucial juncture.

In the end, he would not even be able to contribute to the research.

“Dr. Smith, you may leave matters regarding the virus to Arius and me. Rest assured that nothing will go wrong with us around.”

As Barney was far from being young, it'd be better for him to recuperate in the hospital for a few days instead of excessively pushing himself.

“But...” Barney was still worried.

“No buts. You'd best remain here and break a leg. All hell would break loose in Anglandur if you fell ill.”

She dared not imagine how the public would react to news of such a critical figure in solving their current predicament breaking under its weight.

That was why Barney's fainting incident had to be kept under wraps.

“Sophie, I'm fine, truly. All I want to do right now is to solve this problem we're facing!” He would not rest as long as their issue persisted.

“Dr. Smith, do you not believe in Arius and me?” They understood his need for urgency, but this was not something he was capable of solving alone.

Everyone needed to work together.

Barney seemed to have aged years as he became overcome with distraught. He was becoming increasingly unsure of himself in terms of finding a way out of their plight.

Arius knew he was feeling upset and consoled, “Dr. Smith, you’ll only be taking a break for two days. You’ll be back with us once you recover. I’m certain you’d find it difficult to concentrate on your research with the physical state that you’re in right now.”

At that moment, the president of Anglandur made an appearance. He’d dropped everything to make the trip over immediately after receiving a call about Barney’s incident.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 823

Anything For Her Chapter 823-“Dr. Smith, how have you been?”

Barney was his only hope. If anything untoward happened to Barney, Marcus would no longer be the president.

Looking at the president, Arius was annoyed and snorted. Earlier on, Marcus had wanted to get rid of all of them when everything was fine.

Now that he required their help, he became so pleasant.

“Arius, you and Sophie can continue with your work! I will rest here.” Barney knew that Arius disliked the president, so he did not want Arius and Sophie to waste their time there.

“Sure, Dr. Smith. I’m taking my leave. If you need anything, please call me.” With that, Arius took Sophie with him.

The two of them did not even cast a glance at the president.

They did not care about his status. As citizens of Chanaea, there was no need for them to have any regard for Marcus.

Back in the ward, Marcus was not looking too pleased.

“Dr. Smith, all of you have been here for quite some time now. However, there has been no progress at all. Do you think—”

Marcus was trying to be tactful, but it was obvious what he was trying to get at.

Barney let out a sigh.

“You have seen with your own eyes that everyone is doing their best at the International Medical Association. But this virus is different than the usual ones. We have no idea what it is.”

They had already tried their best, but the outcome was as such. There was nothing they could do about it.

“Are you trying to tell me that there’s nothing you can do about it?” Is that what you mean? If that’s the case, does it mean that everyone has to die?

Barney kept quiet.

“We are trying our best. As for the result, I can’t promise you anything as of now.”

The virus was evolving every day. It was very tricky, and that caused the current situation.

Everyone was trying to hide the fact that Barney had been hospitalized. Unfortunately, a few photos showed up on social media in Anglandur. After the citizens of Anglandur found out that Barney was ill, they got into a frenzy.

They thought for sure they were going to die this time around. As a result, some of them began to riot on the streets. Suddenly, Anglandur was thrown into chaos.

Unfortunately, they did not like the current president as well. They blamed Marcus for being too incompetent. That was why the country could not handle the virus.

Some of the citizens got so emotional that they ran to the International Medical Association and wanted to charge in.

There were riots everywhere in Anglandur. During a time like that, leaving the country would be the best option.

After all, whatever happened in Anglandur had nothing much to do with them.

Tristan received a phone call from William. Given the current situation in Anglandur, it was too dangerous for them to stay on. William hoped that his son could leave the country.

“Tristan, take Sophie back with you! Whatever happens in Anglandur has nothing to do with us!” William was really worried about both of them. He had been catching up on the news of Anglandur. Sadly, even Marcus was not able to take control of the present circumstances.

“Dad, please don’t worry about us. Everything is still under control.” At that moment, Sophie was still at the International Medical Association. “I can’t talk to you now. I have to go to the International Medical Association and take a look.”

There were riots going over there. Tristan felt that he needed to be by Sophie’s side so that he could protect her.

“Tristan, listen to me for once!”

William was about to say something else when Tristan ended the phone call.

The elderly man could only sit there and sigh.

He did not care about others. All he wanted was for his son to be safe and sound.

Sarah was equally worried when she saw her father’s expression.

“Dad, don’t worry too much. Tristan has always been a very opinionated person. I’m sure he knows what he is doing.”

In fact, both Tristan and Sophie had their own beliefs and thinking. They knew what they wanted to do.

Furthermore, the two of them were able to fight very well. They would definitely be able to protect themselves.

“Oh well...”

William could only sigh when he heard that.

“But it is too dangerous in Anglandur.” Naturally, he believed that Tristan could take care of himself. Then again, nobody could guarantee that Tristan would not get hurt in such a chaotic circumstance.

Ysabelle was also very worried. Right now, she was not in the mood to prepare for her new album. Instead, she had been following up on the news over in Anglandur.

“Aunt Sarah, I’m also very worried. I think I should go over and take a look.”

To that, Sarah shook her head.

“Ysabelle, please don’t be stubborn during a time like this. Just stay at home and don’t let us worry about you. Okay?”

It was already bad enough that Tristan and Sophie were in Anglandur. If a pampered girl like Ysabelle went to a place like that, who knows what might happen to her?

“Sure, I understand.”

Even though she was a very obstinate person, she knew that she would be of no help even if she went to Anglandur. She had no choice but to sit around and worry.

Sarah patted her on her cheeks.

“If you need cheering up, go and look for Felix. Let him keep you accompanied!” If the young lady continued to stay at home, she would only let her imagination run wild.

That would frighten her even more.

“Felix is also very busy.”

Ever since Anglandur went into chaos, the company over there was also affected. Therefore, Felix had been having late-night meetings every day.

Every time Ysabelle went over to look for him, he could only have a quick meal with her before rushing back to work.

Sarah knew that everyone was very busy at the moment.

Things in Anglandur were affecting other countries as well. The ongoing turmoil would definitely have a huge effect on the economy.

Meanwhile, Tristan arrived at the International Medical Association. He found out that the association had been surrounded by lots of people. It would be difficult for him to find his way in.

He gave Sophie a call. However, no one picked up the phone.

That made him even more anxious. He then made another call.

“Get me a helicopter right away. Yes, I’ll send you my location in a while!”

Once that had been arranged, Tristan continued to call Sophie.

In the meantime, Sophie was experimenting with new methods when she heard endless gunshots outside. She knew that the situation was getting out of control.

Then again, she was at the most critical point of her experiment. As such, she chose to forge ahead.

When Arius came to look for her, she was still doing her experiment. This woman is truly a brave soul! It is a total mess out there!

Yet, she is still so calm.

“Sophie, we may have to evacuate.” Nothing good would come out of staying on there.

“Okay, I understand.”

How can anyone experiment in peace if there is complete chaos out there?

“Let’s go!”

“No! I think I will succeed this time around. Give me half an hour.” Those special forces should be able to hold the horde back for another half an hour!

“Sophie, I’m not joking with you. Everyone is prepared to leave.” So should they.

However, Sophie was very adamant.

“Arius, give me half an hour. Don’t let anyone in. I have a feeling that this will work.”

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 824

Anything For Her Chapter 824-Arius had always believed in Sophie, so he nodded in response.

“All right, I got it. Then I will be standing guard outside here. Be careful.” The situation out there was really chaotic.

He was worried that someone might dash in. That was why he stood guard outside.

In the meantime, it was also just as chaotic outside Nicholas’ mansion. Butterfly took a look and realized that was her best chance to get away.

Since no one had time for her, Butterfly sneaked out of the mansion and hoped no one would notice.

Butterfly was very happy when she reached the main door without anyone noticing her! In the end, Nicholas appeared and blocked her way.

“Ms. Sekelsky, where do you think you are going? Given the messy situation out there, where can you go to?”

She could only stay safe by staying there.

Nicholas’ mansion was the safest place. No one dared to charge in.

Butterfly smiled as she glanced at Nicholas.

“No, I wasn’t going anywhere. I was too cooped up in the house, so I decided to take a walk and get some fresh air,” said Butterfly calmly.

“Ha! I can’t believe you are still in the mood for that, Ms. Sekelsky.” Isn’t she aware of the danger that looms outside?

There were riots going on everywhere in Anglandur. Even the president could not subdue the ongoing turmoil.

There were bloodshed and crimes happening everywhere.

Nicholas grabbed hold of Butterfly’s collar and dragged her back to the mansion.

“Nicholas, what are you doing? Sophie is still at the International Medical Association with all these going on! How can I leave her there all by herself? I have to go there and protect her.”

She saw on the news that the crowd was attacking the International Medical Association too. Sophie was capable, but at a time like that, she would be more focused on her research. Someone needed to be there by her side.

“You are so good to Sophie.”

“Of course. Sophie is my best friend. Of course, I’m nice to her!”

What a joke! Both women had gone through life-and-death situations together in the past. That was why they were so close.

Just then, they heard the sounds of a helicopter and saw one flying above them.

Nicholas knew something was amiss.

True enough, the moment the helicopter flew lower, someone started shooting at them.

“Holy crap! These people are so daring that they dare to attack me in my own house.” Nicholas was enraged.

Nevertheless, in the most dangerous moment, he still pulled Butterfly into his arms and shielded her from the bullets.

Butterfly knew that things were about to get worse.

However, she genuinely did not expect Nicholas to shield her from the attack.

“Nicholas, are you all right?”

Just then, Richard rushed out with the others, and they began to fire at the helicopter.

It was only then that the helicopter flew away.

Richard ran over to Nicholas. Upon seeing his pale face, Richard knew that Nicholas had been injured.

“Boss, where are you hurt? I’ll get the doctor right away.” Richard immediately ordered his subordinates to call for a doctor.

Nicholas pressed his hand on his wound.

“I’m fine, Ms. Sekelsky. You better go in! You have seen with your own eyes how bad the situation is in Anglandur. It’s too dangerous for you to go anywhere!”

Nicholas got hurt because of her, and she felt bad if she left now.

Instead, Butterfly carried him into the house by herself.

Nicholas had been shot. If it were not for Nicholas, she would have been the one who got shot.

“Nicholas, you—”

Butterfly knew that he was not in any danger, but she was still worried about him. After all, he got hurt because of her.

“Richard, get two men to stay with Ms. Sekelsky to protect her.” At a time like that, Nicholas was still worried about Butterfly.

She was a friend of Sophie’s. Since she was Sophie’s friend, he could not sit back and watch her get hurt.

“Understood, Boss. Don’t worry!” Richard looked at Butterfly and was speechless.

Doesn’t she know about the situation out there? I can’t believe she was running all over the place. If she hadn’t done that, Boss wouldn’t have gotten injured.

Why are women so troublesome?

It’s fine that they can’t be of any help in times of trouble. Yet, they manage to cause trouble for others.

Butterfly could not bother to argue with Richard even though she knew what he was getting at. Earlier on, she did want to leave.

“You guys leave! I need some alone time!” In actual fact, Nicholas was planning to go and look for Sophie.

The International Medical Association was a target, and not every one of the rioters was from Anglandur. At a chaotic time like that, there would be people who were there to make trouble.

After all, not every country hoped that Anglandur would get over the current dangerous situation.

The more he thought about it, the more frightened he became. He got up from the couch and prepared to walk out when Richard saw and stopped him.

“Boss, you are hurt. It’s too dangerous for you to go out there. If there’s anything, I can do it for you.” During a time like that, it would be better for Nicholas to rest there.

“I’m fine. Don’t worry about me.”

Butterfly was also outside. When she saw him walking out, she stopped him too.

“Nicholas, it’s best that you stay right here. You said so yourself. It’s dangerous out there.”

Nicholas narrowed his eyes.

“What are all of you trying to do? Are you trying to order me around? Since when do I need your approval to go out?”

Butterfly grabbed his hand and stopped him from walking outside.

“Nicholas, don’t go outside.”

He broke free of her grip.

“Butterfly, I treat you well because you are a friend of Sophie’s. Please don’t have any other ideas. I won’t fall for you.” Nicholas was very direct.

Butterfly was so angry that she burst out laughing.

“What are you talking about? Do you think I like you? You must be dreaming! I just don’t want you to lose your life after you saved mine! That’s all!”

Like him? I’m not blind yet.

“That’s good, then. Let me tell you something. I know I’m very good-looking, but please don’t fall for me. Nothing will come out of it!”

It is a very painful thing to love someone who will never love you back. He did not want her to suffer the same fate too.

Nicholas insisted on going out.

Richard had no choice but to order more men to go with them. Safety was more important at a time like that.

“Since all of you are going, I want to go too.” Butterfly knew that no one in the world could stop Nicholas.

He gave her a stare.

“Why are you coming with us? Don’t you know how dangerous it is out there?”

“I know! But Sophie is there. No matter what, I have to be there.” Given their prior relationship, there was no way she would stay in Nicholas’ mansion.

Nicholas was envious of Sophie.

“Butterfly, I won’t bully you anymore in the future. You are such a good friend of Sophie’s.” Sophie was very lucky to have such a good friend like her.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 825

Anything For Her Chapter 825-Meanwhile, terrorists were at the International Medical Association. At first, only the gangsters in Anglandur were attacking the association. However, terrorists from a foreign land had also gotten involved.

It was total chaos outside, and Arius was worried sick. Since I had already promised Sophie to give her the half an hour she wanted, I should stand guard no matter what. However, the gunshots are getting louder. This is not looking good.

Right then, a loud bang rang out. Apparently, a grenade had landed inside the territory of the International Medical Association and destroyed a building nearby.

The people in the building were running for their lives and screaming at the top of their lungs. Everyone was horrified, and they didn’t know what to do.

When Barney saw the news on the television, he called the president right away.

“What on earth is going on? How did things turn out this way?” Barney questioned. I brought Sophie and Arius here, and they’re now in the International Medical Association. I don’t even know if they’re okay!

“Dr. Smith, I didn’t know this was going to happen. I’m at my wits’ end as well!” the president answered. It seems like I’m going to lose my job.

