

Armipotent 1151

Chapter 1151: Rosalie's Path - Part 2

[Limitless]

Rank: SSS

Bonus Attribute: —

Ability: You possess infinite mana.

The world [Limitless] glowed brightly in front of her, and she could not stop grinning upon looking at the description. For an Elementalist like her, possessing unlimited mana meant she could fight continuously, for days, weeks, or even months. The limitation for Elementalist was their mana, every move and attack relied on mana, after all.

[That's the best talent the Tang Empire's people had. But there was a drawback even for such a great talent. As you can see, there were no bonus attributes for this talent. While you might bombard your enemy non-stop, it's useless if your attack is weak. Magic Power will determine how strong your spell is, after all. If your spell is too weak to hurt your enemy, having infinite mana is pointless.]

Origin tried to remind her what she might lack even with such a high-rank talent. Its concern was not unreasonable since Talent was the type of power that gave attributes the most each time one leveled up. Talent and Bloodline were the two types of powers that gave a high bonus attribute, and Limitless did not offer her a bonus attribute, meaning she would have a low attribute gain.

That meant she had to be careful with her bloodline. She could not just take any bloodline and needed to find a bloodline that gave her a high bonus attribute for her Magic Power. Just like what Origin said, having unlimited mana was useless if her attack could not hurt her enemy.

"That's another problem to solve in the future. I haven't taken my Epic, Ancient, and Myth Rank trials. I can get the bloodline and second talent from the trial...." She paused, turned around, and headed out of the room. The grin still did not leave her face.

Rosalie came out of the room, and Zowen was the first one to rush toward her.

"How is it? What do you get?"

"It must be a good talent since you can't stop grinning," The Demon Swordsman smiled. It was rare to see the Flame Empress act like this. He figured it must be because she got a great talent.

"Normally I will not tell anyone what Talent I got, but I trust you two," Rosalie told them her talent, "My talent is Limitless, and it gives me unlimited amounts of mana. It's SSS-Rank Talent."

Zowen and Zaneos were surprised to hear her talent was SSS-Rank. They realized why she was reluctant to tell her talent.

"But there is one drawback from talent. It does not give me a bonus attribute just like any other talent, and my talent can't advance to a higher rank too," Rosalie shared her issue with her talent. She wanted to consult what she should do to increase her Magic Power.

"I understand why it can be a trouble for you, but this is a superb start regardless. Classes rarely give bonus attributes, except one class that I know of," The Demon Swordsman remembered Tang Shaoyang's Slayer Class which gave a few skills but high bonus attributes.

"That's why I want to ask you...." Rosalie's words trailed off as she could not find the Lightning Magus. She wanted to ask what kind of attribute Drake Bloodline focused on. If Drake Bloodline gave a high Magic Power attribute, then she would take the Dragon Essence.

Zowen snuck into the Talent Room before she could ask her the question. Her talent might get her excited to get the talent.

"Since you haven't taken any trial, it should not be a big issue for you. From the information I gathered as TEIS Instructor, you will awaken the talent that is suitable for your class and talent in the trial. That should not be a big problem for you. Let's discuss the class you want to take, the suitable class to cover your weakness." Zaneos started to talk about the next step ahead.

"I initially want to suggest a class that will cover your weakness as an Elementalist, but we have to change that idea. We want you to have a class related to magic so you can awaken a bloodline with a high magic power in the trial."

The Demon Swordsman's current job could help the two women a lot in choosing their path. He had guided a lot of TEIS officers and had more knowledge about the trial, class, bloodline, and talent.

"Actually I have this," Rosalie took out the Dragon Essence and showed it to the Demon Swordsman, "Don't get deceived by the name. There's only a twenty percent chance to awaken the Dragon Bloodline. It's a mixed essence, and most likely I will awaken Drake Bloodline if I take that essence. Zowen has taken one, and I want to ask her whether Drake Bloodline gives her a high Magic Power but...." But the Lightning Magus lost her composure and entered the Talent Room.

Zaneos nodded, having a pensive look as he observed the Dragon Essence in his hand, "Does that mean you can have two bloodlines? Then you don't need to be worried about lacking Magic Power."

