

Apocalypse 239

Chapter 239 Kisha's Level Up

Despite reaching the multiplier she aimed for, Kisha continued consuming Scarlet Honey without setting any time intervals, though she felt a bit nervous about potential over-stimulation and overdose. Aware of the risks, she also recognized the tremendous benefits and understood that others would likely attempt it as well.

Given her greater mental capacity, she reasoned that it might be why she had achieved such remarkable results.

After taking a deep breath, Kisha consumed another spoonful of honey and continued her process. Eventually, she seemed to have reached the limit of her stats; no matter how many Scarlet Honey spoonfuls she took, the increases plateaued. Surprisingly, she found she no longer needed time intervals between doses because her energy core no longer overheated.

She had established a pathway for the energy flow to her core, and she even felt it had grown stronger, able to store more energy than before.

Once she confirmed that her stats had plateaued and her experience multiplier had reached its limit, she glanced at her status window again, savoring the sight before her imminent level-up. This was the perfect opportunity for her to ascend to the next level, confident that she would achieve even greater results and gain formidable strength.

She was certain she could surpass Duke now, and the mere thought brought a delighted sparkle to her eyes, forming crescents of anticipation.

[Kisha Aldens]

Level 0 (Exp: 0/100 X 10.0)

Strength: 60 (+ 10)(+30)

Stamina: 60 (+ 10)(+29)

Defense: 60 (+ 10)(+33)

Agility: 60 (+ 10)(+28)

Mental Capacity: 100 (+ 52)

Charm: 60 (+ 10)(+34)

Leadership: 100 (+ 20)(+54)

Kisha couldn't help but giggle with delight as she looked at her impressively high stats for a level 0. She had never attained such remarkable stats at such a low level before, it would only be possible in her higher-level stages. Now, she felt an incredible surge of power, as if energy was flowing freely through her body and vitality was emanating from every pore.

After admiring her stats, Kisha took a deep breath and retrieved a crystal core from her inventory. She consumed it, feeling the familiar warm, sweet sensation as it traveled from her mouth down her throat, spreading throughout her body. She felt as if she were floating, overwhelmed by the sensation, as a golden light radiated from her, bright enough to seem like the sun had descended upon her.

The brilliant light caught everyone's attention, interrupting their tasks. The glow even reached the other end of the island, where Duke, his father, and his grandfather were fishing by the lakeside. They noticed the sun-like, glittering golden light emanating from behind the mountain. Concerned, Duke immediately left his father and grandfather to investigate the source of the light.

He sprinted through the mountain nonstop, as fast as he could, arriving just in time to see the last bit of light fade from Kisha's body. Instantly, he knew she had leveled up and could sense that she was much, much stronger than when they had parted earlier. He couldn't help but wonder what had transpired in his absence to bring about such a tremendous change.

Kisha was too excited to notice Duke standing at the foot of the mountain, a little farther from her. She glanced around and spotted a rock the size of her fist. Without hesitation, she picked it up. At that moment, others from the ranch and coop came out to sneak a peek at the commotion. They all watched in awe as Kisha effortlessly crushed the rock into dust with her bare hand.

They all realized she had leveled up, though none of them, not even Sparrow and Vulture, who were the first to level up, knew if they could crush a rock with their bare hands. After leveling up, Kisha immediately checked her status window to see how many stat points she had gained. Usually, it would only be three points, but she was surprised to see an even greater increase than expected.

[Kisha Aldens]

Level 1 (Exp: 0/300 X 0.0)

Strength: 70 (+ 10)(+30)

Stamina: 70 (+ 10)(+29)

Defense: 70 (+ 10)(+33)

Agility: 70 (+ 10)(+28)

Mental Capacity: 110 (+ 52)

Charm: 70 (+ 10)(+34)

Leadership: 110 (+ 20)(+54)

She was surprised to see a 10-point increase across all her stats. Kisha knew she was now the strongest awakened being alive and could face an evolved zombie of the same level head-on without needing anyone's help. Her happiness was cut short when she sensed Duke's presence behind her, startling her.

He had managed to get close without her realizing it, just like he did at the mini hospital in the base in City A when she first got Bell.

'This man really wants to give me a heart attack,' she silently complained.

"You just leveled up?!" Duke exclaimed, scanning Kisha from head to toe. He could sense something different about her but couldn't pinpoint what it was. She seemed more beautiful and charming than when he had left earlier, though he attributed that feeling to missing her after spending time with a bunch of old coots.

"Ahuh!" Kisha beamed with excitement. "I even discovered a more efficient and effective way to maximize our stat limits before leveling up, making us stronger than others at the same level." She spoke with a hint of mystery, hoping to pique Duke's anticipation and excitement. In reality, she was bursting with eagerness to share her discovery, but she wanted to see Duke's reaction first.

Before Duke could respond, the others who had been approaching heard Kisha's words. Excitedly, they ran toward her, forgetting they still had blood and other stains on their hands and bodies. They all reached out, eager to touch Kisha and ask her what she meant.

However, Duke moved faster, pulling Kisha into his embrace and staring daggers at them, warding them off with a protective glare at their dirty hands.

When his subordinates stepped back and stood at attention, he softened his gaze and turned his affectionate attention to Kisha. "I knew there was nothing you couldn't achieve. Congratulations!" He gently rubbed the top of her head with a proud smile.

"You're no fun!" Kisha pouted briefly but soon shrugged it off.

She first sent everyone back to finish up with their task so she could share what she has experienced and the technique she has just successfully created so once they took the Scarlet Honey, they could utilize the technique she created, especially for Sparrow and Vulture. And this would serve as a preparation to those who haven't awakened.