

ARCEUS' PIRATE JOURNEY

Chapter 13: Kaido's phone

Chapter 13 Kaido's Call

"Why! It's obviously the boat I prepared, why do you want me to scout the situation! You can fly faster than me." Above the sea, Quinn, who was transformed into a tropical dragon, flew beside the boat, and he was sent out. Scouting the situation in the nearby waters, he was quite complaining about it.

"Mr. Kaido is the captain, Lord Holy Beast can't fly yet, I want to take care of Lord Holy Beast, who will you go if you don't?"

"Isn't this guy Jhin?"

"How much space does he occupy, how much space do you occupy, and besides, Jhin still has to steer, and don't you think the whole ship will become more spacious after flying? If you prepare a bigger ship, you won't have such a thing. Yet!"

Quinn did not leave at the side of the boat, while Shaina was standing by and fighting Quinn.

"And didn't you say you wanted to try new abilities just now? What a great opportunity, let's go."

Kaido had no intention of interfering in the dispute between Shaina and Quinn. In his opinion, this kind of thing was normal, and he also had to admit one thing. All the people present were Quinn with the largest area. After he took off, the ship not only became much more spacious, but even the speed increased.

Quinn also fluttered the leaf-like wings behind him and flew high into the sky. He wanted to master the situation of his new body as soon as possible, so from the boat below, he could see some attacks falling from the sky from time to time.

"Speaking of which. Where is this place?"

Looking at the endless sea, Arceus wanted to know which sea area, the four seas or the great route, and the first half or the second half of the great route.

At this time, Roger has not yet become the pirate king, but there are still many strong men in the sea, and the enemies encountered in different sea areas are different, so it is still necessary to pay attention.

With the strength of their small boat, as long as they are not in the new world, they can basically walk sideways.

"Sorry, Lord Holy Beast, we don't know where this is either. Before we were arrested, we were near the Chambord Islands, but we don't know the location of that laboratory."

"The research institute is on the red soil continent. We came directly from the red soil continent. This is the South China Sea. The direction we are heading now is the windless belt."

Quinn flew around and fell back, giving Arceus the result of what he wanted to know.

The Great Waterway and the Red Continent divide the world into four parts like the latitude and longitude. There are broad windless belts on both sides of the Great Waterway, and below is the lair of the giant beast, the sea kings. For ships, they are big. The greatest threat at sea.

There is only one way for ordinary pirates to enter the great route, and that is to rush up from the unreasonable currents of Upside Down Mountain.

For a group like them that can fly, the upside-down mountain is no longer a must-have option, and it is much more convenient for them to cross the windless belt.

This is also one of the ways to leave the Great Waterway. The Upside Down Mountain is a one-way line, and there are no underwater caves like Fishman Island below. It is not easy to enter the Great Waterway, and it is equally difficult to leave the Great Waterway.

If ordinary people have money, they can go to any place in the four seas by land through Mary Joa, but this requires changing ships, and pirates do not have this qualification.

For the pirates who want to leave the great route and return to the four seas, they can either abandon the ship, climb up from Upside Down Mountain, avoid the eyes and ears of the world government and take the opportunity to return to the four seas, or cross the windless belt.

The windless zone is not inevitable, as long as the boat has other power and luck can avoid the area where the sea kings gather, it is still possible to return safely.

The world government and the navy allow those troublesome pirates to enter the great route, and they do not set up fortresses to block the Upside Down Mountain and the Chambord Islands. I am afraid it also has this meaning.

Compared with the vast Four Seas, the area of the Great Route is much smaller. Although there are more powerful people, the cornerstone of the world government and the providers of many taxes are the commoners. The common people of the Four Seas far exceed the number of Great Routes.

It would be a good thing for those rioters to leave, and it would be better to concentrate on them.

This may be one of the reasons, in the final analysis it is a matter of the world government to make such a choice.

But what the world government is going to do has nothing to do with Arceus, he can see another thing now, it is Quinn who is guiding the way, not Kaido.

"Kaido, what's going on? Don't tell me Quinn knows where John is."

Ever since Kaido said that he had seen the slate in the Rox Pirates' treasury, he just wanted to find John quickly.

Even if Kaido can't beat John, it doesn't matter, as long as he reaches a certain range of the slate, he can make the slate return by itself.

The lack of strength makes him very inconvenient now, and he can't even scratch his back.

And the special ring on his waist is called the "Thousand Universe Arm", which is also a part of his power. After all, in the legend, Arceus is also a creature with a thousand hands.

The good news is that the Qianzhou wrist will not affect his actions now. Although the thing looks extremely strong, it is actually controllable. For example, when he wants to lie down, the Qianzhou wrist will soften instead of being stiff. He's stuck there.

It takes about four slates to activate the power of Qian Zhou's wrist. This number will almost allow him to master the power of change and flight. Of course, it would be better if he directly found the super-power slate.

There is a one-sixteenth possibility that the slate in Captain John's treasure is the magical slate of the super power system. He has already paid the "salary" for this slate in advance, but a foreign grinder can't do it.

"Of course Quinn doesn't know, I didn't say it, I don't know where he is now. We have to recruit some people first, otherwise there are too many things to do by ourselves, and don't worry, that guy's character will not stay in the world.

Because of an opportunity to "make a lot of money", those guys gathered together, I can confirm two things, that legendary treasure has not been found, that thing must be in the great channel.

That guy John is greedy for money, he won't let this go. "

Saying to prove this, Kaido said to Quinn: "Quinn, get me a phone bug."

After taking the phone bug that Quinn handed over, Kaido broadcast a number.

"Blu Bleu~ Bleu Bleu~"

After a bang, the phone bug changed its appearance, and a female voice came from it.

"Well, well~ Kaido, it's really rare that you actually called me. After so many years of no news, I thought you died in the Valley of the Gods."

"Stop joking Lingling, I won't die in that kind of place, I just have a question for you, you should know where that guy John ran to, right?"

(end of this chapter)