

Apocalypse 1381

Chapter 1381: Extra limbs

The giant ape became hot-tempered. It didn't move, but its eyes became red, and its breathing intensified.

The leading old man told everyone to back down.

Los Alamos was prepared, and they looked at the other side.

Guancheng Chun's lab was busy.

But different from this side, what they did made everyone stunned.

They were doing a surgery.

Guancheng Chun and his subordinates pulled the mutated ape out of the cage and knocked it out. Then, using a sharp blade, he sliced two holes in the ape's shoulder.

Blood spurted from the holes.

This made everyone nervous.

What was he doing? The other side was strengthening the ape, but did you just give it two slashes? But they thought back to Guancheng Chun's reputation and looked forward to seeing what he could do.

No one was sitting anymore; they were all standing up. They stood around, curious to see what this famous lab would do.

After making two cuts, the subordinate scattered some unknown powder. People from Thousand Beast Villa confirmed that the powder was the first stake they used for this competition.

After the powder entered the wound, a few seconds passed, and the ape woke up. It felt pain and wanted to scratch the wound. But before its claws touched it, its body froze and cried in pain.

It knelt on the ground and continued to scream. It raised its head, and its veins popped out and would jump occasionally which looked frightening.

Its black body reacted as if in flames. Red spots appeared within its body, and one could clearly see them through the skin.

After which, an unbelievable thing occurred.

Things started to grow from the two wounds...

The people here were all elites, and they had good vision abilities. They could see something stretching from the wounds—they were white bones!

Even if everyone was used to killing in the apocalypse, they felt their goosebumps stand when they saw it.

Along with the bones were some flesh. There were dense threads, a mix of red and purple, which made things look gory and weird.

Many people hadn't thought much about Guancheng Chun's lab previously. But now, they wouldn't underestimate him anymore. Just this alone meant that people had to respect him.

The bones and flesh grew quickly and formed a limb the size of an arm. The flesh wrapped the bone, and a brand new arm appeared. The difference was that they had no skin, and the blood vessels and flesh were exposed, which made it look vicious and terrifying.

"I am ready, too."

The mutated ape calmed and looked lost as it tried to control its new arm. Everyone was silent so his reply could spread into everyone's ears.

The Thousand Beast Villa member monitoring both sides asked Li Daqian for instructions. Seeing the boss nod, he told both sides to bring their experimental body to the center.

Even if the two labs modified the lifeforms, they couldn't threaten the people present. So they didn't need their own arena. Both sides just watched from the side, and they were even very close by.

The two mutated apes were sent to the center. A manager from Thousand Beast Villa walked to the side and, using a certain method, he slapped both of them with his shining palms. They became very irritable and stared at each other. Moments later, they charged toward each other.

The Los Alamos black ape was the first to attack. The giant fist punched toward the other ape, and it didn't look cumbersome or slow at all.

This time, it was very powerful and the sound of wind breaking caused evolved around to open their eyes wide.

This aura was not something a level four lifeform could have.

That seemed to be the effect of the potion.

Facing that fist, the mutated ape with new arms was stunned. That fist hit its head, and its giant body flew, falling to the ground. Many cracks appeared on its skin, and it bled.

Few expected this outcome. It ended just like that? Everyone could see that the body of the four-armed ape was weak, and this often meant defeat.

The ape from the Los Alamos lab ran forwards, and its legs left a rumbling sound on the ground. It jumped and raised the toughest part of its elbow. A 20-centimeter bone spike popped out, and it was landing toward the chest of the other black ape.

Haiz!

Few wanted to continue looking. The other ape couldn't dodge, so the battle was going to end.

As expected, the Los Alamos ape smashed into the other. The bone spike pierced deep into the body, and blood spurted.

David watched and had a look of glee on his face. Although the powder didn't reach its intended effect, winning a round and getting a recipe was delightful.

Li Daqian, Deacon Water and the other evolved were shocked. They might not be friends, but Guancheng Chun represented the country. Him losing meant that it was a slap to the face of the country.