Rosalie shook her head, and smiled, "It's rare for me to know something you don't know," Then she continued, telling him what Karoen said about the bloodline, "We can only have one bloodline. However, if I happen to awaken a better bloodline in the trial. The higher rank bloodline will override my current bloodline. If I happen to awaken a lower-rank bloodline, it will evolve my current bloodline to the next level. That's why I want to know Drake Bloodline's attributes."

"However, if you have done research on bloodline awakening in the trial, then I don't really need to worry about the lack of Magic Power. I will take the gamble with this Dragon Essence. It's a blessing if I awaken Dragon Bloodline. But if I awaken the Drake Bloodline, I will choose to awaken my bloodline in my Myth Rank's trial. That will guarantee me to awaken a higher-rank bloodline than the Drake Bloodline. It's a good plan, right?"

Zaneos fell silent for a moment, processing the information and calculating the plan. After a moment, he nodded, "If that's the case, that's the best path for you."

At this moment, Zowen came out of the Talent Room. The two turned toward the door and saw the Lightning Magus' dejected expression.

"What's wrong? Did you get a bad talent?" That was the first thought that came to Rosalie's mind at the sight of her friend's dejected expression. She felt bad if her talent was bad, especially after her jackpot draw.

Zowen shook her head, "It's not that bad, but much worse if I have to compare my talent to yours. I got A-Rank Talent in my first roll, [Epic Mana Comprehension]. It gives me better control over my mana, increases my spell damage, and increases my mana regeneration.

"If you are my recruit, I will scold you for being greedy. You are part of the seven percent who awaken A-Rank Talent, and yet you are...." Zaneos was left speechless by Zowen. He really did not expect this to come from Zowen who always made rational thought during her days as a spirit. Her advice for Tang Shaoyang was valuable, always being the person who consoled Tang Shaoyang when something turned bad. The person who always reminded Tang Shaoyang to see the positive side.

"Ever since she's been resurrected, she has become more emotional. I think that's a good thing, better the unfeeling Zowen," Rosalie whispered.

Chapter 1152: Choosing Class

"Despite lacking in magic and beast, this world is quite advanced in technology," Rosalie commented, looking at the scenery outside. She was in a car, on a trip toward another Smart Base in another territory to get her class. Her status allowed her to get one of the ten unique classes. Each Smart Base had ten unique classes, and the Tang Empire had a lot of those unique classes with many territories they had captured.

She was amazed by the invention of the car, much better than her horse carriage. It was a smooth ride, less bumpy than her royal horse carriage. Her eyes locked on the building that started to get invested with plants, some ended up in ruins. This was totally different from the capital. Uninhabited and desolate, this was most of the situation outside the capital.

"I heard that they even had the flying vehicle before the Game," Zaneos responded with a smile. He agreed with Rosalie that Earth's invention was much more amazing despite the world's lacking of mana. The people created tools that could only be achieved by magic in his world.

The Demon Swordsman frowned and flicked the driver's forehead, "Keep your eyes forward, Guan!" The driver was one of his apprentices in TEIS, a direct subordinate of his, and a Vice Captain. That was why he did not hesitate to flick the driver's forehead, hard. His apprentice kept taking a look at the mirror, trying to take a glance at Rosalie secretly.

Zaneos could understand if it was one or two times, but the guy was doing it too often. He did not want to lose his apprentice this early for such a thing, "She is His Majesty's wife. You better bury your thoughts deep enough if you want to keep your head on your neck. If you flirt with her, I am going to collect your head myself."

The driver's body tensed up hearing that. It was known that the Emperor had many women. As a TEIS officer, he had seen all The Emperor's wives, and he was sure that the red-haired lady was not one of them. However, he did not doubt his Instructor's words. He kept his eyes straight on the road, and no longer dared to look at the mirror.

The trip continued with Zaneos, Zowen, and Rosalie talking about the adventure in the Dimensional Tower. Zowen told the demon how Tang Shaoyang almost fought with another God Rank, how they got the Dragon Essence and more stuff. Including the boy called Areth who Zowen had regarded as her own brother.

It was an hour trip, and despite enjoying the ride, it was too slow for them. They arrived at the smart base guarded by Tarrior.

"Can you help me guide Areth, Zaneos?" As they entered the building, Zowen made a request. Since the demon was an instructor, she wanted him to guide Areth.