“So? What are you going to do? What’s the status of the people in the International Medical Association? Have you gotten them out?” Barney asked. Now that something like this had already happened, he must solve it no matter what!

“I’ve already sent a team of special forces there. Judging by the current situation, however, it doesn’t seem like there’s a point,” the president replied. At this moment, there’s nothing else I can do.

“F*ck!” Barney was overwhelmed with regret. If I didn’t bring them here, none of this would’ve happened.

At the same time, the president felt utterly helpless. No matter how angry Dr. Smith is right now, there’s still nothing I can do about it.

“Dr. Smith, the only way out now is to solve this virus crisis,” the president stated.

At that moment, Anglandur was in a mess, and no one seemed to have the solution.

“Shut the f*ck up! I don’t want to listen to whatever you have to say right now,” Barney fumed. They can’t even provide us with a safe environment to do research. How are we going to do research now that the country is in turmoil?

The president didn’t dare to utter a single word in response because he knew he had no right to speak.

After all, everyone in Anglandur had lost faith in him.

Barney then tried to call Arius and Sophie again. Still, he couldn’t get through to them.

Hence, he got out of bed to check out the situation outside.

However, he was stopped.

“Dr. Smith, you ought to stay put. It’s chaotic outside,” said a member of the special forces. “Now, we’re all counting on you, so we can’t let anything bad happen to you.”

As long as the country could solve the virus crisis, everything would resolve itself.

“What are you guys doing? I’m not your prisoner. I want to go out now. Buzz off!” Barney roared. F*ck these people. I don’t even know if my mentees are alive or dead. How could they still expect us to save them?

“Dr. Smith, I’m sorry, but we’re carrying out orders from higher-ups. Please don’t make things difficult for us,” the member of the special forces replied.

“You!” Barney was seeing red, but his hands were tied.

Meanwhile, the terrorists had already stormed into the main building of the International Medical Association, and they were capturing all the people in white coats and killing those who weren’t.

Things were definitely looking dicey.

Arius started to panic when he saw that a terrorist had reached their level. He glanced at Sophie, who was still doing the experiment, before whipping out his weapon. That was the weapon she had given him earlier. I guess this is inevitable!

Arius then took out his phone and looked at it. I still can’t make a call. All signals here have been blocked.

After Arius kept his phone, the terrorist saw him in a white coat and said, “Follow me. I’m not going to hurt you!”

The terrorist was tasked with kidnapping them, and he wouldn’t know what his higher-ups would do afterward.

In response, Arius flashed a smile. Although I can’t fight as well as Sophie can, I can still take down a terrorist! What makes him think I’ll give up my life so easily? Does he take me for a joke?

“Come at me!” Arius gestured for the terrorist to come closer with his finger. I would rather die than get humiliated!

That terrorist walked up to Arius with his gun.

“If you promise to play nice, I won’t hurt you!” The terrorist’s face was filled with murderous intent. I’ll do whatever I was told, and that’s to bring all these people in white coats back.

The moment the terrorist got close enough, Arius got into a fight with him. Although Arius couldn’t fight as well as Sophie could, he was still capable of defeating a terrorist.

Shortly after, Arius had managed to take the terrorist’s gun away. Arius could actually kill the terrorist with the gun, but that would attract the other terrorists. If the terrorists were to attack Arius at once, Arius could be in trouble.

The terrorist couldn’t help but laugh when he saw that Arius didn’t dare to pull the trigger.

“I knew you wouldn’t dare to shoot me. What’s the matter? Do you want to fight me one-on-one?” the terrorist asked haughtily.

Obviously, the terrorist wasn’t a saint.

“Oh? You want a challenge, don’t you? Did you think I would be scared of you?” Arius smiled.

Just like that, the two began to fight.

Meanwhile, Tristan had arrived at the International Medical Association in a helicopter. He kept calling Arius and Sophie on the phone, but he couldn’t get through to them.

The International Medical Association had over a dozen buildings, so there was no way Tristan could find them in a short period of time.

Hence, he called Felix and ordered, “Give me Sophie’s location. Quick!”

When Felix heard how anxious Tristan sounded, he immediately instructed his men to find out Sophie’s location.

However, there was interference, so they were having trouble locating Sophie.

Ten minutes later, Tristan called again. “What’s the matter with you? All I wanted was a location. What’s taking you so long?”

“Signals are being interfered with, so—” Felix was also getting nervous, but he finally located Sophie in the next second. “I’m sending you Sophie’s location now. You have to be careful!”

Needless to say, they had to proceed with caution because those terrorists were ruthless.

“Okay. I know,” Tristan answered.

Upon receiving Sophie’s location, Tristan asked his subordinate to fly the helicopter while he grabbed the rope and descended.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 826

Anything For Her Chapter 826-Sophie recomposed herself and heightened her concentration when she heard the intense fighting sounds coming from outside. I just need a while longer. Arius should be able to hold on until then, right?

Arius, who hadn’t had enough rest recently, was in trouble because a few more terrorists had arrived.

"F*ck!" Arius cursed. Why do I need to deal with this bullsh*t in Anglandur? Still, I must guard the entrance of the laboratory no matter what. Since I've already promised Sophie that I would guard the entrance, I can't break my promise.

However, he was already heavily injured, and he ended up crashing to the ground upon receiving a kick from a terrorist.

Arius intended to rise to his feet once again because he wasn't giving up.

He struggled with all his might, but he couldn't get back up on his feet.

A terrorist then went over to him and stepped on his body.

"D*mn it!" Arius' face was contorted with pain. I'm the best surgeon in the world, so I need my hands! If they injure my hands, I'll never get to operate again!

Right when Arius was about to retract his hand, the terrorist instantly stomped on it. Arius was in so much pain that his face was turning pale.

At this very moment, Tristan finally found them. When he saw what those terrorists were doing to Arius, he took aim and shot them down with a bullet each.

Prior to that, Arius really thought that was the end for him.

Hence, he was relieved when he saw the terrorists getting shot down one by one.

Arius then forced himself to sit up, and that was when he saw Tristan.

"You're finally here!" Arius knew Tristan would surely appear to save Sophie.

Tristan approached Arius and pulled the corpse on top of Arius' body aside. "Are you all right? Where is Sophie? Where is she?" Tristan got worried because he didn't see Sophie around.

"She's inside. She said she could definitely beat the virus this time around, so she told me to guard the entrance for half an hour." Arius glanced at his watch. It's almost time.

"She should be out soon," Arius added.

True enough, the entrance to the laboratory opened automatically, and Sophie was seen walking out.

When she saw Tristan there, she went to hug him. "Why are you here?"

"I got worried about you after I found out what happened here. Are you all right?" Tristan asked.

"I'm fine. All right. Let's get out of here. It's not safe anymore." Since the terrorists had already targeted the place, the building could be destroyed at any moment." They had to get out of there as soon as possible.

"Okay." Tristan gave Sophie a gun while he was still holding the submachine gun he came in with.

"Are you all right, Arius?" Only then did Sophie bother to ask about Arius.

"What the f*ck? You're rather ungrateful, aren't you? You forgot about me the moment you saw Mr. Tristan! Didn't I guard the entrance for you? Can't you see I got heavily beaten up?" Arius grumbled. My handsome face is ruined! I can't even look at myself in the mirror now!

"That's enough. I think the terrorists are out to get us. We need to leave now!" Sophie said.

"How are we supposed to do that? The terrorists have the International Medical Association surrounded now. Besides, there are a lot of Anglandurans who are kept in the dark out there. We can't get out!" Arius learned about the situation outside moments ago.

Indeed, the situation had become very complicated.

Right then, Tristan gave Sophie a black mask and said, "Get rid of your white coat. The terrorists are after you and Arius." Sophie and Arius played a big role in the virus research, so the terrorists had since targeted them.

"Oh." Although things weren't looking good, Sophie was still as cool as a cucumber. She took off her white coat and put on the mask to conceal her beautiful face.

Arius saw what she did and followed suit. Well, no one seems to care about me now. I should just do whatever they're doing.

By the time Tristan had brought the both of them to the rooftop, the terrorists had spotted them and chased after them.

Arius heaved a sigh of relief when he saw the helicopter over his head. This is something only Mr. Tristan is capable of doing. Also, he's the only person who has the financial capability to come here with a helicopter.

"You should go up first!" Arius said to Sophie. After all, she was the only female there.

"As if!" Sophie wrapped the rope around Arius' waist and signaled the people in the helicopter to pull him up.

"You're only going to be a burden if you stay here," Sophie said to Arius. Arius will slow us down!

Just then, the terrorists had caught up to them, and Tristan stopped them by spraying bullets at the entrance to the rooftop with his submachine gun.

That burst of fire successfully stopped the terrorists in their tracks.

"What should we do now? The people Boss wants us to catch are on the rooftop. If we let them get away, we're doomed!"

"That submachine gun is too strong. We can't get up there. However, don't worry. There are only three of them, so we have the number advantage! Call for backup!"

"Go up to the helicopter. I'll cover you," Tristan said to Sophie. We need to get out of here as quickly as we can. Otherwise, we'll be in trouble once the enemy's reinforcements arrive.

Sophie nodded and watched the rope getting lowered once again before grabbing onto it and climbing upward.

Arius looked down from the helicopter and smiled when he saw how good of a climber Sophie was.

Nevertheless, he shook his head in the end. Forget about it! Sophie had never been an ordinary woman.

Suddenly, someone on the rooftop of the next building fired at the helicopter.

Seeing that, Tristan rushed over, aimed at the person on the rooftop, and put a bullet through the person's head. Yet, the terrorists were outnumbering them.

Right before a bullet could reach Sophie, she did a backflip in the air and dodged the bullet.

After that, she quickly made her way up into the helicopter. At that moment, only Tristan was left on the rooftop.

Sophie wasn't scared when she was dodging those bullets, but the moment she saw Tristan being alone on the rooftop, she got worried.

"What should we do now, Sophie? The enemy is outnumbering us, and Tristan is down there alone. I'm worried..."

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 827

Anything For Her Chapter 827-“It will be all right.”

Sophie immediately shifted her position. From a vantage point, she pulled out a gun and fired at the people below.

“Stop battling, Tristan. Come up!” Sophie called out to the man who was still on the roof.

Tristan looked up and knew that she would cover him. After firing a burst of shots at the adjacent rooftop, he immediately grabbed the rope and started climbing up.

At this point, the terrorists were racing up the building. Sophie noticed them approaching and refused to let them endanger Tristan’s life. She leveled her handgun at the intruders and fired without raising an eyebrow.

Just as she realized her handgun was useless, Sophie turned around and saw a submachine gun. She grabbed the weapon, stood firm, and continued to provide cover fire for Tristan.

The man was also very swift and efficient. Within a minute, he managed to climb to safety.

Arius could finally breathe a sigh of relief.

“Great! Everyone is all right.”

He was in the most precarious situation. How dare they beat me up like this, d*mn it. When I see the president of Anglandur, I will definitely torture him mercilessly. They knew that we were with the International Medical Association, yet they still wouldn’t allow anyone to come and help us. Isn’t this tantamount to wanting us to die?”

The terrorists started firing at the helicopter which Tristan and Sophie had boarded. Both of them were renowned sharpshooters, and these terrorists could not possibly be their match.

“Let’s go!” Tristan instructed the pilot, as it was not wise to continue fighting with them.

Their opponents had come prepared. If they prolonged the battle, it would be difficult for them to escape once the enemy’s reinforcements arrived.

The pilot immediately maneuvered the helicopter upwards, but after ascending only a hundred meters or so, he felt that something was amiss.

“Mr. Tristan, something’s not right. The helicopter seems faulty.”

It was unclear when the helicopter was damaged by the continuous barrage of bullets earlier.

“What do you mean?” Arius questioned with a grim expression. They had just managed to escape, and now something unfortunate was happening!

The passengers on the helicopter soon felt the turbulence.

Tristan walked over and instructed, “Step aside! I’ll take over the controls.” Even if the helicopter had malfunctioned, they had to find the nearest place to land. If they continued like this, the people in the helicopter would be doomed.

The pilot did as he was told, allowing Tristan to navigate the helicopter.

“Sophie, do you think we might not make it back this time?” Tristan had just returned to Chanaea and hadn’t had a chance to make his mark in the country yet! He could not believe something like this would happen.

Sophie remained silent and merely glanced at him.

While Tristan took over the controls of the helicopter, Sophie remained vigilant and guarded against the terrorists below.

Seeing that someone was still trying to attack them, Sophie’s submachine gun once again fired a volley.

After leaving the airspace at International Medical Association, Tristan tried to find a suitable location to land.

Meanwhile, the president’s men arrived at the International Medical Association and found the place was already a mess.

“Mr. President, what should we do?” The men had pinned their hopes on the International Medical Association. When they realized the targets were missing, they wondered how to explain to the Anglandurans.

“Send someone immediately to find them. Now that Sophie and Arius are gone, Barney probably won’t help us anymore.”

He naturally had to be ruthless to reach his current position. However, at this moment, he didn’t know what to do.

“Okay, we will send someone to look for them.”

At this very moment, members of the terrorist organization held on to photos of Sophie and Arius and went in search of them.

If they successfully caught the duo, they could lead a carefree life from then on; they could do whatever they want!

As soon as Tristan found a suitable landing spot, he promptly landed the helicopter.

Fortunately, everyone made it out of the helicopter before it exploded. When the helicopter went up in flames, Tristan threw himself over Sophie to protect her from any harm.

He even covered her ears with his hands to shield her from the loud explosion.

Sophie felt discomfort as her ears rang after the blast. However, she was moved when she realized Tristan was leaning on her so he could use his own body to defend her. She then determined that if the man desired her life, she would offer it to him because he was willing to give his life for her.

The helicopter was still burning as Arius struggled to get up. He couldn't believe what kind of life he had been living. I haven't even gotten married! Will I end up dying here?

Arius felt even more hopeless when he saw the pilot had already passed out.

Tristan climbed off of Sophie and checked her all over before finally relaxing.

"I'm fine," the woman assured him, knowing he was worried about her.

Tristan hugged her tightly. "Good, all that matters is that you are all right. Let's go! Those people are after the two of you. We need to leave here quickly."

Their pursuers were relentless, and since their helicopter had exploded, the enemy would definitely be able to track them down.