"Seems like the first round has ended." Mr Wen said with a regretful tone. On the other side, Li Daqian wanted to announce the outcome.

But the experts were very sharp. Before they said anything, they looked toward the center. The ape that had won fell to the ground and was silent.

The Thousand Beast villa member in charge was shocked, "It is dead!"

As he spoke, the ape's body fell to the side. Only then did the others see the two new arms of Guancheng Chun's ape had pierced into the body of the other ape. They were squirming rhythmically as if they were absorbing something. Each time, they would cause the other ape to grow slightly smaller. In a while, the other ape was just skin and bones.

Chapter 1382: Morning Dew

The ending was surprising.

David hoped that even if his mutated ape died, his opponent would also die. After all, the chest wound was fatal. In the end, if both sides died, it would be a tie.

When the black ape with two more arms stood up, the wound in its chest was healing quickly and disappeared in a short while. That weakness also disappeared, and it became a perfectly fine monster.

The outcome was obvious.

After announcing that Guancheng Chun Lab had won the first match, the two judges announced the potions each side had used.

Los Alamos lab used the potion-- Agitation.

This potion's function was to greatly increase a level four lifeform's strength and maintain it at the increased level. If level one and two mutated lifeforms used it, they could upgrade. Although the increase in levels three and four wasn't as much, if they were talented, their skills would increase by a large amount.

The side effects would be a shortening of lifespan and heart problems. They would often die when they got emotional.

But to humans, these weren't problems they had to consider, so these potions were still decent and had some use. Especially to factions like Thousand Beast Villa, who could control many mutated lifeforms, this potion was much more valuable. If they used it well, it would help their strategy.

After introducing Los Alamos's Agitation, the other side introduced the powder.

This thing was called Regeneration Powder. It had two functions. Everyone saw the first, which was to grow similar parts on one's shoulder. The new limb was very weak and it wasn't as functional as the original limb. But its tips were very sharp, and if there was a chance, they could stab into other lifeforms, absorbing their energy.

The second ability was to regrow broken limbs!

As the name suggests, they could use the powder if the mutated lifeform or evolved lost body parts.

As for side effects, if it were used on the first scenario, this new body part would permanently remain on your body and turn you into a monster. Moreover, as the parts were very soft, if people attacked, they would deal damage easily. The pain they caused would be the same as your original limbs.

If you used the second function, there were side effects. But one didn't know how well the new limbs would grow. You wouldn't know if they were exactly the same or if there would be claws.

In terms of value, the Regeneration Powder was much higher as it didn't have level restrictions and it gave evolved who had lost limbs some hope.

Gambling some luck, and you won't be handicapped anymore. Everyone knew what choice they would make.

Seemed like it made sense that the Regeneration Powder won.

“Hand over the recipe for Agitation.”

Someone from the country shouted, and everyone supported. Many people started to chant, which put those from the Los Alamos lab in a bad state.

David said a few words to the person in charge, and that person took a pen to jot it down. In a short while, a recipe was written.

The Thousand Beast Villa person took a look, and he was furious. He noticed that the recipe was written in English, so he questioned him and asked him to rewrite it. The reply was that they didn't know how to write Chinese...

“No need, we understand.”

Guancheng Chun asked for the recipe and the sample. He took one look and sent it for his subordinate to verify. They were educated medical practitioners and often read foreign books, so English was easy for them.

The atmosphere was fantastic after the first victory. After all, most people here were from the country.

“Time for the second round!”

David was unhappy and called for the second battle.

The Chinese were pumped up and weren't afraid. Guancheng Chun and the others were the same. They won, which gave them a lot of confidence. They felt that they could win all three battles.

“Wait!”

Someone from Thousand Beast Villa wanted to pull the cage with the mutated ape, but David stopped him.

“I have a suggestion.”

David knew his words would annoy people, so he immediately took a crystal ball out.

“There is Morning Dew inside. It is an equipment cleanser that can take the defensive stats of a set equipment. You can drink it, and your skin will have the defensive ability of that set!”