The Demon Swordsman had heard the story about the boy, and how he ended up following Zowen, "Isn't it more beneficial if he follows you? You know that my duty is here, on Earth. Staying here will slow down his progress."

Zowen let out a sigh, "The issue is, that boy wants to follow Tan— His Majesty's path. I will gladly take him with me if he wants to be a magus like me. But it seems he left a deeper impression on Areth. I can't guide him if he chooses a different path than mine."

"Also, we are in a war against the Divine Church. I don't want him to get involved in the war too soon. This is still too early for him. Leaving him on Earth will be safer, and also it will benefit him even more to leave him with someone like you."

The three entered the elevator, coming down to the advancement room. It was time for them to choose the class. Zaneos had yet to give his answer to Zowen. Areth had a big goal, and that goal was to destroy a faction. He did not know if he was capable of helping the boy, so he was not going to give his answer too quickly.

Ding!

They arrived at the advancement floor, and Zaneos gave his answer, "I will think about it. I will contact you once I decide."

The Demon Swordsman then led the two ladies to the Class Room and turned to face the two, "You can enter."

Rosalie nodded and entered the Class Room. There was one unique class that Rosalie wanted from this base. It was a Gravity Controller. It was a unique class at the same level as the Spirit Contractor as it cost ten million Game Coins. Whether it was as strong as Spirit Contractor, no one knew. However, there was a reason why Rosalie wanted to take this class, providing support in a battle by controlling gravity. Her original class had enough destructive power, hence she took the support class for her second class.

Getting to the class had a simpler process, and Rosalie came out of the room in less than a minute. She just needed to choose and pay. After Rosalie got to her class, they departed to another Smart Base for Zowen's class. The class she wanted was in another Smart Base.

The trip to the next destination was two hours. Zowen's class was Sage, another unique class on the same price as the Spirit Contractor. Of course, it was under Zhang Mengyao's consent for them to take such a high-rank class. Without the Supreme General, Origin and Zaneos did not dare to suggest the class for the two. However, Zhang Mengyao agreed that the two would become a big force for the Tang Empire. That was why they were given. Aside from their relationship with Tang Shaoyang, it was because they got good talent, especially Rosalie who had the highest rank talent.

After the two girls got what they wanted, they returned to the capital. Zowen and Rosalie shared their new class with Zaneos. The Gravity Controller turned into Ruler of Gravity after adjusting to Rosalie's current rank while Sage did not change. It remained as Sage, meaning it was already the highest advancement for the class.

Rosalie got what she expected to be, the support class that could control her enemy. But it was different for Sage. It was not a combat class, but more like a researcher. There was no combat skill, but the class would help Zowen in researching magic, understanding mana, and understanding magic. It did not have an offensive skill, but Sage's passive increased her Magic Power and also her magic damage. More than that, Sage Class gave her eyes that could see energy such as mana, dark mana, and maybe Slayer Energy. While it was different than what she expected, Zowen was happy with her second class. More than that, Sage gave her a new attribute called Wisdom. All in all, Sage looked superior to Gravity Controller, but both were satisfied with what they got.

They returned to the capital, and The Demon Swordsman led them back to the Palace. He led them to a special place for the people who would take the trial. There was a place dedicated to that, and there was a person tasked to monitor the people who took the trial. Of course, the purpose of this place was for research such as collecting data like how long one would finish the trial, what kind of trial they faced, the type of monster, and more.

"You two will provide great data for our research, so please follow the procedure, okay?" Zaneos told them in a serious tone.

There were two attendants behind Zaneos, and the two female attendants behind the demon, holding a paper and a pen in their hands.

"We know, but I hope the procedure does not take too long," Rosalie was reluctant, but Zowen was happy to help with the research. She too wanted to know more about the System. What kind of being the System was to be able to give them a class, bloodline, and more amazing stuff. She was the person who wanted to understand the System the most.

"Take care of them with special care. They are our VIPs." Two female attendants replied with yes, then bowed their heads toward the two ladies.

Rosalie followed the attendant assigned to her. It was a basic interview, asking for her name, class, level, rank, and bloodline. It was basic yet detailed information about her.

"Please follow. I will lead you to your room," The female attendant smiled and stood up from the chair, leading the Flame Empress to a room.