"What about him? He's passed out!" Arius could not bear to abandon the unconscious pilot who had journeyed with them.

Tristan frowned as he could not believe the pilot would pass out in such a critical situation.

"Hide him, and we'll have someone come and pick him up after we leave." They had no way to contact the outside world at the moment, and taking the pilot with them would only put him in more danger.

"Okay," Sophie said in agreement. She trusted Tristan's judgment, as his decisions were always right.

"All right, I'm on it." Arius begrudgingly picked up the pilot and found a hiding spot for him.

Since the terrorists were after them, the three of them immediately headed down the mountain after hiding the pilot.

They were in a primitive forest in Anglandur, and all kinds of fierce beasts could be found there.

After walking only a few steps, Arius froze in place. It seemed like he had stepped on the creature he hated the most.

He looked down and immediately closed his eyes.

“Sophie, help! I’m done for. I’m really going to die this time!” This was the most poisonous cobra in the world, and it was spitting venom at him.

Tristan immediately went to Arius, grabbed the cobra by the neck, and threw it far away.

Arius tried to gather his composure and speak up, hoping to rid himself of the embarrassment. But as he looked up to meet Tristan’s gaze, he found himself unable to utter a single word, feeling awkward and helpless.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 828

Anything For Her Chapter 828-Feeling skeptical about Arius’ courage, Tristan commanded, “All right, get to the back. I’ll clear the way.”

Arius cleared his throat, but in the end, he didn’t say anything. At this point, it seemed that anything he said would be superfluous.

Just as Arius was about to head to the back to cover them, he saw Sophie’s suspicious gaze.

“Sophie, come to the middle! I’ll cover the back.” Regardless, Sophie was a girl; he could not let her cover the back!

However, the woman shook her head.

“You should stay in the middle! You are now considered a patient, and we must protect you.”

Sophie still had the virus analysis file in her hands, and she had already figured out everything. Now all she needed to do was to get out of there, and she would be able to control the virus this time.

Arius knew she said that to save face for him, so he had no choice but to continue walking in the middle.

The route down the mountain was challenging because it was a primitive forest, and there were no roads at all.

Meanwhile, the terrorists had been chasing them, and a helicopter had been hovering overhead the whole time, trying to find their location.

The journey was extremely treacherous; Tristan and Sophie took turns saving him from danger.

Among the three, Arius was the most disheveled one. He was a little speechless at how things ended up.

He had not eaten lunch since noon, and now he was starving; he did not have the energy to go any further.

“Why don’t you two go first? After you get out, have someone fly a helicopter here to pick me up,” Arius suggested.

The man sat down on the ground, unable to walk any longer.

Sophie frowned at his lack of physical fitness. “I asked you to go to training camp the last time, but you declined. Have you now learned your lesson?” she chastised.

“Sophie, please get your facts right. I’m a doctor! Why would I need to go to a training camp?”

Arius continued to lie on the ground. All he wanted was to rest; he would deal with everything else later.

“There are poisonous snakes and ferocious beasts here. Are you sure you want to stay here alone?” There was no way to stop him from courting death if he wanted to.

“But I really can’t walk anymore!” Arius said weakly. If he kept running like this, he would run himself to death sooner or later.

“Let’s go! Don’t worry about him. If he wants to die, we can’t stop him.” Tristan did not want to deal with the man.

Sophie frowned as she could not bear to leave Arius alone.

Even though she was a girl, she was not as delicate as he was. “Get up quickly. Stop acting so meekly like a woman.”

“Sophie, you are out of my league!” Arius lamented.

Suddenly, Tristan heard the sound of beasts. Two fierce beasts, to be exact.

“D*mn it!”

Although they had weapons, they would surely attract the attention of the terrorists who were looking for them if they used them now.

Sophie turned to face Tristan after hearing it as well. He hurled a blade at her, which she grabbed.

They knew they could not use guns in this situation. Hence, they could only deal with the two beasts barehanded.

Even Arius, slow as he was, finally realized that something was wrong. As soon as he got up from the ground, he saw the two beasts.

“Oh, f*ck!” He couldn’t help but curse as he pondered if they were about to perish.

“Climb up a tree!” Sophie instructed Arius. The latter did not have the strength to fight, and staying below would only cause them more trouble.

“Sophie!” Arius swallowed his saliva. All these years, he had experienced multiple life-threatening scenarios. However, his legs were still weakened when he saw the two fierce beasts.

Sophie cast a sidelong glance at him, angered by his tardiness in doing what he was told.

Seeing the disdainful expression on her face, Arius felt defeated. Yet, there was nothing he could do!

“My legs are weak!” he lamented.

Right then, Sophie did not have time to deal with him anymore. Instead, she turned her attention to one of the beasts.

She could not leave Tristan to fight with both beasts alone because it was too dangerous.

Similarly, Tristan knew he could not defeat both beasts by himself. So, he had to quickly take care of his own beast first so that he could help Sophie.

His movements were very swift; they relied on the danger in his hand to battle the beasts.

Arius felt useless as he watched Tristan and Sophie put up a fierce fight. In the end, he could only do what little he could to help by climbing up the tree. He vowed not to cause them any more trouble.

The wild beasts in the primitive forest were extremely ferocious. Looking at their white, sharp teeth, it was clear that they wanted to eat them alive.

Tristan's movements were very swift as he rushed to the side of the beast, jumped on its back, and then rode on it.

The beast kept shaking its body, hoping to throw Tristan off.

While Tristan struggled to maintain on the beast's back, he stabbed it repeatedly with his dagger. The beast let out an angry roar.

On Sophie's end, the other beast was also attacking her. However, she was agile and dodged its attacks. She also had a dagger in her hand, but at this moment, one dagger was not enough to kill the beast. Hence, she kept looking for an opportunity.

Arius felt his breath stop as he saw, from the tree, the beast preparing to attack Sophie.

"Sophie, be careful!" he warned.

If she were bitten by this beast, her hand would be crippled.

Sophie dodged the beast's attack once again as if she were teasing it. The beast understood her intentions and became even more angry, attacking with even more ferocity.

As the beast charged toward her, the woman dodged nimbly. As a result, the beast charged straight into a large tree.

Arius nearly burst out laughing when he saw the collision.

The beast had knocked itself out. Meanwhile, Tristan had found the beast's weak spot. Without hesitation, he stabbed it and then jumped down from the beast's back. At this point, the beast lost its ability to fight back.

Tristan came to Sophie's side and saw that the beast that attacked her had fainted. He could not help but twitch his mouth.

Sophie grabbed Tristan's hand and asked, "Are you all right?" She didn't collide head-on with the beast, so she didn't get many injuries; moreover, the beast was a little foolish.

Arius jumped down from the tree and remarked, "To be honest, Sophie, only someone like Tristan can hold you down. Other men would probably be scared to death when they see you like this!"

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 829

Anything For Her Chapter 829-Sophie shot Arius a dirty look.

“Stop your nonsense! You would have ended up in the beasts’ stomach long ago if it weren’t for Tristan and me.”

How dare he says I’m fierce?

“Well, let’s just ignore him. Let it be if he wants to stay behind. We don’t have to be here with him.”

Following the fight with the beasts, he was sweaty and felt uncomfortable since he had mild germaphobia.

His only wish was to leave this place as soon as possible.

After everything they went through, Arius knew he had to leave with them despite having no strength.

He didn’t want to die yet as he hadn’t enjoyed life enough.

None of them said anything on their way down.

Not long after they left, the terrorists caught up. Just then, the beast that knocked into the tree had awakened.

When it saw people approaching, it leaped and wanted to attack.

The people from the terrorist organization shot the beast immediately, causing it to no longer be able to stand up.

“Quick! It seems like they haven’t gone far. We can catch up with them,” the person leading the terrorists said.

“Got it! Let’s move!”

A whole group of several dozen of people promptly followed after the man.

The trio knew the terrorists were approaching them as soon as the gunshot sounded.

“No! They are catching up to us!” With the terrorists chasing after them, it depleted their energy.

Arius asked, “What should we do now?”

They didn’t have enough gun power to face off with them.

“Hurry up! Move!”

Now, the only choice left was to avoid the terrorists. Despite being the impressive fighters they are, he and Sophie could not guarantee to win the battle if it wasn't a close combat but an open-fire battle.

“I agree. Let's move! Arius, you should walk in front.” This time, Sophie allowed Arius to walk before them as she didn't want him to be injured.

“Sophie, you—”

Arius felt pathetic as he needed protection from a girl.

“Be careful, okay? Don't get hurt. The other party has many people, and things might get out of hand.”

Arius bobbed his head in response.

“Don't worry too much about me! You two should take care of yourselves.” Arius didn't want to become a burden to them.

Then, the three of them quickened their steps.

Just then, a helicopter appeared and approached them. This time, it was Nicholas' helicopter.

After finding out Sophie was here, he immediately brought some people with him to rescue her. No matter what it took, he was set on making sure Sophie was safe and sound.

However, they were in mid-air in a primitive forest. It was not an easy task to locate Sophie.

Butterfly was in the helicopter too.

She had been trying her best to locate Sophie but to no avail.

Nicholas looked at Butterfly skeptically.

“Are you sure you can do it? Didn't you say you could find Sophie? What's going on now?”

In response, Butterfly glanced at him and replied, “Please keep quiet, Nicholas. Do you think I'm not worried? Sophie is my best friend!”

She was working hard to locate Sophie.

At that moment, the helicopter of the terrorist organization came toward them and began to attack.

“D*mn it! These people must have a death wish! How dare they attack me?” Already in a bad mood, Nicholas immediately began his counterattack.

The Sable family had been in Anglandur for a long time. Clearly, they had strong firepower. Soon, the helicopter that attacked them was destroyed.

“Someone’s coming for us,” Tristan said as soon as he heard the sound. Although he didn’t know who had come, there were sounds of fighting in the sky.

“Mhm!”

Sophie hummed in response.

“The most crucial thing now is to let them know where we are.” Tristan expressed the importance of this while trying to come up with something.

“Let’s keep moving for now!”

Although someone had come to assist them, there were many terrorists. Therefore, the only thing they could do now was to protect themselves. As for the rest, they could make plans later on.

Seeing the destroyed helicopter, Butterfly gave Nicholas a thumbs up.

“You have great marksmanship, Nicholas! You’re on par with Sophie!”

“Of course! This is nothing.” Although these people had always looked down on him, he achieved his position through his capability.

“Great! I’ve found her. She’s right there.” Butterfly finally breathed a sigh of relief when the computer displayed Sophie’s location.

As soon as Nicholas heard that, he ordered the pilot to fly the helicopter over as he wanted to see Sophie at once.

Just then, a helicopter appeared and approached them. This time, it was Nicholas’ helicopter.

Meanwhile, Sophie and the others were about to reach the bottom of the mountain. At that moment, the terrorists caught up with them.

They only had two submachine guns with them. It seemed like they were likely to be captured by the terrorists this time.

“Since our backups are here, let’s take them head-on!” They must know where to find us since they have located us.

Sophie nodded in response, agreeing to Tristan’s words.

Then, Tristan and Sophie found a suitable place to take cover. With only two submachine guns left, Arius could only hide.

Once the terrorists entered the zone, Tristan gestured for Sophie to take action. Soon, the two worked seamlessly to kill their enemies.

One by one, the terrorists collapsed to the ground.

“Retreat!”

Clearly, they were ambushed here, so naturally, they couldn’t move forward rashly. However, it was too late, and Tristan and Sophie shot them down mercilessly. Very soon, they took down several dozens of them.

On the other hand, Nicholas became even more anxious after he heard the sound of the gunshots.

More than a dozen of terrorists retreated. Seeing their opponent’s powerful firepower, they knew they would die if they acted without a plan. Therefore, they were at a loss.

“Boss, what should we do now?”

“I’ll leave behind half the group with you, and I’ll bring a few people with me to go behind and surround them. There are only three of them. They are no match for us.”

“Okay, Boss. Please go ahead! I’ll take care of everything here!”

There was no movement for a long time. Noticing the strange situation, Tristan and Sophie glanced at each other and knew what their opponents were scheming.

So, you’re planning to outflank us? Let’s see if you can do it.

With no weapons on him, Arius was tensed even when he breathed. He had been living a comfortable life with the International Medical Association for many years and never thought life would be so thrilling.

Just then, Sophie and Tristan reunited.

They stood back to back as this position was perfect for shooting, and they could cover themselves too.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 830

Anything For Her Chapter 830-The terrorists arrived and ended their conversation by starting an intense gunfight in the forest.

Tristan and Sophie were naturally compatible and worked in sync.

If they had enough bullets, there was no way the terrorists could defeat them.

However, to their dismay, they ran out of ammunition.

“You said they wanted to hold me captive, right?” Sophie asked Tristan, who was behind her.

“Mhm.”

At that point, only one bullet was left in Tristan’s machine gun. They were done if the terrorists launched another round of attacks.

“Then I’ll go. I’m curious why they want to catch me.”

Hearing that, Tristan quickly held her hand to stop her.

“No, I’ll never let them take you in this situation. Hold on a little longer. We only need to hold out until someone comes for us.”

Tristan…”

Sophie was all too clear that he was exhausted to the core at that point and wanted him to rest.

“I’ll be fine. You have to trust me, all right?”

“Yeah, I know.”

Not giving them time to consider, the terrorists abruptly launched another round of attacks.

The last bullet was used up, and their enemy would not give them a chance to fight hand-to-hand.

With no choice, Sophie and Tristan put their hands up in the air and walked out of their cover.

One of the terrorists’ anger sparked when he saw the two who killed his comrades and wanted revenge.

However, Tristan gave him a hard kick before he could approach Sophie.

“Stay away from her!”

“You... You’re quite tough, aren’t you? Very well! Let me teach you a lesson, you Chanaean man!”

The person who spoke was a man with blond hair and blue eyes. Moving his wrist, he had always thought Chanaeans to be weak.

Sophie stopped Tristan to prevent escalating the situation.

They were surrounded by terrorists loaded with guns. A moment of rash action could cost them their lives.

Tristan gave her a reassuring look. Since the other party wanted to fight hand-to-hand, he would not give up this opportunity.

This was their opportunity. If they could snatch their opponent’s machine gun, these people would not be able to live to see tomorrow.