This?

People in the country weren't fools. The moment they saw the crystal ball, they were tempted.

Right, you needed a full set to use this Morning Dew. You also had to sacrifice the set. Everyone knew how valuable a set was. The better sets would be more expensive, but their defense stats would be stronger. If you used Morning Dew to shift them to your skin, you would have one more layer of armor that would increase your protection. It was the same as having another life.

No matter who it was, this thing was a precious treasure!

Be it Li Daqian, Deacon Water, or the other experts, they desired the crystal in David's hands.

He felt the reaction was not big enough, so he opened his palm, and the Morning Dew gave off a golden glow.

It was a gold-grade wheel equipment.

Even the rich Ye Zhongming didn't have many golden equipment.

"For the second round, I add another stake. I will use this Morning Dew!"

David paused. As expected, the Chinese didn't oppose. Even Guancheng Chun was interested in the thing in his hands.

Of all the experts in the country, Guancheng Chun had the biggest hope to get the Morning Dew. He just had to win...

"But your side has to take something of the same value as this gold equipment..."

This time, the Chinese were the ones that were silent. A piece of equipment on that level would be gold. Even if they had, you would lose the equipment if you gambled it and lost. Who would it be on if you took it out for Guancheng Chun and lost? Him or yourself?

Guancheng Chun's expression turned black. He didn't have any gold equipment.

"If I lose, I will use a recipe no less valuable than this gold equipment..."

“No, I only want gold equipment.”

David interrupted Guancheng Chun. This made it hard for others to step up for Guancheng Chun.

When this four-legged dark lab boss didn't know what to do, a giant bear dashed and arrived.

Chapter 1383: Los Alamos lie

Everyone was familiar with the mutated bears with saddles. They had sat on these fellows. They were more interested in who it was.

They had some answers, and when he got close, everyone saw that it was Cloud Peak and Ye Zhongming.

However, few looked at Ye Zhongming as the battle squad behind him attracted more attention.

The leader was Xia Bai, who wore black clothing but gave off a very depressing and dark aura. Behind were hundreds of female evolved with equipment of the same level.

Even people who didn't recognise Ye Zhongming would recognise this female squad. They were too famous.

To date, no one had such a battle squad.

So envious.

Many people had such thoughts.

Li Daqian was the host, so he stood up to welcome. Although he hadn't met Ye Zhongming before, his son would only personally accompany the Cloud Peak king.

Of the battle squads invited, Cloud Peak was definitely the top three most important.

They greeted each other, and some people familiar with Ye Zhongming also talked to him, such as people like Deacon Water, Ruan Xiao, etc. Li Daqian also got his son to bring the female guards to rest. He invited Ye Zhongming, Xia Bai, and six guards to sit.

Ye Zhongming was late, so many people would think that this person wanted to act cool. But no one said it in person and behaved very passionately instead. Some who met for the first time, like Mr Wen, Recreating Hua Mountain's Qin Ru, Apocalypse Loner's Nine Dragon, Mining City Defence Squad's Che Dongzhi, etc, welcomed Ye Zhongming.

Those sitting on the right who were more thick-skinned and those who had some relations with Cloud Peak went to greet them. Ye Zhongming didn't behave rudely and spoke to everyone.

Instantly, he became the focus of attention instead of the proud David.

This annoyed the foreigner.

“You Chinese didn’t know manners previously. Be it airports or tourist attractions, all of you behave badly. You are still the same now. A person who is late isn’t scolded but is so warmly welcomed. Sorry, I don’t understand what you think. I am shocked and disappointed by your manners.”

David’s accusations confused the Chinese. Some people started to diss him, and things became chaotic.

Li Daqian was furious but he couldn’t mess his own even. He suppressed everyone’s rage and told them to return to their seats.

Ye Zhongming sat on the seat prepared for him. Xiao Min suddenly said, “Where is that idiot from?”

She pointed at David.

Ye Zhongming was the boss. With his status, he couldn’t argue with the few foreigners as he was more powerful than them. Xia Bai was more willing to slice this fellow’s head off than argue.