"That's it?" Rosalie could not help but ask. She thought there was more procedure, but it was not that much.

The female attendant smiled, "That's for now. I will ask more once you finish the trial, Miss Rosalie. Please don't take the next trial without reporting to me first. We need the data on what kind of trial you experience and gauge the trial difficulty. Good luck on your trial."

Chapter 1153: Eternal Flame Battle Dress

Rosalie stood in the middle of a sea of fire. The whole area was covered in fire as the corpses of monsters burned to a crisp, leaving an unpleasant smell in the air.

[You have cleared all the waves!]

[You have finished the trial of Epic!]

[Do you want to take the Bonus Wave for the higher rank reward? Yes/No?]

Rosalie finished all the waves much faster, even faster than Tang Shaoyang with her unlimited mana. The fire burned the ground, creating molten lava. The monsters would be burned automatically since they rushed toward her, not caring that the fire would kill them. It was as if the monsters were designed with a single purpose, killing her regardless of the price. That ended well for her as the monsters came to the fire by themselves.

She watched the screen, hesitating to decide whether to take the last bonus wave. She recalled Tang Shaoyang's bonus wave in the trial of the Epic. It was Wrath, the Golden Dragon. She questioned herself if she could defeat something like the Golden Dragon herself. At that time, Tang Shaoyang almost lost until he used True Dragon.

Rosalie had a bloodline, two classes, and the same rank of talent or even higher. However, her bloodline and two classes were inferior to Tang Shaoyang's. In overall strength, she was still weaker even though her level was higher than his when he took the Trial of Epic.

"My unlimited mana is not going to help me with my lack of offensive power," Rosalie muttered, realizing her limitation despite her unlimited mana. If the last bonus wave opponent was something with high fire resistance. She was doomed if that was the case, and she might die there. It did not take her long to come up with a decision after realizing her limitation, and she chose no.

[Congratulations! You have finished the Trial of Epic!]

[You have advanced to Epic Rank!]

[Please choose the following rewards!]

[(Bloodline) (Class) (Talent) (Artifact)]

It took her less than five seconds to decide, choosing Artifact for her reward. Of course, there was a reason behind her decision, a strategic reason behind choosing Artifact even though the dwarf could make her the same rank Artifact or even better. The reason was that she wanted a better class, a better talent, and a better bloodline to upgrade her current bloodline.

[(Cloak of Flame) (Eternal Flame Staff) (Eternal Flame Battle Dress) (Eternal Scythe)]

The System presented the Eternal series of Artifacts with an additional Cloak of Flame. She skipped the cloak since she had the Cloak of Shadow. That was one of her most precious items, giving her an escape skill. She was not going to change her cloak anytime soon. Weapon, staff, and scythe. She did not really like to bring a weapon with her even though she knew that the staff might increase her fire magic damage. Her choice was obvious, Eternal Flame Battle Dress.

The space cracked and the artifact came out of the cracked space. A red dress with a built-in shawl made of fire. The dress was also lit on fire, and it was gorgeous for a battle dress. It looked inconvenient in the battle with the long lower part, but she really liked the battle dress.

[Eternal Flame Battle Dress]

Rank: Ancient

Bonus Attribute: + 3-Star Magic Power

Ability:

- Flame Shield

- Increase Fire Damage by 10%

Rosalie was more than satisfied with her first reward and immediately equipped the dress. There was another interesting part in the battle dress she just found out upon equipping. The built-in shawl that was made of fire was the interesting part. She could control the fire shawl with just her thoughts. Not just that, she could prolong the shawl, and it might provide a surprise catch in the battle.

After doing a little bit of testing, Rosalie was satisfied with her battle dress overall performance. She then took the portal, leaving the trial space, returning to the room when she left. She was about to proceed with the next trial, but then she remembered the research data.

Rosalie reluctantly came out of the room, and the timing was impeccable as the female attendant assigned to her was right in front of the door, with the paper in her hand, taking a note. The female attendant let out a gasp of surprise, then a shadow of doubt could be seen on her face.

"Did you clear the trial?" That was the first thing that came out of the female attendant's mouth. Her doubt was reasonable as it was too fast for Rosalie to finish the trial. It was three days, entering the fourth day. This was the fastest if she cleared the trial, but there were many that failed to clear the thirty wave and came out early too. That was why her first question was to ask whether Rosalie finished the trial or not.