As expected, Tristan effortlessly knocked down the man.

“That’s enough. We’re here today only for one objective. That is to bring these two back with us.”

Dissatisfied with his own performance, the man who got beaten to the ground was reluctant to accept the reality.

Just then, Tristan saw Nicholas approaching with a group and thought it was the perfect chance.

He snatched the submachine gun of the man on his left and began to fire at the terrorists.

Sophie, too, seized the opportunity and grabbed a submachine gun. Her marksmanship was on par with Tristan’s, launching fast and accurate movements.

Nicholas came over with his group and surrounded the terrorists. After seeing Sophie and Tristan in the crowd, he turned to say to his subordinates, “Don’t hurt the girl, or I’ll make you pay with your life.”

He had left everything behind and rushed here to save Sophie. As for Tristan, it wouldn’t be bad for him to die here.

Butterfly came with the group as well. After hearing what Tristan said, she couldn't help but roll her eyes.

"Nicholas, if anything happens to Tristan, Sophie will not let you off. If I were you, I'll have a fair competition with Tristan and not play dirty tricks."

Nicholas was rendered speechless by her words.

Sophie would never give me a chance. How can there be any fair play? Besides, he's not a good person. Why should I have a fair competition with him?

Butterfly closely monitored Nicholas' actions. She knew he hated Tristan and wanted to make sure he didn't make a silly mistake at this point.

After all, he saved my life. Despite being a nut job, he's not an evil person.

Soon, all the terrorists were wiped out by them. In the end, Nicholas suppressed his urge to play dirty.

Sophie and Tristan stood back to back without giving them any chance to counterattack.

As soon as Butterfly saw all the terrorists were taken out, she immediately ran toward Sophie and wrapped her arms around the latter.

"Sophie, are you all right? How are you feeling?"

In response, Sophie patted Butterfly on the shoulder and replied, "I'm fine. Let's go!"

They needed to leave promptly to avoid being followed by another group of terrorists as they were drained of all energy.

As expected, Tristan effortlessly knocked down the man.

At that moment, Arius came out from his hiding place. Butterfly's lips twitched when she saw him.

"Why are you here? I thought you were dead! How can you hide in such a dangerous situation?"

Arius remained silent as he wasn't in the mood to say anything. With no strength left, he leaned against Butterfly.

"What are you doing? I'm telling you, Arius! I have no feelings for you, you—"

Hearing that, Arius rolled his eyes at her.

“Don’t worry! I have no feelings for you too. I’m exhausted, starving, and need some support.”

Seeing how pale he looked, Butterfly had no choice but to help him to the helicopter.

Arius got into the helicopter first, followed by Butterfly, Sophie, and finally, Nicholas.

After getting into the helicopter, Nicholas told the pilot. “Let’s go! He’s not coming with us.”

Knowing Tristan’s personality, Nicholas said that on purpose to anger him, wishing he wouldn’t board the helicopter.

“That’s enough, Nicholas! We’re getting chased down now,” Butterfly chimed in. We’re here to rescue them, so why is he doing this when we’ve found them?

Sophie shot Nicholas a glare.

“If that’s the case, I’ll stay behind too.” Sophie wasn’t one to beg. Since Nicholas didn’t allow Tristan to come with them, Sophie wanted to get down.

“I—”

Nicholas felt utterly depressed. The feeling of being unable to go against anything a girl said was terrible.

“All right. Hop in!”

“No, thank you,” Tristan said smugly.

Everyone looked at him in disbelief.

“Unless you beg me!” Tristan spat coldly.

“F*ck you!”

Nicholas was truly enraged. This man is pushing his luck! I’m here for Sophie. How dare he act all prideful?

“Get in, Tristan! We need to leave now!” They still had many things to deal with and couldn’t bear to waste another second here. Moreover, he had run out of stamina and needed some rest urgently.

Under Sophie’s gaze, Tristan hopped into the helicopter without saying another word.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 831

Anything For Her Chapter 831-The look on Nicholas' face almost caused Butterfly to burst out in laughter. It turns out that Nicholas is just a paper tiger in front of Sophie.

As the pilot flew the helicopter away, the terrorists' helicopter pursued them with the intention of engaging them in a dogfight.

A grim expression descended upon Nicholas' face as he snarled, "D*mn it. These guys have no respect for me at all. Don't they know what this place is?"

Furthermore, the Sable family crest was emblazoned across the helicopter.

"Why are you so worked up about it, Nicholas? These guys are vicious. They don't give a d*mn who you are!"

In reality, Nicholas' name didn't carry much weight in Anglandur.

At the same time, Arius, too, was amused by Butterfly's words.

She's such a brazen gal! Can't she see how Nicholas is already fuming?

Just like Arius, Butterfly knew that Nicholas would never lay a finger on them simply because they were Sophie's close friends.

As a result, they had nothing to fear from him.

It was true that Nicholas wasn't going to hold Butterfly accountable, as Sophie was sitting right in front of them. To kill Butterfly at that moment would be to upset Sophie.

Grabbing a machine gun, he fired a barrage of bullets at the approaching helicopter to keep it at bay.

Soon, their helicopter managed to break through the encirclement and fly back to the Sable residence.

When Javier saw that Sophie had arrived, he was lost for words, for there was truly nothing to say.

Hence, he remained upstairs instead of going down to welcome them. Given his strained relationship with Sophie, it would be awkward to see her face to face.

"Sophie, I hope you don't mind resting here. It's much safer here compared to the ongoing chaos outside."

Nicholas had assumed his place was absolutely safe until the terrorists disregarded his family crest and attacked their helicopter. Only then did he take on a humbler tone.

“Mm-hmm.”

Sophie didn't mind taking a break there.

“Tristan, you're not welcome here. Now that you're safe, you can go.”

Nicholas was naturally jealous of his romantic rival and found him to be an eyesore.

“I'll be by Sophie's side wherever she is,” Tristan snapped, ignoring Nicholas' show of displeasure. He can fume all he wants, but it has nothing to do with me.

“Tristan, we're in my territory, so—”

“So what if it is?” Do you think I'm afraid?

“Nicholas, if you don't like us being here, we can leave. I'm in no mood to listen to your meaningless complaints.”

It's not like we have no choice but to be here.

Nicholas scratched his nose awkwardly as he protested, “Why do you have to keep scolding me, Sophie? What have I done wrong? I have just risked my life to rescue all of you!”

He felt aggrieved by her attitude.

Didn't I promise her that I'll see a psychologist? She had agreed to give me a chance in return. So why does she keep treating me this way?

Butterfly nodded as she protested on Nicholas' behalf, “Nicholas insisted on rescuing you despite being wounded, Sophie. Why don't you just let it slide?”

It was clear to Butterfly that Nicholas' feelings for Sophie were so strong that he was willing to sacrifice his life for her.

Meanwhile, Richard sent someone over with food.

After gathering around, the famished Arius wolfed down his food while Tristan barely touched it.

The sight of Nicholas had caused him to lose his appetite.

“What's wrong? Do you not like the food?” Sophie inquired when she noticed him fiddling with his food.

Since they were in Nicholas' territory, they had no choice but to make do.

"I'm not really hungry," Tristan flatly replied.

Sophie held his hand as she reassured him, "We won't stay here too long and will be leaving soon."

Cognizant that he was uncomfortable staying at Nicholas' place, she had no choice but to comfort him.

"I'm fine. I'm not that petty. Besides, as I'm the person who has your affection, I have already won." The more reason for me not to be angry.

Sophie broke into a smile as she remarked, "I'm glad to hear that."

Although she saw the matter as a trivial one, she still had to take his feelings into consideration.

After the meal, Nicholas assigned them their rooms so that they could shower and change.

"I'll be by Sophie's side wherever she is," Tristan snapped, ignoring Nicholas' show of displeasure. He can fume all he wants, but it has nothing to do with me.

All of them subsequently went off to wash up, as they could no longer bear the stench on their bodies after the long day.

Sophie, too, didn't think too much about it. She subsequently emerged after taking a bath and getting a fresh change of clothes.

Well aware that Javier was in the mansion, she took the initiative to see him.

Javier, expecting the visit, didn't stop her from visiting.

"I didn't expect you to have the gall to show your face here," Javier snapped, for she was the person who killed Alex.

In her amusement, Sophie retorted, "Why wouldn't I? Am I a coward in your eyes?"

Alex died because he deserved it.

"Aren't you afraid that I'll kill you?" Javier whipped out a gun and pointed it right between her eyes.

"You wouldn't dare!"

He doesn't have the courage to do it with Tristan and Nicholas in the mansion.

“You really are confident in yourself.”

Javier resented Sophie’s attitude, for it made him feel like he was predictable and that he was powerless against her.

“In that case, what are you doing here? Are you here just to challenge my authority?” I don’t think she’s that silly.

“No. I just want to inform you that Nicholas has agreed to see a psychologist. I feel that you should find him a good one.”

Being obsessive is a form of mental illness, and Nicholas’ condition is extremely grave. If he doesn’t get treatment soon, the consequences will be unpredictable.

“All right. I understand,” Javier concurred as he, too, had hoped for the same.

Now that his son had agreed to it, he would naturally make the arrangements.

“There’s nothing else I have to say other than remind you that you owe me.”

Nicholas isn’t someone who would listen to just about anybody.

“Do you think Nicholas would’ve turned out that way if it wasn’t for you? Isn’t it too much to expect me to thank you?”

“I disagree. I have never come onto your son. It was he who pursued me of his own volition,” Sophie asserted.

Her confidence was built on the truth. After all, she clearly had no hand in how Nicholas turned out.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 832

Anything For Her Chapter 832-“On top of that, you don’t have to worry about me getting involved with him in any way,” Sophie declared.

Once she had said her piece, she strode out of Javier’s study.

The moment she left, Nicholas emerged from the shadows, eliciting a sigh from Javier.

“What’s your goal in getting me to hear those words? Didn’t I already tell you? Stop wasting your time!”

At that moment, sorrow was the only thing Nicholas felt. Nothing else really mattered, for what Sophie said was true.

“Nicholas, why are you such a failure? Didn’t she make herself clear? She has no feelings for you at all. In that case, you should do what’s necessary. Now that you have a golden opportunity, do you still need me to remind you of it?”

Tristan never had the intention of letting Nicholas go.

Now that the former was here in their home, killing Tristan would be extremely easy.

“I don’t want Sophie to hate me.” He obviously knew that this was the best chance he had but couldn’t bear the lifelong burden of Sophie’s animosity.

Javier inhaled a deep breath.

“Nicholas, are you really my son? Since when do I have such a failure like you as my son?” He has forsaken his family on the account of love.

Nicholas remained silent, for it was a question he didn’t have the answer to.

“Let me remind you again that this is as close as you would ever come to killing him. If you let him go, he might not return the favor next time.” They had no illusions as to how ruthless Tristan was.

“If I die in his hands, I’ll gladly accept my fate.” No matter what, he wasn’t going to kill Tristan in front of Sophie.

Meanwhile, Sophie went to see Tristan in his room.

“I’ve ordered someone to pick us up.” It wasn’t safe for them to continue lingering in Nicholas’ territory. If the latter harbored any hostile intentions, they would be put in an extremely precarious position.

Sophie nodded in agreement. “Got it.”

It’s true that staying back isn’t a good idea.

She was then pulled into Tristan’s embrace.

“What’s on your mind?”

“I was just thinking about everything that happened recently,” Sophie answered, as exhaustion caused her to lean into his embrace.

“Now’s not the time for that. You should get some sleep instead.” She hasn’t gotten any rest during her time at International Medical Association. After all that has happened today, she must be exhausted.

“No, I can rest when I’m home.” Truth be told, she didn’t fully trust Nicholas still.

Given that the latter never stopped finding ways to kill Tristan, there was no way she could sleep at a time like this.

“Sure.” Tristan didn’t want to pressure her. After all, his men were arriving soon, and she could have all the rest she needed when they were home.

Meanwhile, even after Marcus’ men combed the primeval forest, they failed to locate Sophie and her companions.

After Barney learned about the shootout in the forest, his expression drastically changed.

“Dr. Smith, as you can see, the men I’ve sent were unable to locate them. Now that chaos reigns across Anglandur, you have to step forward and take charge.” Marcus had run out of ideas.

Barney took a deep breath before replying, “I understand.”

There was no way he could ignore the devastation created by the virus.

Yet he still couldn’t accept the fact that Sophie and Arius lost their lives just like that.

“Dr. Smith, now that the nation is in crisis, we have no choice but to let go of the past. Our current priority is to work hard to solve the problem that lies before us.”

Barney remained silent, as he still couldn’t take his mind off Arius and Sophie. However, the attackers were terrorists, and there was a huge number of them.

Just the thought of those two losing their lives saddened him. All this wouldn’t have happened if I didn’t ask them to come with me. Both of them were still so young, and their future path was paved with limitless possibilities.

While Barney was mired in self-loathing, his phone rang from an unknown number.

Arius’ voice rang out the moment he answered.

“Dr. Smith, it’s me. Don’t worry. Sophie and I are fine, and we’ll be back very soon. On top of that, Sophie has found out the reason for the virus’ mutation and is confident of finding a cure for it very soon.”

Cognizant that Barney would be worried, Arius found a phone to give his mentor a call.

“Now’s not the time for that. You should get some sleep instead.” She hasn’t gotten any rest during her time at International Medical Association. After all that has happened today, she must be exhausted.

“Arius, are you really all right?” Hearing Arius’ voice felt like a surreal experience for Barney.

“Mmm-hmm, don’t worry. We’re perfectly fine!”

After exchanging a few more words, Barney headed to his temporary lab and returned to his work.

Thank God they’re all right.

Upon ending the call, Arius was given a fright when he turned around to see Butterfly appear out of nowhere.

“What are you doing? You almost scared me to death, standing behind me silently like that.”

“What’s there to be afraid of if your conscience is clear?” What a strange man. Why is he so worked up when we have escaped from the jaws of death together?

“I’m not afraid of anything.” He has turned out this way simply because he’s just too kind.

“By the way, we’ll be leaving soon. Are you coming with us?” Arius asked Butterfly.

“Yes, I am.”

Even though Nicholas had saved her life, there was no point in her staying back, as they were not on the same side.