But someone had to say something. If not, people might think Cloud Peak allowed others to bully them.

Due to the country’s development, apart from economy and culture affecting the world, some curse words also spread worldwide.

Coincidentally, David knew what that phrase meant.

“Bitch!” Xiao Min raised the international sign. David didn’t hold back and replied.

“This person represents Los Alamos lab. They were competing with Guancheng Chun, and the stake is... His golden equipment Morning Dew and each other’s recipe.”

Pin Palace’s Mr. Wen explained quickly. Xiao Min and the five female warriors who had stepped forward stopped and looked at Ye Zhongming.

Ye Zhongming waved and recalled them.

He didn’t have the mood to argue with David.

Ye Zhongming had heard of the faction and the equipment in the last life.

Li Daqian told Ye Zhongming about the situation, which made him more sure that these were what he had heard of in his last life.

Los Alamos lab didn’t belong to Europe but America. They were very famous in the last life, and their headquarters were in Los Alamos.

As only the Bering Straits separated them from Asia, you could ride flying lifeforms to get over. He even heard that only a portion of the bridge broke, so stronger evolved could rely on simple tools to jump over.

As for the specifics, Ye Zhongming hadn't been there before, so he wasn't sure.

Los Alamos lab was very famous in his last life because of two things. One was the potion- Contention.

That was a potion that could increase the evolved's skills for a certain period of time. There weren't any side effects, and the increase would depend on the level of Contention. There were two types: the weaker one could increase by 20%, and the better one was around 30%.

The benefits didn't need to be said. In the last life, high level evolved had to have this.

Apart from Contention, there was another cream called Kai Skin. You could apply it on the body of an evolved to increase the skin's defense and regeneration ability.

Two potions were very famous in the country then. Ye Zhongming even used Kai Skin before. But both Contention and Kai Skin were expensive. They weren't things that Ye Zhongming, who was an ordinary evolved, could afford.

Also, Ye Zhongming knew of Morning Dew. The difference from what the Los Alamos person David said was that the equipment was gold, but its real name was Micro World Ball. The liquid it produced was called Morning Dew!

Morning Dew was not restricted to just these in the ball and could regenerate; just that it would take a long time.

Others didn't know, but Ye Zhongming did. The situation was obvious. David and Los Alamos were lying.

They weren't from Europe, so why did they say they were a European organisation that came from middle Asia? Why did they hide their background? If Morning Dew wasn't the name of the equipment but a consumption item, why did they say it was a gold piece of equipment.

More importantly, Ye Zhongming was curious when he saw people of various skin colors.

What were these foreigners doing here?

Chapter 1384: Mechanical Bug and Lifelike Arm

The second round was about to begin, and Ye Zhongming could only place his questions down.

He did expect others to think of the same questions. After all, be it Los Alamos or the other foreign factions, they were very far from the country. Thousand Beast Villa wasn't at the border either, so how did they rush over in time? This was only possible if someone told them in advance, which was why they were able to get over.

If you just said that they were here to look at the corpse of the level nine lifeform and they had no goal, Ye Zhongming didn't believe that.

This competition proceeded the same as the first round. Los Alamos knocked out their ape and then described to the person monitoring them from Thousand Beast Villa the item they were using. They then placed some bugs onto the body of the black ape.

Those with good vision could see that the bugs were mechanical. A few dozen bugs entered from parts of the ape's body, and no one knew what they were doing inside. But they looked at the spots going up and down in its body and saw they were moving about. After a minute, they disappeared. The black ape woke up and stood there like a puppet.

On the other side, Guancheng Chun's lab was doing their own modification.

Ye Zhongming heard of this lab in his last life and had even met Guancheng Chun before. However, what he saw was the corpse.

When it was close to the time he died, a strong faction hired their battle squad to clear the outer regions of an area. After half a month, they arrived near a city. No one cared what this city was called during peacetime. They only knew that there were many weird zombies in the city.