"Of course, I cleared the trial, but I didn't take the Bonus Wave. I just cleared the thirty waves," Rosalie replied with an antagonistic tone. She was offended that the female attendant doubted her.

"Ah, I apologize. I don't mean to doubt you, but you are too fast. You might create a record to finish the trial in the shortest time." The female attendant bowed her head, apologizing for her earlier doubt.

"Please follow me. I need more details to collect the data,"

Rosalie followed the female attendant.

"You don't need to worry about the bonus wave. I think no one has tried to take the bonus wave, even Sir Instructor Zaneos did not try to take the bonus wave. The only person who cleared the bonus wave is His Majesty. That's why we strongly oppose anyone taking the bonus wave. It was too dangerous," The female attendant explained as they went to her workroom.

Rosalie frowned, "You did not tell me not to take the bonus wave." She recalled the female attendant did not tell her anything like that, at all.

"Sir Instructor Zaneos told me not to tell you about it. He said you can make your own decision whether you are capable of taking the bonus wave or not,"

Rosalie answered all the questions. Such as the type of monsters and waves, and how long for her to clear each wave. How she defeated the wave and the wave's average levels.

The female attendant was surprised to hear the answer of how Rosalie cleared the trial. Fire, the answer was the same. Rosalie set the wave with fire, and it was logical with her SSS-Rank talent.

"I have done with the questions. Do you want to take the next trial right now, or do you want a break or maybe some food? You have been staying inside for three days, and you haven't slept during the duration of the trial. I recommend you take a nap and food before you try for the next trial. We don't have any similar cases like yours, like taking several trials consecutively. I advise you to take a break before the next trial for your well-being," The female attendant gave the Flame Empress professional advice as an experienced Advisor.

Now the female attendant reminded her. She indeed had not slept for the trial duration which was three days and did not eat anything.

"We have room for you to rest, and I will prepare the food as well if you want," The female attendant offered.

Rosalie massaged the space between her eyes. The lack of rest and food got into her a little bit after being reminded. However, she wanted to clear all the trials as fast as she could in order to catch up with Tang Shaoyang. She really could not come up with a decision.

"Has my friend finished her trial?" She asked about Zowen.

The female paused for a moment, "Please wait. I will ask my colleague," She then left the room and returned a minute later with a smile on her face, "Your friend has not returned from the trial. The average clear time for the Trial of Epic is twenty-five days."

The female attendant returned to the table, opening another file. She checked Zowen's profile, "With your friend's specs, she should be able to clear in two weeks at the latest, and a week at the fastest. This is just my rough estimation based on my experience."

"It will be late...." Rosalie muttered by herself, but she decided to get a rest, "I will take a rest, and also please prepare the food for me."

"Do you have...." Before the female attendant finished her words, Origin interrupted her.

[There's no need to worry about her accommodation. Lady Elinova will come to pick up Lady Rosalie.]

The female attendant was shocked to hear the robotic voice. What shocked her, even more, was the fact that Lady Elinova would meet with the red-haired woman in front of her. Even though she knew she was a VIP, she did not expect the red-haired woman's status would be this high for Lady Elinova to prepare the accommodation by herself.

Not long after the interruption, someone knocked on the door three times and Lady Elinova entered the room. The purple-haired mature woman had a smile and her eyes locked on the red-haired woman. She rushed over and hugged Rosalie, catching The Flame Empress off guard.

This put Rosalie in an awkward situation. She could not say that she did not know the lady in front of her. Rosalie watched a lot of Tang Shaoyang's action in bed with Elinova. Elinova hooked her hand and dragged her out of the room.

"Zhang Mengyao already told me about you, and I want to meet you soon. But I heard you are very busy with your advancement, so I don't want to bother you. My name is Elinova, and you can call me Elin."

Chapter 1154: Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 1

Rosalie was not expecting the amiable welcome from the other Tang Shaoyang's wives. Based on the ranking, she was the last woman though Tang Shaoyang had introduced her to other women. More than half of Tang Shaoyang's women were here, having a meal with her while asking for an update about Tang Shaoyang.