Soon, Tristan’s men came to pick them up. Knowledge of their departure quickly upset Nicholas.

“Sophie, why can’t you stay one night before leaving?” What do the lives of all those people have anything to do with us? Is it necessary to sacrifice so much for them?

No matter what, he refused to let Sophie leave.

His objections caused Sophie to stop in her tracks.

“Nicholas, our values diverge from each other. It’s very difficult for me to explain what I’m doing.” Since she failed the first time, she felt that repeating herself was nothing but a waste of time.

“That said, I’m truly grateful to you for rescuing us.” She would never forget that she owed him her life despite the bad blood.

“In that case, why don’t I come with you?” Since she’s unwilling to stay, I’m sure I can go with her.

“How can you do that with your wounds? Besides, didn’t you agree to see a psychologist?”

Nicholas would be a lot more useful if he could keep his emotions in check.

“I don’t care. I just want to be by your side.” He couldn’t be bothered with the Sable family anymore.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 833

Anything For Her Chapter 833-Richard came forward at once.

“Boss, the Sable family—”

A grim look descended upon Nicholas’ face. I really want to be by Sophie’s side. So what if she loves another? All that matters is that I can keep her safe!

The Sable family couldn’t afford to lose its head, Nicholas, at a time like this.

“Nicholas, I remember what I promised you. Therefore, once you see the psychologist, I’ll treat you to dinner.”

That was his reward for saving them this time.

In the end, Nicholas escorted them out reluctantly.

He had no idea if Sophie was telling the truth, as she had always been merciless to him.

Nevertheless, as the head of the Sable family, it was his responsibility to protect the family at a time when Anglandur had fallen into chaos.

“What about Butterfly—” Richard wanted to clarify if the hostage was allowed to leave.

“Let her go!”

With Butterfly at Sophie’s side, there would be one more person to keep the latter safe, putting his mind at ease.

Subsequently, Richard didn’t dare say another word considering the foul mood Nicholas was in.

The sight of Nicholas staying back to take charge of the Sable family elicited a sigh of relief from Javier.

“Son, I know I have failed you all these years. Once the crisis is over, I’ll support you in whatever you want to do. I’m sure you’ll be satisfied this way, won’t you?” He was well aware of how much Nicholas liked Sophie, but current circumstances had tied their hands.

As for Nicholas, he was surprised to hear his father soften his stance for the very first time.

“All right. I’ll go and see the psychologist. If I no longer have feelings for her once I’m cured, I won’t see her anymore.”

However, if my feelings remain the same after treatment, no one is going to get in my way.

“Richard, stay close to him and keep him safe.” The situation in Anglandur was extremely dangerous due to the ongoing power struggle.

Nodding, Richard reassured Javier, “Don’t worry, Old Mr. Sable. I’ll definitely protect Mr. Sable.”

Nicholas was everything to Javier. There was no way he was going to allow any harm to come to the former.

The current chaos made Javier feel anxious because the virus incident would result in a massive reshuffle of power in Anglandur.

Amidst the upheaval, it was imperative for the Sable family to survive. Nicholas was their only hope now that Javier was too old to lead the family.

Once the group got into the center and traveled through Anglandur’s streets, they could see different factions on it.

Hence, the general public stayed at home, as no one dared to step out into the streets.

They were worried about losing their lives if they weren’t careful.

Consequently, the sight before Butterfly triggered a sigh from her.

“I never expected the mighty Anglandur to fall into such a state.” It was a truly unbelievable sight.

“That’s right!”

Having spent many years living there, Arius had never seen such pandemonium within the country.

Once prosperity was gone, misery was all that was left.

Soon, their car arrived at Tristen's mansion, where they planned to stay the night before meeting with Berney.

"The terrorists are looking for you and Arius, but both of you will be safe here, as I have gathered everyone available."

If the terrorist were to attack us, we could also go all out to wipe them out.

"Hmm, why don't we get Anglendur's president to send troops over?"

The terrorists are a bunch of crazies. I don't want our men to suffer any unnecessary casualties.

"I've already gotten someone to get in touch with him, but he's in an equally precarious position right now."

It wasn't going to be easy for Marcus to move his troops due to the tight spot he was in.

When Tristen looked reluctant to leave after she lay down on the bed, Sophie suggested, "You should get some rest. You've had a long day too."

Contrary to her words, Tristen took off his clothes and climbed into bed with her.

"What are you doing?"

Isn't he a principled man? Doesn't he feel uncomfortable lying here with me?

"I'm protecting you!"

He wasn't going to let her out of his sight during their time in Anglendur.

As long as he stayed by her side, they would be together even in death.

Sophie snuggled up to him as she said, "Was it a mistake for me to come here, Tristen? I have dragged you into this mess!"

Butterfly has now returned to our side, while anarchy reigns in Anglendur.

Amidst the upheaval, it was imperative for the Sable family to survive. Nicholas was their only hope now that Javier was too old to lead the family.

Once the group got into the car and traveled through Anglandur's streets, they could see different factions on it.

Hence, the general public stayed at home, as no one dared to step out into the streets.

They were worried about losing their lives if they weren't careful.

Consequently, the sight before Butterfly triggered a sigh from her.

"I never expected the mighty Anglandur to fall into such a state." It was a truly unbelievable sight.

"That's right!"

Having spent many years living there, Arius had never seen such pandemonium within the country.

Once prosperity was gone, misery was all that was left.

Soon, their car arrived at Tristan's mansion, where they planned to stay the night before meeting with Barney.

"The terrorists are looking for you and Arius, but both of you will be safe here, as I have gathered everyone available."

If the terrorist were to attack us, we could also go all out to wipe them out.

"Hmm, why don't we get Anglandur's president to send troops over?"

The terrorists are a bunch of crazies. I don't want our men to suffer any unnecessary casualties.

"I've already gotten someone to get in touch with him, but he's in an equally precarious position right now."

It wasn't going to be easy for Marcus to move his troops due to the tight spot he was in.

When Tristan looked reluctant to leave after she lay down on the bed, Sophie suggested, "You should get some rest. You've had a long day too."

Contrary to her words, Tristan took off his clothes and climbed into bed with her.

"What are you doing?"

Isn't he a principled man? Doesn't he feel uncomfortable lying here with me?

“I’m protecting you!”

He wasn’t going to let her out of his sight during their time in Anglandur.

As long as he stayed by her side, they would be together even in death.

Sophie snuggled up to him as she said, “Was it a mistake for me to come here, Tristan? I have dragged you into this mess!”

Butterfly has now returned to our side, while anarchy reigns in Anglandur.

“It’s no big deal. Regardless of your decision, I’ll always be by your side. Your burden is mine to share. Come what may!”

“It’s no big deal. Regardless of your decision, I’ll always be by your side. Your burden is mine to share. Come what may!”

He had never blamed her for anything.

“Hmm, Tristan, why are you so good to me?” He never fails to mesmerize me.

She then leaned in and gave his chin a bite.

“We’ll go home once all this is over.” After this, I’ll obey everything he says and not get involved in anymore sh*t.

“You don’t have to account for me in your decisions. Just follow where your heart takes you. I’ll always have your back.”

Sophie wrapped herself around him with all four limbs.

“What should I do? I don’t know what else to say.” She was never particularly good with words.

Tristan sealed her lips with his as he murmured, “Don’t say anything, then.”

All she needs to do is chase her dreams. I’ll take care of everything else.

After a good night’s sleep in the mansion, all of them recovered their strength. They subsequently gathered for breakfast the next morning.

“Butterfly, I have made arrangements for you to go home. It’s not safe for you here.”

I can’t go due to unfinished business, but Butterfly has to leave first.

Butterfly shook her head as she protested, “Sophie, how can I leave you here after all that we’ve been through? Let me stay. I promise not to be a burden to you.”

“I’m not worried about you being a burden. I just don’t want you to be infected by the virus, as it will greatly complicate the situation.”

“Sophie…”

How can she do this?

“I want to stay, really. I’ll bear the consequences of my decision, regardless of what they are, all right?”

I’m not a disloyal friend. There’s no way I can abandon her at a time like this!

“Butterfly, you have to listen to me,” Sophie asserted impatiently.

In response to Butterfly’s persistence, Arius interjected, “Let her stay, Sophie. We’ll be safer with one more person around.”

When Sophie shot him a silent glance, Arius scratched his nose awkwardly.

Even if you order her to go home, it’s not like she’s going to listen. Keeping her by your side is certainly better than letting her roam all around the place.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 834

Anything For Her Chapter 834-“Sophie, I won’t be leaving you all alone here anyway. Even if you tell me to leave, I won’t go.”

Butterfly was persistent in her words.

“Fine, then you’ll stay here!” As Sophie knew Butterfly’s personality well, she didn’t say anything more.

The group headed toward the temporary medical research center, which was a place that existed in secret.

Since the International Medical Association had been completely destroyed, Barney’s exact location would surely remain a secret.

Barney finally heaved a sigh of relief upon seeing Sophie and Arius arriving at the facility.

"I'm relieved to see the both of you safe and sound. Otherwise, I'll never be able to forgive myself." He was the one who summoned them there. It would be hard for him to be at ease if something bad happened to them in this place.

"How could you think like that, Dr. Smith? We're totally fine. Besides, even if something really happened to us, it's our fate. You don't have to blame yourself for it."

"All right."

"This is the result of my research, Dr. Smith. I have discovered what caused the virus mutation, and I believe we can find a way to resolve this problem." It shouldn't be difficult to fix the rest of the problems now that they have determined the cause.

"Okay. Let's work hard together. We're racing against time now, so we've got to solve this before the Grim Reaper knocks on the door."

As of right now, Anglandur was in a state of chaos.

There was no telling what would happen next if they didn't act quickly, and it was already at its worst point right now.

"Okay."

"What about them? We're here to do research, so they won't be much help if they stay. Why don't we let them return home instead?" Barney said as he looked at Butterfly and Tristan.

"Dr. Smith, it isn't absolutely safe here. With both of them around, we can conduct our research and experiments without worrying about safety," Sophie explained the purpose of having Butterfly and Tristan here with them.

Barney eventually nodded and agreed after pondering for a brief moment.

It didn't make much of a difference to Barney.

Everything else was irrelevant as long as Sophie was trustworthy enough.

"Butterfly, please follow Arius," Sophie said to Butterfly, who nodded immediately.

"Don't worry. I'll protect him well." Butterfly also knew that Tristan would remain by Sophie's side and protect her. In this case, she could only protect Arius for now.

"Okay."

As everyone headed to their respective laboratories, they began a new round of research.

While Sophie was busy with her work, Tristen couldn't offer her any assistance since he didn't have any knowledge in that aspect.

Therefore, he had no choice but to watch beside her.

Oh, so that's what my woman looks like when she does her research! It's so amazing and cool of her to be so focused on her work.

Tristen stared at her with a besotted look on his face.

At that moment, he really wanted to hug and kiss her, but he knew it wasn't the right time for him to disturb her. Therefore, Tristen chose not to do anything and simply observed her quietly.

Sophie kept herself busy until someone brought them food when it was time for lunch. After that, she stopped working and went to eat with Tristen.

"Is it boring for you?"

Life in the laboratory is dull. He must find it boring to be here and have nothing to do!

"No! I think it's quite interesting." Wherever she was, he would never get bored at all.

"All right. You should eat more." After that, Sophie filled Tristen's lunchbox with meat from her own.

"You should eat more too. It's you who's putting in the effort. I'm just sitting there doing nothing."

"I will."

Due to the fact that it was a secret base, there was no cafeteria available, so they were only provided with packed meals.

As the facilities provided were mediocre, Tristen was quite concerned with Sophie's health.

After lunch, Sophie leaned against Tristen to rest for a while, feeling exhausted from all the mental work she had been doing.

She was satisfied enough with only resting her eyes for a while.

Because Tristen knew she was exhausted, he did not disturb her sleep. Instead, he allowed her to lean on him for as long as she needed.

Sophie, too, didn't realize she could even fall asleep during the critical period like this. It wasn't until half an hour later that she finally woke up.

"Why didn't you wake me up?" How could I fall asleep at the time like this?

"It's okay. You'll work more efficiently after the short break." Tristan merely thought that she was too tired and wanted her to rest for a while.

He just didn't wish to see her so exhausted like that.

"All right, then. I'm going back to work. You can rest for a while, and I'll call you if anything happens."

He hadn't been able to take a good rest since the incident with the International Medical Association, so it was time for him to do so.

"Okay."

Meanwhile, in Ipsdale, the Lombard family was even more anxious after learning about the situation in Anglondur. They knew the country was truly in chaos at the moment.

While Sophie was busy with her work, Tristan couldn't offer her any assistance since he didn't have any knowledge in that aspect.

Therefore, he had no choice but to watch beside her.

Oh, so that's what my woman looks like when she does her research! It's so amazing and cool of her to be so focused on her work.

Tristan stared at her with a besotted look on his face.

At that moment, he really wanted to hug and kiss her, but he knew it wasn't the right time for him to disturb her. Therefore, Tristan chose not to do anything and simply observed her quietly.

Sophie kept herself busy until someone brought them food when it was time for lunch. After that, she stopped working and went to eat with Tristan.

"Is it boring for you?"

Life in the laboratory is dull. He must find it boring to be here and have nothing to do!

"No! I think it's quite interesting." Wherever she was, he would never get bored at all.

"All right. You should eat more." After that, Sophie filled Tristan's lunchbox with meat from her own.

“You should eat more too. It’s you who’s putting in the effort. I’m just sitting there doing nothing.”

“I will.”

Due to the fact that it was a secret base, there was no cafeteria available, so they were only provided with packed meals.

As the facilities provided were mediocre, Tristan was quite concerned with Sophie’s health.

After lunch, Sophie leaned against Tristan to rest for a while, feeling exhausted from all the mental work she had been doing.

She was satisfied enough with only resting her eyes for a while.

Because Tristan knew she was exhausted, he did not disturb her sleep. Instead, he allowed her to lean on him for as long as she needed.

Sophie, too, didn’t realize she could even fall asleep during a critical period like this. It wasn’t until half an hour later that she finally woke up.

“Why didn’t you wake me up?” How could I fall asleep at a time like this?