The heads of the zombies had an extra ball of meat that looked like disgusting tumors. The people who hired Ye Zhongming's battle squad called them tumor zombies.

Their abilities were weaker than other zombies of the same level and were much slower. But they had a unique point. They were able to release poison. Their liquid, flesh, and even scent had poison. If evolved touched any of them, it would be a big problem.

Ye Zhongming found out that humans modified these tumour zombies. The organisation that did it was Guancheng Chun's dark lab.

They modified all the zombies in an entire city. Be it then or now, Ye Zhongming was impressed by their determination.

You had to modify these zombies individually, not in a large factory line.

This meant that their lab had to capture the zombies one by one and perform surgery on them. Even if the tumor zombies would listen to their orders and turn the entire city into their protective umbrella, the entire process was not something ordinary people could do.

How long did it take for them to complete this?

The poison was very strong. Ranged users like Ye Zhongming were very comfortable as they were far away. That super faction even provided him with many bullets.

This siege lasted for a week and ended with that super faction winning. When that faction brought some corpses and prisoners out, Ye Zhongming saw the dead Guancheng Chun. Then, he found out that the guy with eight legs and eight arms was the lab's boss.

They said that he was an eight-star evolved and was one step to nine-stars.

Ye Zhongming didn't know what that super faction got from the dark lab, but it was definitely huge.

In this life, Ye Zhongming was in awe when he looked at Guancheng Chun, who only had four legs and two arms.

His lab and he definitely had something that people eyed; if not, they wouldn't have wiped an entire city full of zombies to attack them.

Guancheng Chun didn't do what he did before. He didn't knock the ape out and just sliced its limbs off.

The monster's cries and the blood caused everyone's expression to change. The gore didn't fit well with the occasion today.

But what they did next was something David and Los Alamos opposed.

What Guancheng Chun's lab was going to do was transplant.

Their reason was obvious. Guancheng Chun and his subordinate had broken the rules. Not only were they using some techniques on the ape, but they were also using the help of other things.

But Guancheng Chun had a good reason. He was showing off the transplant technique and was using the black ape as the main body, which was allowed by the rules.

Such a competition that happened out of nowhere wouldn't have 100% tight rules. Li Daqian found it tough, and after asking for everyone's opinion, he decided that Guancheng Chun's lab didn't break the rules.

There were a few foreign factions, but most of them were still Chinese. He also didn't have any good feelings towards these foreigners.

After receiving permission, Guancheng Chun and the others continued. They took out four mechanical arms from their space.

Everyone smiled. These two labs were natural enemies? One took out mechanical bugs, and the other took mechanical arms.

But everyone quickly noticed that Guancheng Chun not only took out mechanical arms but lifelike arms. They were made of blood and flesh. They operated on the spot and sewed the lifelike arms onto the black ape.

Their familiarity showed that this wasn't the first time.

They scattered some healing powder on the wound and fed it some healing potions from the wheel. Their subordinate also used an unknown darkness skill.

These were to heal the mutated ape and not to increase its strength, so they were allowed.

Both sides were ready and moved their products to the center. Los Alamos' David personally walked down. He held a helmet and said that he was going to control it personally.

Guancheng Chun was unhappy and was worried the opponent would play some tricks.

David explained and even told Thousand Beast Villa to test. After confirming that he couldn't affect the ape's strength, everyone agreed.

Both sides used extremely good things for the second battle, and neither could afford to lose. So both sides were very careful.

The atmosphere became very tense.

Chapter 1385: Destined outcome

Everyone understood Los Alamo's technique. They used a certain ability of the mechanical bugs to control the mutated ape. Their abilities were definitely above level four or could activate some of the black ape's abilities.

As for David's control, everyone understood, and there was no need to say much about it.

What level was David? He looked like seven stars. If such a person controlled the black ape, even if he couldn't increase the ape's strength, his battle experience was above the ape. That would mean this level-four ape would have a level-seven brain. Its skills wouldn't increase by much, but its actual fighting level would rise.