Elinova who prepared the feast, Delia one of the youngest, Li Shuang who was responsible for the Tang Empire's administration, Ava the former Elven Queen who was currently expecting Tang Shaoyang's firstborn, Sylvia the princess of the Moonlight Rabbit, Arina the priest, and Jasmine the Queen of the Tang Empire's vassal. The remaining women were in the tower because of the war against the Divine Church.

Apparently, the feast was to welcome her to the family. The Flame Empress really did not expect this would come for her. She thought what would come for her was an interrogation and unfriendly reaction. She mostly answered their questions all the time.

The welcoming feast lasted forty minutes with the additional chat. Since they were friendly, Rosalie did not mind the additional time she spent with them at the table. Elin ended the gathering and led her to her room.

"If you need anything, don't hesitate to ask Origin. Have a lovely rest, Rosalie."

The room was ten times bigger than the room she used for the trial, not just bigger but it was luxuriously decorated. She did not waste her time admiring her room as she threw herself on the bed. The bed was much more comfortable than the one Tang Shaoyang brought with him all the time.

"Please wake me up in four hours, Origin," Rosalie made a request to Ai. She was afraid that she would oversleep with how comfortable the bed was. Before Origin could respond, a light snore came from the red-haired woman. Despite how easy the trial was, the mental exhaustion took her to her dreamland quickly.

*** **

Rosalie stood in the middle of the sea of fire. The ground melted under her fire, turning everything around him into lava. The scream of monsters and beasts rang in the air as they were burned by her fire. Meanwhile, behind him, millions of troops were awaiting her order as they sang praises for her.

It was the moment she enjoyed the most, the victory of a war. Suddenly a gargantuan shadow hovered above her, and she looked up. The black-scaled dragon hovered above her, flapping its wing. A flap of its wing created a strong gush, but it did not faze. She held her chin up and was ready to face the final boss. It was the final epic battle against the Evil Dragon.

Just as she was about to fight the dragon, she felt a pain on the back of his head. She blinked her eyes and the scenery changed. She saw the white ceiling, then a very loud noise assaulted her ears.

"Stop! Please stop it! It hurts my ears!" The Flame Empress realized that it was just a dream, and she came back to reality now. She was still far off to fight the real dragon. The metal music stopped and the peaceful atmosphere returned to the room.

[I apologize for my rudeness, but I have called you a lot of times, but you did not wake up. I pulled out the loud music, and you still did not wake up. So I have to shake the bed and throw you to the ground to wake you up. You have been sleeping for four hours and fifteen minutes.] Origin's voice followed after the silence.

The Flame Empress sobered up. She stood up and headed toward the door. It was time for the next trial.

[Lady Elin has prepared food for you. You can bring the food with you into the trial, and she also prepared tea and coffee. She doesn't know what you like, so she prepared both for you.]

Rosalie halted her steps, then she glanced toward the table in the living room. There were a lot of lunch boxes and two cups of drink. She turned toward the table, retrieving the food from her inventory before glancing at the cup. These two drinks did not exist in her world, and she was kinda curious. Especially the coffee that Tang Shaoyang often drinks in the morning.

She picked up the coffee and took a sip. Her face crunched into bitterness, sticking out her tongue from the bitterness of the drink.

[If you can't handle the bitterness, you can add sugar or milk. Those small cups are the sugar and milk.]

Rosalie did not hesitate to put the milk into the coffee before giving it a second try. It was much better with the milk, but it was still bitter. After mixing it with the milk, she chugged the whole cup of coffee in one go, emptying the cup. It was her appreciation to Elin for making her the coffee.

"I think I understand why he drank coffee. It helps me to wake up."

The coffee really helped her to get rid of her sleepiness. After having such a good sleep, the sleepiness took over her.

[You are not supposed to drink coffee like that though. You should take a sip, slowly....]

Rosalie ignored the Ai who kept explaining to her about the coffee. Maybe Origin was lonely with no one to talk with. He told her the content of the coffee and told her what helped her to wake up. She returned to the trial floor and returned to her assigned attendant. She was supposed to tell her assigned attendant before taking the next trial.

There was no more interview for the second trial. The attendant just asked her what she took as a reward in the Trial of Epic before she was given permission to take the Trial of Ancient in the same room.