“It’s okay. You’ll work more efficiently after a short break.” Tristan merely thought that she was too tired and wanted her to rest for a while.

He just didn’t wish to see her so exhausted like that.

“All right, then. I’m going back to work. You can rest for a while, and I’ll call you if anything happens.”

He hadn’t been able to take a good rest since the incident with the International Medical Association, so it was time for him to do so.

“Okay.”

Meanwhile, in Jipsdale, the Lombard family was even more anxious after learning about the situation in Anglandur. They knew the country was truly in chaos at the moment.

It was so worrying for Ysabelle that she couldn’t even eat at all.

It was so worrying for Ysabelle that she couldn’t even eat at all.

“Tell me, Aunt Sarah, will Uncle Tristan and Sophie return home safely?” Those terrorists are really scary!

Sarah's expression was grim as well.

"Don't talk about something like this in front of Grandpa. He'll be worried sick." Surely Sophie and Tristan will return to us safe and sound. What they're doing there now is righteous and good. They will come home to us, won't they?

Although Ysabelle knew she couldn't say such things at home, she couldn't resist the urge to express her feelings. Otherwise, she wouldn't be able to sleep.

"Why don't we give them a call, Aunt Sarah?" Even though they couldn't go to Anglandur to visit them, hearing their voices was good enough for them.

"Okay."

Sarah then quickly made a phone call to Tristan. Surprisingly, the call went through almost immediately.

"Hey, Sarah! Yes, don't worry. We're fine. Sophie's super busy right now, so she couldn't talk much to you."

As soon as the call got through, Tristan briefly chatted for a while and hung up after that.

Ysabelle wanted to chat with Sophie for a bit, but she didn't have the chance to do so.

"Why is Sophie so busy?" Sophie always seemed to be preoccupied with something, no matter where she was.

"All right, enough of that. You can feel at ease now that we know they're safe and sound. With Tristan around, he'll protect Sophie well."

They should all have faith that the duo would be able to return home safely.

"All right. I know."

Feeling extremely bored, Ysabelle had no choice but to look for Felix. Despite being busy, Felix took some time off after seeing her arrive at his office to accompany her.

He even requested his secretary to bring some desserts over.

"What's wrong? You seem really unhappy. Could it be that I'm too busy these days and don't have time to accompany you? Once I'm done with all my stuff, I'll definitely spend more time with you." Felix missed her too, but the problems at hand were simply too overwhelming for him to handle. He needed to take care of everything well so Tristan wouldn't have to worry about anything while he was in Anglandur.

“Leave me be. I’m just feeling bored.”

Felix wrapped his arms around her waist.

“How could I leave you alone? You’re the one I care most about in this world. I don’t care about the others, but you will always matter to me.” After finishing his words, Felix kissed her on the lips. She was his most treasured sweetheart, after all.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 835

Anything For Her Chapter 835-“Mm, okay. I know you’re the best,” Ysabelle murmured, continuing to cuddle close to Felix.

Having the girl he liked so much in his arms, Felix could barely control himself. At that moment, he longed to pin her down and shower her with kisses.

“You enchanting little vixen. You’ve no idea I’m already completely bewitched by you,” he said. I’m a grown man and a little older than her, yet I find it hard to control myself whenever I’m with her. I’m always hoping I can give her the best of everything.

As for Ysabelle, not only was she undaunted, but she even carried on teasing him and deliberately bit his chin.

“Really? Do you truly love me? Do you want me?” She loved seeing him lose control because it gave her a sense of accomplishment.

“Truly. I want you. I want all of you, every inch of your skin. I want you to belong to me completely.” He began planting light kisses on her skin, inch by inch.

It was not their first time being so intimate, but he would stop himself every time before things went too far. After all, she was the person he loved the most, and he wanted to protect her. Hence, he had always cherished her dearly.

Seeing the burning passion in his eyes, she felt sure that he genuinely loved her. If he didn’t, he wouldn’t put himself through such agony.

“I love you, Felix,” she whispered into his ear.

He lightly sucked on her earlobe and murmured, “What an alluring seductress you are. I don’t think you know I’ll lose it completely if you keep this up.”

“Do you really love me? If you do, can you take me to Anglandur? I feel uneasy thinking about how Sophie is all alone there.”

Felix fell silent. So, all this while she was seducing me without regard for the consequences in the hopes that I’d bring her to Anglandur!

"Ysabelle, tell me truthfully. Is Sophie more important to you or me?" It was something that mattered a lot to him.

"Why must you compare yourself to her? Isn't the answer obvious?" she responded. Sophie is more important, of course!

Her reply struck him like a ton of bricks. "Will I never hold a candle to Sophie?"

I'm the man who wants to spend the rest of his life with her! How can she treat me this way?

Ysabelle pushed him away. "That's enough. Are you taking me to Anglandur or not? I really want to go and see what it's like there. You don't have to worry. Once we're there, I'll be obedient and won't cause you guys any trouble."

I can promise her anything but that. It's something I have no say in.

After observing his expression, she flew into a rage.

"Why are you like this? Are you going to agree to it or not? If the answer is no, you don't have to come looking for me anymore," she said petulently.

Felix held her in his arms. "I'll listen to you for everything else, but as far as this matter is concerned, you know there's nothing I can do."

It's utter chaos in Anglandur now. If I dared to take her there at a time like this, I've no doubt the entire Lombard family would tear me to pieces.

She gazed at him morosely, looking close to tears. "I've realized you don't love me at all. You wouldn't refuse this small request of mine if your feelings for me were genuine."

Felix was at a loss for words. He knew she was being dramatic. However, he was powerless in the matter. Hugging her tightly, he said, "Sophie wouldn't want you to go either, so be good and stay here for now."

Anger rushed through her, and she bit his arm. "Hmph! I knew I couldn't count on you. In that case, I'll figure something out myself."

After saying that, she straightened her clothes and stormed off.

Felix could only shake his head helplessly. I'm known to be a formidable person here in Jipsdale, but to my girlfriend, I don't even compare to the women. Now that I think about it, that's really pathetic!

After he finally managed to contact Tristen that night, he could not help complaining. "Can't we go over? Ysabelle will ignore me if I continue refusing to take her."

Although he knew Ysebelle was mad at him, he still had to see what Tristan would say.

"Things are a mess here, so why bring her over? Make sure she stays in Cheneev and doesn't come here to stir up trouble," came Tristan's reply. Sophie is already exhausted as it is. If Ysebelle comes and causes a commotion, it'll wear out Sophie even more, and I don't want that to happen.

"I knew you'd say that," said Felix. But I'm already at my wit's end on how to handle Ysebelle!

"You'd better keep a close watch on her."

I can promise her anything but that. It's something I have no say in.

After observing his expression, she flew into a rage.

"Why are you like this? Are you going to agree to it or not? If the answer is no, you don't have to come looking for me anymore," she said petulantly.

Felix held her in his arms. "I'll listen to you for everything else, but as far as this matter is concerned, you know there's nothing I can do."

It's utter chaos in Anglandur now. If I dared to take her there at a time like this, I've no doubt the entire Lombard family would tear me to pieces.

She gazed at him morosely, looking close to tears. "I've realized you don't love me at all. You wouldn't refuse this small request of mine if your feelings for me were genuine."

Felix was at a loss for words. He knew she was being dramatic. However, he was powerless in the matter. Hugging her tightly, he said, "Sophie wouldn't want you to go either, so be good and stay here for now."

Anger rushed through her, and she bit his arm. "Hmph! I knew I couldn't count on you. In that case, I'll figure something out myself."

After saying that, she straightened her clothes and stormed off.

Felix could only shake his head helplessly. I'm known to be a formidable person here in Jipsdale, but to my girlfriend, I don't even compare to a woman. Now that I think about it, that's really pathetic!

After he finally managed to contact Tristan that night, he could not help complaining. "Can't we go over? Ysabelle will ignore me if I continue refusing to take her."

Although he knew Ysabelle was mad at him, he still had to see what Tristan would say.

“Things are a mess here, so why bring her over? Make sure she stays in Chanaea and doesn’t come here to stir up trouble,” came Tristan’s reply. Sophie is already exhausted as it is. If Ysabelle comes and causes a commotion, it’ll wear out Sophie even more, and I don’t want that to happen.

“I knew you’d say that,” said Felix. But I’m already at my wit’s end on how to handle Ysabelle!

“You’d better keep a close watch on her.”

“Okay, got it. I’ll definitely try my best. Oh, by the way, how’s the progress over there?”

“Okay, got it. I’ll definitely try my best. Oh, by the way, how’s the progress over there?”

“We’re still working on it,” Tristan answered. Oh, how I loathe that d*mn virus! Because of it, Sophie is working her fingers to the bone!

“Okay, noted. You guys remember to be extra careful,” Felix reminded. After all, just being in Anglandur was already dangerous for them.

After Tristan hung up the phone, Sophie walked over to him.

“What’s going on? Did something happen back in Chanaea?” she asked. It’s a critical period, and I wish I could stay on top of everything.

“Nothing. It’s just Ysabelle. She wants to come and look for you. Anyway, you know what she’s like. Felix can’t keep a good handle on her.” Tristan was similarly at a loss for how to deal with that headstrong niece of his.

“Yeah. Tell Ysabelle not to come,” said Sophie, thinking about how unsafe it was where they were and that there would be no one to take care of Ysabelle.

“I agree. I’ve reminded Felix to keep an eye on her, so don’t worry. I won’t let her show up and disrupt things here.” He was sure that even if she did come, she would not be of any help and would only get in the way.

Just then, Arius approached them.

“Come on. The president is here, and Dr. Smith has asked us to join them.” Arius harbored a deep dislike for Marcus. He’s asking us for help but acts so arrogantly. It’s disgusting!

“Okay, sure. Let’s go.”

All three of them headed straight to the conference room.

When they arrived, they found that the atmosphere in the room was tense. Marcus had just thrown a fit. Despite that, Barney remained exceptionally calm.

“Dr. Smith, is there really no other way? Don’t you know how serious the consequences will be if the situation continues like this?” Marcus demanded, tearing at his hair. I’m the one currently caught in the toughest spot, and no one in this country understands me! However, what have I done wrong?

“Mr. President, we’re all working as hard as we can. You saw how we’re only getting three hours of sleep a day. We’re already trying our best.” As for the rest, it was not in their power to do anything.

“What do you mean by that? Are you saying I should give up on Anglandur?”

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 836

Anything For Her Chapter 836-It irked Arius to see Marcus talk to Barney that way. In a brusque tone, he uttered, “Mr. President, you’re the one who invited us here, and may I point out that we didn’t promise we’d be able to solve the situation before coming here. You’re the one who begged for our help, so you should start acting like someone who needs our help!”

Seeing Arius take that attitude, Marcus’ secretary, Jamie, stood up immediately. “What did you say?”

“What’s the matter? Did I say anything untrue?” Arius retorted, his voice clipped. So what if he’s the president?

“How can you talk to the president like that? This is Anglandur. If you dare to utter another word, I can make it so that you won’t be able to leave the country,” Jamie threatened haughtily.

“Hah!” Sophie could not help sneering. We’ve been buckling down day and night, but these people still have the guts to show up here and waste our time. I’ve had enough.

“If you think we can’t do it, we can leave right now,” she said icily.

Seeing that, Marcus tried his best to calm down, then slapped his secretary. “Is that how you should talk to Professor Gullifer?”

Jamie dared not say anything after getting slapped and stepped aside silently.

“My apologies. I was just too anxious. You’re also aware of my situation, and I was only hoping you could speed things up a little.”

“Mr. President, you should also be aware that scientific research isn’t something where we can control its speed,” Barney replied, sticking to his previous answer. In fact, no one has any control over it!

“If you have nothing else to do, start thinking of ways to manage the current state of affairs on the ground instead of coming here to berate us!” Sophie snapped.

Knowing he could not afford to lose his temper again, Marcus replied, “Okay. I understand. I’ll stabilize the situation on the ground. However, I do hope you can work a little faster.”

With that, he left with his subordinates.

Arius immediately pulled out a chair and plopped down onto it. That d*mn jerk! He needs us but is still so high-handed. Who does he think he is?

Turning to Barney, Sophie asked, “Are you okay?”

He nodded. He was already used to such encounters and was not shaken at all.

“Don’t take what he said to heart, you two. He was too agitated, that’s all.” Barney did not wish for the pair to have to face any ramifications.

“Okay. I’ll be heading back then, Dr. Smith,” Sophie replied. She was also unfazed, knowing that such situations were common occurrences.

Their research advanced at a swift pace over the next few days. Thanks to the trio’s joint efforts, they soon successfully extracted the virus’ structural composition and refined an antiviral medicine to curb the virus.

Once they had done that, they finally breathed a sigh of relief.

Subsequently, the medicine would be tested on humans to assess the body’s adaptability to it.

Their research had progressed smoothly without any issues, and the citizens of Anglondur were all elated upon learning that the International Medical Association had managed to develop a medicine. The public had been worried and fearful for so long, living every day in agony. Now, they could not help wondering whether those days were finally over.

After handing over the medicine to those handling the clinical trials, Barney, Arius, and Sophie returned to their hotel.

Physically drained after such a long, exhausting period, they needed a few days of proper rest before working on the medicine again if there were still any issues.

Upon returning to the hotel and seeing his large, plush bed, Arius nearly burst into tears. It had been so long since he last had a good rest!

The next moment, he threw himself onto the bed, pulled the covers over him, and fell fast asleep. I don't care about anything anymore. Even if something crops up, I can't be bothered. All I want is a restful night's sleep. Whatever happens, it can wait until I've slept to my heart's content. I don't want anybody coming to disturb me.

Meanwhile, Barney still seemed troubled. Although we've developed the medicine, what about its effectiveness? That still needs to be tested, and if I'm being honest, I still don't feel confident about it.

"Dr. Smith, you don't have to be so worried. We're only coming back to rest for a couple of days. If there are really any problems, we'll solve them. That's all," Sophie said when she saw him like that. No matter how capable one is, one still needs rest. If we let ourselves become burned out, there'll be even fewer people to conduct the research.

"I know. You've been working hard, so go catch up on some rest," he replied. She's right. We need a break.

When Sophie and Tristen got back to their room, she went straight to the bathroom for a shower and crashed out immediately after.