But such a thing couldn't be quantified.

As for Guancheng Chun's mutated ape, everyone had their own judgment. Without a doubt, those four limbs would be stronger than before and might even have other abilities.

The only worry was that the ape would have to adapt to the four limbs.

The current situation was like that. They had to see if Los Alamos's mechanical skills were better or if the lifelike arms were more overbearing.

The battle began quickly. David's ape was still the first to attack.

The monster walked slowly forward. It wasn't as excited and irritated as the previous ape and even stumbled when it walked.

But when it got close to the other ape, still adapting to its limbs, it sped up and was quick as lightning.

The ape was huge and was known for its strength. Speed wasn't what it was good at. But this ape was so quick that even Ye Zhongming, Deacon Water, and Li Daqian were surprised. It had exceeded its level and even species restrictions.

It then punched and was about to hit the face of the other ape.

There was a thud. The Guancheng Chun lab's ape raised its arm to block.

Everyone saw that the fist of the ape David controlled was covered in a layer of metal!

No wonder there would be a metallic clang when both sides clashed.

Was it the mechanical bugs? Many people felt they underestimated the bugs. They thought they were just being used as a controller. They would be able to make the ape stronger but now, it seemed like they had other effects.

Guancheng Chun lab's ape screeched at the other ape and showed its sharp teeth. It waved another arm towards the opponent's ribs. David controlled his ape to retreat. When the lifelike arm missed, he moved forward and body knocked into the opponent.

Both apes battled in the center of the arena. David's ape was covered in metal as the battle continued, giving it an advantage. Although Guancheng Chun's ape adapted to its limbs, its combat strength wasn't enough to break through the metal layer.

"The situation isn't good." Li Daqian said. One could see that he hoped for Guancheng Chun's lab to win.

"The lifelike arms should have other abilities." Deacon Water tapped the table softly. Ripples spread in all directions and disappeared after they got out of her range. Many people were dazzled by her ability.

Deacon Water was very mysterious as she hadn't fought in public, but everyone knew she was very strong.

"Zhongming, what do you think?"

Deacon Water saw that Ye Zhongming was very focused, so she asked him.

Ye Zhongming didn't shift his eyes and just said slowly, "It depends on whether the ability can have a decisive effect. If not, this battle is not good, as what Villa Head Zhang has said."

Everyone around nodded.

The lifelike limbs were decent. Despite the giant strength of apes and fists wrapped in metal, the limbs didn't change. At most, some areas caved slightly, showing the material's toughness.

The limbs gave the black ape better defense and more strength, but against an opponent who was on drugs, there was nothing it could do.

Moments later, after the Guancheng Chun lab's ape had a part of its face sunk in from a punch, it finally fought back.

White gas spurting from the limbs, and the arms and legs became slightly thicker.

Ye Zhongming sighed.

Although he wasn't a mechanic, he had intelligent people like Le Dayuan beside him. With their influence, Ye Zhongming could not research and create some mechanical items, but he could still judge the abilities and functions of things.

He looked at the changes and knew the ability the four limbs added was to increase strength and also agility.

There might be other effects but they basically helped to increase the body stats.

If that was the case, there was no point in watching as this battle was lost.

As expected, although the black ape turned things around slightly and was fighting well with the opponent, as the white gas reduced, its attacks weakened.

The energy source of the four limbs was that white gas and they couldn't last for too long.

In the end, David controlled the black ape's hands to break through the lifelike limbs and grab the throat of the other ape. No matter how it struggled, this battle ended in just a few seconds.

The thick neck was crushed. Even if the lifelike limbs could fight, the black ape had to control them. The main body was dead, so the limbs lost their function.

Even if he wasn't willing, Li Daqian announced that Los Alamos lab won the second battle.

David smiled when he took off the helmet.

This represented that his lab would obtain the lifelike arm technique, and he believed they could make it famous.

But as he removed the helmet, the black ape he controlled stopped moving. When Thousand Beast Villa wanted to chase the apes out of the battlefield, they noticed it was dead!