He knew just how exhausted she had been recently, and although he had been at the research center all this time, he had not done much. Hence, he was not as tired.

Their research advanced at a swift pace over the next few days. Thanks to the trio's joint efforts, they soon successfully extracted the virus' structural composition and refined an antiviral medicine to curb the virus.

Once they had done that, they finally breathed a sigh of relief.

Subsequently, the medicine would be tested on humans to assess the body's adaptability to it.

Their research had progressed smoothly without any issues, and the citizens of Anglandur were all abuzz upon learning that the International Medical Association had managed to develop a medicine. The public had been worried and fearful for so long, living every day in agony. Now, they could not help wondering whether those days were finally over.

After handing over the medicine to those handling the clinical trials, Barney, Arius, and Sophie returned to their hotel.

Physically drained after such a long, exhausting period, they needed a few days of proper rest before working on the medicine again if there were still any issues.

Upon returning to the hotel and seeing his large, plush bed, Arius nearly burst into tears. It had been so long since he last had a good rest!

The next moment, he threw himself onto the bed, pulled the covers over him, and fell fast asleep. I don't care about anything anymore. Even if something crops up, I can't be bothered. All I want is a restful night's sleep. Whatever happens, it can wait until I've slept to my heart's content. I don't want anybody coming to disturb me.

Meanwhile, Barney still seemed troubled. Although we've developed the medicine, what about its effectiveness? That still needs to be tested, and if I'm being honest, I still don't feel confident about it.

"Dr. Smith, you don't have to be so worried. We're only coming back to rest for a couple of days. If there are really any problems, we'll solve them. That's all," Sophie said when she saw him like that. No matter how capable one is, one still needs rest. If we let ourselves become burned out, there'll be even fewer people to conduct the research.

"I know. You've been working hard, so go catch up on some rest," he replied. She's right. We need a break.

When Sophie and Tristan got back to their room, she went straight to the bathroom for a shower and crashed out immediately after.

He knew just how exhausted she had been recently, and although he had been at the research center all this time, he had not done much. Hence, he was not as tired.

Upon returning to the hotel, he gave Sean a call right away.

Upon returning to the hotel, he gave Sean a call right away.

"Mr. Tristan, how are things over there?" Sean had seen the news that they had developed a new antidote, so he thought it would not be long before they could return.

"We should be able to go back in another two weeks," Tristan replied. After all, they would still need time for tests if there were specific issues with the medicine. "By the way, did you find out anything about the group of people who hunted us down previously?"

Those people had wanted to kidnap Sophie, and he was determined to make them pay.

"Yeah, I did. I'll send you the information shortly. You can think about how you want to deal with them," Sean responded. They're just a bunch of terrorists, yet they dare to act arrogantly in front of us.

Sean sent the information on the terrorist organization to Tristan, and after the latter had gone through it, he wasted no time in making arrangements to send some men over there at once. He wanted to destroy their base and capture their leader alive.

After learning of Tristan's plans, Charles immediately offered to lead a team there.

"Trust me, Mr. Tristan. I can take care of it," Charles said. He had led a complacent life long enough and wanted to be involved in dealing with matters like that.

"Are you sure you can do it?" Tristan was a little concerned. No matter what he does, he always does it with a lot of enthusiasm. That's just the kind of person that Charles is. However, he's the one I worry about the most of the three.

"You have to believe in me, Mr. Tristan. After all, I've worked with all of you for so long, so I can handle stuff like this too," Charles insisted. He felt it was time that he spread his wings.

"Very well, then. You can pick the people for your team." After all, the terrorists were no weaklings, and it was no surprise that they would be incredibly skilled and capable.

"Sure. Don't worry. Just leave it to me. There won't be any hiccups, and I definitely won't let you guys down."

"It's your first time carrying out a mission like this, so be careful, okay?" Frankly, Sean was not entirely comfortable with the decision. Nonetheless, he also thought Charles did need an opportunity like that. One can't remain in their comfort zone forever. If they keep doing that, they'll never experience growth.

"Or why don't I go with him? If there's both of us, we can look out for one another," suggested Felix.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 837

Anything For Her Chapter 837-"That won't be necessary, Felix. Trust me. I can head over on my own."

Having seen the files on the terrorist organization, he believed that he could manage it all on his own.

"You should just focus on your relationship instead. Why would you want to go with me? I don't need your company." Charles felt he needed such an opportunity.

"You... Fine! Be careful, then."

Realizing that Charles wouldn't let him come along, he had no choice but to give up.

Charles did not tell his family where he was headed and what he was doing.

Thinking he was going to Anglandur, Winter kept pestering him to let her go with him.

“Take me with you, Charles! I just want to make sure you’re all right over there! I promise I won’t cause you any trouble!” Given how dangerous it was in Anglandur, she didn’t feel safe letting him go alone.

“Why are you being so persistent, Winter? I’ve told you that it’s impossible between you and Tristan, haven’t I? Stop blaming it on Sophie. He wouldn’t date you with or without her in his life!” Charles said with a frown.

I’ve told her this countless times, so why is she still being so stubborn?

“You’ve never been in love with someone, so you would never understand how I feel. I can’t stop my heart from longing for him!”

She would’ve stopped herself from loving Tristan if she could.

“That’s enough. Grandpa isn’t well right now. Instead of thinking about such things, you should visit Grandpa at the hospital and spend more time with him.”

Charles wasn’t about to let her go with him, especially since she was finally back.

Fine! If you won’t bring me along, then I’ll find a way to head over myself! Winter was determined to get what she wanted, with or without his help.

Charles headed out after all of his preparations were complete.

Fifteen hours had passed by the time Sophie woke up.

It wasn’t like her to sleep for such long periods of time, but she was too tired and didn’t feel like getting up after lying down.

The first thing she saw upon opening her eyes was Tristan lying next to her and staring at her.

She felt her face burn up from his scorching gaze.

“You haven’t had a good night’s sleep in a long time. Shouldn’t you be getting some sleep now that you’re finally back? Why are you staring at me like that?” He really deserved a good rest after everything he had gone through.

Tristan pulled her into his arms as he replied, “I didn’t sleep because I wanted to look at you. Honestly, I can’t believe a pretty girl like you would exist in this world. I can’t help but find every inch of your body irresistible!”

There wasn't a single part of her that he didn't like.

Hearing those words of affection filled Sophie's heart with a sweet sensation.

"Thanks for staying by my side all this while, Tristan. I know it wasn't easy for you," she said while kissing him on the lips.

He has a lot on his plate as is, and yet, he set them aside so he could remain by my side at all times. This man really loves me to the core!

"I didn't do anything, so it's not exactly rough at all."

It was the three of them who conducted the research while being under a ridiculous amount of pressure, so it was them who truly had it rough.

However, Sophie never let them down and managed to save the day once again.

It felt as though she could solve any problem anytime with ease.

Sophie rolled herself on top of him and said, "We'll be able to head back in another two more weeks at most."

The problem here would have been taken care of by then. I can't wait to head back to Chanaea! I don't like the environment here in Anglandur!

"Mm. Are you hungry? You must be starving after sleeping for so long, huh? Shall I have someone bring you some food?"

"Yeah, I am a little hungry."

Sophie had eaten before going to bed, but she found herself getting hungry after hearing him say that.

Tristan had the hotel staff bring some food over to their room, and they then took turns feeding each other.

Had someone told her in the past that she would act all lovey-dovey with her man, she would never have believed it.

Even so, everything Sophie did with Tristan simply came naturally to her and filled her heart with a sweet and warm feeling.

They had just finished eating when someone knocked on the door.

The look on Tristan's face turned gloomy when he opened the door and saw Arius and Butterfly standing outside.

“We haven’t been able to rest well for a long time, so why aren’t you two resting in your rooms? Why come and disturb us like this?” he asked with a frown.

Arius pouted as he replied, “As tired as we may have been, we’ve had over ten hours of sleep, which is more than enough. Anyway, I didn’t come here to disturb you two. There’s something that I need to speak to Sophie about.”

Butterfly simply kept quiet and stood behind Arius the entire time.

Tristan sighed as he stepped aside to let them in.

Upon noticing the food on the table, Arius helped himself to it without any hesitation.

Butterfly fell speechless when she saw that.

Professor Gullifer really isn’t picky about his food, huh?

“What’s wrong? Is there a problem with the medicine?” Sophie asked.

We have conducted tons of experiments on it, so there shouldn’t be any issues.

“No, no problem at all. I just came to tell you that our mentor has headed over, so you can rest easy now.” Apparently, Barney was so worried that he went there to keep watch himself.

Sophie frowned when she heard that.

He’s not exactly feeling well, so why wouldn’t he stay here and rest instead?

“Okay. I’ll head over later and have a look.” In order to reduce the drug’s side effects as much as possible, they would have to monitor the clinical trials closely.

“No. You’ve been exhausting yourself a lot lately, so you should just stay here and rest. I’ll go and have a look,” Arius said.

Tristan nodded in approval of Arius’ response. “Yeah, he can take care of things for you. You should just stay here and try to get some more rest.”

Butterfly knew that she was worried about Arius’ safety, so she reassured her, “Don’t worry, Sophie! I’ll go with Arius and keep him safe!”

“All right, then. We’ll swap places tomorrow.”

Sophie decided not to dwell on the matter as it wasn’t anything worth stressing herself over.

Arius then headed out of the room with Butterfly, leaving Sophie and Tristan inside. She had been too busy to think about the terrorist organization’s motives for capturing her and Arius, but she had all the time in the world to do so now.

“You wanted me to look into the terrorist organization, right? Could you show me the files?” she asked.

Tristan switched on his laptop and showed her the data that Sean had gathered.

As Sophie was able to read ten lines in a single glance, she was able to skim through the data fairly quickly and understood the situation.

“Heh... These people sure are bold. I can’t believe they had the audacity to capture me!”

With Barney and Arius around, she figured her presence was not needed at the moment.

“How about we go say hi to these people, Tristan?” Since she would be free for the next couple of days, she decided to destroy the terrorist organization’s base and capture their leader in retaliation.

If you find any errors ( broken links, non-standard content, etc.. ), Please let us know < report chapter > so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 838

Anything For Her Chapter 838-Even so, he would always support her decisions no matter what.

Meanwhile, Charles had arrived in Fandar with his men. It had been a long time since he got to embark on an exciting mission like this, so he was incredibly thrilled about it. The fact that he would be doing this all by himself only made him all the more excited.

He really enjoyed the adrenaline rush from carrying out risky missions.

“This is a very dangerous operation, Mr. Quigley. Please be extra careful,” said Bertram Asher, one of Tristan’s subordinates. Having worked alongside Tristan for many years, he was extremely experienced with combat situations like these.

Tristan didn’t feel safe sending Charles over all by himself, so he had Bertram go with him.

“How incompetent do you think I am, Bertram? I’ve been working for Mr. Tristan just as long as you have, if not longer! Don’t worry; I know what I’m doing!” Charles snapped at him. Despite his usual carefree attitude, he was able to get serious when necessary.

“I know you’re very capable, Mr. Quigley. I simply think it is better to err on the side of caution when it comes to this sort of thing.”

“Got it.”

We’re in a perfect spot for observation and reconnaissance. These b*stards sure are bold going after Sophie! Don’t they know who they’re messing with?

Bertram glanced at the guys he had brought with him.

We have plenty of manpower and weapons, and there are dozens of helicopters on standby as well. We simply need to give the order to mobilize them.

The tense moment was interrupted when Charles’ phone rang all of a sudden.

“Hello, Mr. Tristan! We’re just about to commence the operation! All the preparations are complete, so you can rest assured that nothing will go wrong!” Charles said upon answering the call. He was extremely confident in their abilities and preparation.

“Cancel the operation for now. Sophie and I have just arrived. We’ll greet those b*stards in person!” Tristan ordered.

They didn’t get to fight to their hearts’ content during their last battle, so he was determined to leave a lasting impression this time.

“What? I’m all set and ready to move out, though! Why are you telling me to stop now?” Charles exclaimed with a speechless look on his face. He was really looking forward to this mission, after all.

“What’s the matter? Do you have a problem with that?” Tristan asked.

Charles took a deep breath to calm himself down before replying, “All right, I understand. I’ll stay here and wait for you guys.”

He didn’t dare disobey Tristan’s orders, so he had no choice but to sit back and wait.

“What’s the matter? Is Charles disappointed or something?”

Charles was really looking forward to carrying out this mission, so he must be unhappy now that we came over.

“Don’t worry about him. I just want you to be happy.” Tristan really couldn’t care less about how anyone else felt.

Sophie’s lips curled into a gorgeous smile as she said, “I bet Charles must be so mad at me right now!”

As the weather was really cold in Anglandur, the two of them instantly felt a huge contrast in temperature when they got off the plane in Fandar.

Sophie and Tristan had already gotten changed while they were at the airport. Despite only wearing a plain black T-shirt and a pair of black bloomers, she looked gorgeous as it helped highlight her fair skin.

Tristan, too, was dressed fully in black. In order to rock simplistic outfits like these, one would need to have a fit and well-proportioned body.

Fortunately for Tristan, that was exactly the kind of body he had. He looked so good that the girls around them were all drooling when they passed him by.

That masculine frame and muscular body was such a killer combination that some of the women even approached him to ask for his number.

Tristan simply shot her an icy-cold glance in response. The look in his eyes was so intimidating that they ran off immediately.

While Sophie had gotten used to the attention he received from women, Tristan felt incredibly uncomfortable when he saw the men ogling her.

“What are you guys looking at? I’ll have you killed if you don’t stop staring at her!” he shouted while pulling Sophie into his arms and glaring coldly at them.

Shocked by his brutal response, the men quickly ran off.

“You’re scaring them, Tristan.”

“Really? Am I that scary?” I think I’m quite friendly, though!

“Yeah, you are.”

Sophie didn’t know what else to say in response.

Oh, well... Whatever floats his boat, I guess! I don’t like those guys ogling me anyway, so it’s good to have Tristan scare them off for me.

Charles quickly got out of the car when he saw them approaching.

Although he was a little unhappy when he first heard about their arrival, he decided to pick them up in person anyway.

After all, he knew he didn’t have the right to get mad at someone like Tristan.

It had been over a month since Charles last saw them, so he greeted them warmly, “Mr. Tristan! Sophie! I’m over here!”

Despite only being in Fandar for two days, Charles had already developed quite a tan. That showed just how sunny it was over there.

Sophie nodded and hopped right into the car. Because of how hot the weather was, she desperately needed some air-conditioning to help her cool off.

“What are you two doing here, Mr. Tristan? I thought you said you would let me take care of things here! Do you not trust me to get the job done?” Charles asked with a pout as he handed Tristan a lit cigarette.

I’ve worked alongside Tristan for so many years now! Does he not know my skill level?

To his surprise, however, Tristan turned his offer down.

Charles shot him a confused look. “What’s wrong?” Is he not going to smoke if Sophie is in the car? Does he really have to go that far for her?

"I've stopped smoking," Tristan replied.

He had been slowly dropping some of his bad habits ever since he met Sophie.

"What? You quit smoking? Since when? Why do I not know about that?" Charles exclaimed in shock.

We promised to live a free and adventurous life together, and yet, he's...

"Sophie and I are getting married, right? We'll need to get ready to start a family after that, so I decided to quit smoking now."

Tristan was determined to become a flawless husband for Sophie's sake.

What the... They won't be getting married until a year later! Why does he have to start preparing for it so soon? Is Mr. Tristan really that eager to marry her?

"Jokes aside, are you looking forward to having kids or the process of having kids?"

Honestly, I admire Mr. Tristan for being able to hold himself back despite having such a beautiful girlfriend! It must take a ridiculous amount of willpower to do that!

Tristan simply rolled his eyes at Charles without saying anything. Why would he ask such a silly question? What difference does it even make? I just want to become a perfect husband for Sophie, that's all!

"All right, let's get going! Sophie didn't eat much on the plane because the food didn't taste good, so she's really hungry now. Let's go get something to eat."

"Okay!" Since Tristan had quit smoking, Charles wasn't about to make them wait while he smoked a cigarette. He quickly put the cigarette out, tossed it into the trash, and got into the car.

If you find any errors ( broken links, non-standard content, etc.. ), Please let us know < report chapter > so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 839

Anything For Her Chapter 839-Tristan got into the car while Charles climbed into the passenger seat.

"You're truly amazing, Sophie. Honestly, I've never admired anyone. You're the first one."

Even within the country, he had heard of Sophie's meritorious achievements. Verily, she was a legend.

"Not at all. I'm just an ordinary person."

Sophie really felt that there was nothing great about her. Besides, she had been on the receiving end of far too many such compliments.

As such, they did not affect her anymore. Perhaps that was the difference between a genius and an average person.

The average person would be delighted to hear someone praising her.

Contrarily, someone like her had gotten accustomed to such praise ages ago and did not care about it anymore.

“All right, she’s tired after such a long flight, so zip it.”

This time, Charles was ruthlessly shot down.

The corners of his mouth twitched.

Before Mr. Tristan got acquainted with Sophie, I was also dear to him. In the past, he’d never disdained me such. Sure enough, comparisons are the root of feelings of inferiority! Right now, he no longer has any regard for me.

The drive took over two hours before they arrived at the hotel Charles and the others were staying at. Upon reaching, Sophie quickly took a shower.

The weather there was so scorching that one would sweat anytime and anywhere.

A trace of regret crept into her for having come over in person.

Likewise, Tristan took a shower. When he was done, he phoned Charles and called the man over.

When Charles came over, he explained the plan in detail before regarding Tristan smugly.

“Well? Isn’t my plan this time perfect?” Truthfully, he had really put in a great effort this time.

Fortunately, Tristan was pretty satisfied with the arrangements.

“Yeah, not bad. You improved a lot.” Both he and Sean were quite protective of Charles, so the latter had not been involved in such a thing much.

However, the man could already handle things on his own then.

“After we go back, Sean can hand those tricky matters to you to handle,” Tristan stated.

“Really?”

Among the four of them, Charles was the least capable.

Even so, he could still handle things on his own when he was thrown in at the deep end.

Only when Sophie had finished showering did the three of them have a meal together. With Bertram keeping an eye on the terrorist organization, they did not need to worry about that.

The food during the flight was not all that great, but even in Fandar, it was still more or less the same.

“I really miss the delicious food back in Chanaea!” Indeed, when one had traveled the world, one would realize that their homeland was the most unforgettable place of all.

“If you don’t like eating all this, I’ll have someone find a Chanaean chef to cook specially for you in a while.”

They decided to come over on the spur of the moment, so Tristan did not ask Charles to make such an arrangement.

“No, it’s okay. We’ll be heading back to Anglandur immediately after resolving the matter here. The issue over there is still hanging in the balance.” The final results would be out by the time they returned. After perfecting things, they could then go back to the country.

“Okay, then.”

“It’s no big deal. It’s just finding a Chanaean chef, no? How about this? I’ll have someone go about it later.”

“No, forget it. When are we acting?” Sophie knew that Charles had come over and arranged everything. Therefore, all they needed to do then was to go along with his arrangements.

“What does that mean? Are you saying I’ll still be in charge of the mission this time, Sophie?”

I thought I’d definitely lose the authority to lead this time!

“You’ve made all the arrangements, no? In that case, you’re naturally leading the mission.” Sophie only came over to ascertain those people’s motive in capturing her. She was not really interested in taking the lead.

After all, she would be much better off without anything to do.

At that, Charles shifted his gaze to Tristan.

Is this for real? This is way too sudden!

Tristan nodded in affirmation.

“You can take command. I believe that you can do a good job.” In truth, Charles was capable. Besides, the mission this time was not all that difficult.

When the three of them had finished eating, they converged with Bertram and the others. The instant Bertram spotted Tristan, he went over and greeted the man.

“Mr. Tristan, Ms. Tanner.”

In return, Tristan and Sophie inclined their heads a fraction.

“Mr. Quigley will still be in charge of the mission this time. Work with him,” Tristan ordered.

“Understood.”

Bertram had never doubted the man’s orders, only ever obeying them to the letter.

It was his first time meeting Sophie though he had long since known that Tristan had a girlfriend he could not afford to mess with.

Still, he was shocked upon laying eyes on her.

Whoa! She’s stunningly beautiful! But the thing is, she’s overly young compared to Mr. Tristan. I really didn’t expect him to be such a scoundrel that he would even make a move on such a young lady!

When Tristan glimpsed the look in Bertram’s eyes, his temper spiked.

“What’s the meaning of this gaze of yours?” He’s itching for a beating, huh?

Immediately, Bertram retracted his gaze.

Oh God, I’ve got to be more tactful, for I don’t want to die yet! I wouldn’t be able to survive a beating from him.

He hastily went in search of Charles to discuss the attack later.

Meanwhile, Sophie and Tristan got into the car to helm things there temporarily.

However, Sophie did not quite like staying there.

“Can I go with them? You can stay and give orders here alone.” She was utterly curious about the identity of the person who dared send so many people to capture her.

Tristan had anticipated that she would not be able to stay out of the action, considering the fact that she came all there way here to take part in the mission this time and seize the leader of the terrorist organization personally.

“Okay. I’ll have Charles take command while I go in with you.” No matter what, he would be too worried to allow her in alone.

“That’s fine, too.”

Charles knew that Tristan was letting him take the lead this time because the man wanted to give him the opportunity to practice. By then, he had already worn his earphones. No sooner had he gone over than he was greeted by the sight of Sophie attaching two pistols to her waistband.

Then, she snagged a submachine gun. Seeing that, he was inexorably stunned.

While he had always known that she was a remarkable woman, he had never witnessed it in person. At her bearing then, he suddenly pitied the terrorists on the opposing side.

“You’re planning to get in on the action, Sophie?”

“Yeah. That was why I boarded a flight that took more than ten hours, okay?” I’m going to nab the leader of the terrorist organization personally.

“Be careful, then.” No matter what, the other party is a renowned terrorist organization. It’d be bad if she were injured for real.

“I will. Don’t worry, and give orders boldly. We’ll follow your lead later.”

“Really?” The mere thought of ordering Tristan around later thrilled Charles. This is the first time I’ve got such an opportunity!

If you find any errors ( broken links, non-standard content, etc.. ), Please let us know < report chapter > so we can fix it as soon as possible.

Read Novel Anything For Her Chapter 840

Anything For Her Chapter 840-“Yes, we’ll follow your lead,” Tristan asserted.

It was Charles’ first time leading a mission, so they would naturally obey his orders.

“Okay!”

He had always charged ahead, and though this was his first time taking command, his capabilities were there for all to see.

It was just that Tristan’s and Sean’s capabilities were far too strong, leading to him lacking such an opportunity.

Meanwhile, Tristan and Sophie walked toward the terrorist organization’s headquarters together. At that moment, helicopters were already hovering above the building and had dropped two to three thermal weapons.

The leader of the terrorist organization was native to Fandar, a dark-skinned man standing at one point nine eight meters. He had a deep scar on his face that spanned his entire countenance.

The men he sent out were currently being punished for having failed to capture the two Chanaeans as ordered.

To him, the best punishment was a shot in the head.

He killed several of his subordinates in one go and was planning to go and meet Sophie personally when his headquarters was blown up.

“It’s bad, Boss! Someone is sneaking an attack on us!”

“What? Who is so audacious to come and provoke me?” The man instantly shot to his feet, emanating murder. Needless to say, he was no ordinary person since he managed to establish his own kingdom in that place.

Snagging his weapon, he stalked out to confront the enemy at once.

As Tristan and Sophie bulldozed into the building, their firepower was intense. Wherever they went, the members of the terrorist organization were thoroughly trounced.

Both of them had black wireless earphones in their ears, and Charles’ voice drifted out of the devices from time to time.

“There’s an ambush a hundred meters ahead. As for the person you’re both looking for, he’s five hundred meters away at the front!”

Charles already had someone hack into the terrorist organization’s internal network. Consequently, the situation at their headquarters was wholly in the palm of his hands right then.

“Roger.”

Sophie’s performance throughout the mission astounded Bertram. But on second thought, he found that it made much sense.

She’s the only woman who’s worthy of a man like Mr. Tristan. Her marksmanship is entirely on par with his.

However, Tristan was slightly chagrined at the look in the man’s eyes, for he detested other men paying too much attention to his woman.

“Stay here for some time after the matter here has been resolved, Bertram! You seem to like this place quite a bit.”

Hearing that, Bertram was downright stumped.

When did I ever say that I liked this place? I don’t like it here at all, okay?

“Mr. Tristan, I…”

I don’t have any designs on Ms. Tanner! I merely admire a girl like her greatly!

Alas, Tristan walked away nonchalantly.

“Ms. Tanner, I…”

Sophie did not bother about him either but continued forging ahead. It was a terrorist organization feared by all, yet they were acting as though they had entered their own territory.

At the end of the day, it could only be said that their capabilities were simply too outstanding.

Left alone behind them, Bertram teetered on the verge of crying.

What exactly have I done? If I'd known, I wouldn't have gazed at Ms. Tanner with admiration in my eyes. I've realized my mistake now. I don't want to stay here and get burned by the sun to the point that I become unrecognizable! I don't have a girlfriend yet, nor am I married! How could he do this to me?

In the meantime, the leader of the terrorist organization had sent men out to ambush the intruders. Unfortunately for him, Tristan was not at all bothered by them. He worked so well with Sophie that those men had already gone to meet their maker before having the chance to make a move against them.

"It's bad, Boss! The intruders have broken in!"

Just as his words rang out, Tristan, Sophie, and Bertram reached the main hall. Tristan's men had also jumped out of the helicopters one by one and surrounded the place.

Joe gaped at the few people before him in disbelief.

"Who are the lot of you, and do you know what this place is? How dare you come here!" Having been through various trials and tribulations, he swiftly composed himself. Furthermore, he had a powerful force backing him up.

If it weren't for the person backing him up ordering him to capture the two Chanaeans, he would never do so.

Bertram was tickled pink by his words.

Why do people like him always love flaunting their low IQ? No matter the answers to those questions, we're already here, no? Does it make any difference?

"Surrender your weapon, Joe! You're already surrounded," Bertram uttered icily.

With Tristan and Sophie there, he had not contributed much during the mission this time. Such a feeling was really something else.

"Do you know who I have backing me up? Who exactly are the lot of you?" Joe demanded impatiently.

Despite seeing that his headquarters had truly been surrounded, he still could not believe it then.

“We aren’t interested in your identity. I only came here with a question for you,” Sophie drawled.

When one was unfamiliar with her, she would give off a lackadaisical vibe.

In turn, such a vibe would make the person lower his guard against her.

“What do you want to ask me? I don’t think I’ve ever seen you! In that case, we—”

“You’re truly amusing. Didn’t you send men to Anglandur to capture me? Yet, you now claim that you don’t know me. Don’t tell me you’ve been scared out of your mind?”

For a moment, Joe went silent.

“You’re the two Chanaeans?” Only then did realization dawn upon him.

“Yeah, we are. Right now, can you tell me why you want to capture us?”

“Hah! You’re offering yourself up on a silver platter!” Never had it occurred to Joe that the couple would have the guts to come over.

At that precise moment, the members of the terrorist organization who had been lying in an ambush in the main hall rushed out and surrounded Tristan and the others.

“Since you dared come here, don’t dream about leaving today.” He expended a lot of effort in building his base, yet they had completely destroyed it that day. Thus, he was determined to have them pay the price.

Sophie swept a gaze over the twenty-odd fighters who had charged out from the shadows.

“Why, is this your last trump card?” Does he think that he can keep us here with just twenty over men?

“Are you underestimating them? They’re all men who’d been with me for more than ten years, and countless top fighters in the world had died at their hands.”

Does she really think that my terrorist organization is easy prey?

“Oh, I see!”

From the looks of it, he isn’t going to cooperate until he has been taught a lesson!

“Finish them off!” Joe barked at the twenty-odd guards under his command, the final ace up his sleeve.

As soon as his words rang out, a murderous gleam glinted in Tristan’s eyes. They want to die, huh? Fine, I’ll grant them their wish!

Putting their backs together, Tristan and the others promptly launched a fierce battle.

If you find any errors ( broken links, non-standard content, etc.. ), Please let us know < report chapter > so we can fix it as soon as possible.