[Do you want to take the Trial of Ancient? Yes/No?]

Rosalie opened her window status, making sure he had allocated all her Attribute Points. After that, she tapped yes and entered the portal for the trial.

Chapter 1155: Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 2

[Congratulations! You have finished the Trial of Epic!]

[You have advanced to Epic Rank!]

[Please choose the following rewards!]

[(Bloodline) (Class) (Talent) (Artifact)]

Zowen looked at her options, and she hesitated to come up with a decision. She wanted to choose Artifact, so she could get a higher rank of Class or Bloodline or Talent. However, she was just an Ancient Rank, there was only one more trial after she finished this trial. Her strength would be left behind by miles by Rosalie if she chose the Artifact as the reward.

Meanwhile, she did not know how far off she was from the Myth Rank. After clearing the whole thirty waves in the Trial of Epic, she gained seventy levels. She was still far from the Myth rank if she had to guess.

"Should I take a risk?" The Lightning Magus really wanted to take the risk and saved the other three options for the next trial.

Rosalie said she would take the Artifact for the first trial for the same reason. However, Rosalie could afford to make such a decision because there were two more trials ahead of her.

The options left the Lightning Magus in dilemma. She sat down on the ground as she started to get anxious. She meditated, calming herself from making a stupid decision. Three minutes passed, and she opened her eyes. After three minutes of meditation, she decided what she wanted to take, Artifact.

[Staff of Prudence] [Mantle of Wisdom] [Robe of Wisdom] [Grimoire of Lightning]

Zowen encountered something she did not expect on the list. She immediately excluded the staff since she had one already, but she was interested in the other three. Choosing the Artifact was a means for her to get a higher rank of Bloodline, Class, and Talent. She was not expecting to get a useful Artifact to the one she had already, but this was a surprise for her.

The Lightning Magus was interested in the Mantle of Wisdom and Robe of Wisdom. She guessed the two items might be related to her new attribute, Wisdom. Maybe the item would help her raise her Wisdom attribute. However, the last one was not less interesting than the Wisdom series item. She did not know what Grimoire of Lightning did, but she was interested to find out.

"Maybe Artifact is not that bad of a choice," It took her less to decide than before. Her choice was Grimoire of Lightning. The space cracked, producing the grimoire right in front of her. The grimoire was similar to a thick book, but the front cover was the difference. The front cover was made of an unknown metal, and it kept a discharging spark of lightning.

Zowen extended her hand, and the grimoire fell on her hand. The spark did not hurt her, and she immediately inspected the item in her hand. To her surprise, nothing came up. There was no description from the system just like any other items. She furrowed her brows, observing the grimoire in her hand. She did not believe it was a defective item from the System.

"Let's open...." The Lightning Magus opened the grimoire, and lightning burst out from the grimoire, taking her by surprise. She subconsciously threw the grimoire away and fell on her butt as the lightning came toward her face. However, the lightning did not hurt her, there was no injury. When she was about to look for the grimoire, a stream of knowledge came into her head.

"ARGHHH...." It was a painful experience for her. She curled her body on the ground, clutching her head while enduring the pain. There was too much information entering her head. She was sweating, the sweat soaked her robe, and it lasted for ten minutes.

"Hah... hah... hah..." The Lightning Magus breathed heavily after such a horrible experience. Her eyes were vacant, staring at the dusty ground, processing information in her head. The grimoire was indeed an Artifact, but a different Artifact than the weapon or armor. The grimoire held a knowledge, it was as if she just inherited someone else's knowledge about lightning. The Grimoire of Lightning contained the knowledge of lightning, more than what she knew. Her understanding of lightning went up, and she learned about types of lightning.

It was too much knowledge for her to process in a short time, but it was groundbreaking information for her. Despite being hailed as a Lightning Magus in her previous world, she realized that her understanding of lightning was too shallow. She was suddenly embarrassed by herself to receive such a title when she knew so little about lightning.

"This grimoire just convinced me to stay behind instead of following Tang Shaoyang," She muttered by herself.

Zowen thought of staying behind instead of following Tang Shaoyang to climb the dimensional tower. That was why she chose to take the Artifact. She would be making the decision after she finished the Trial of Ancient, trying to find out what she got from the Trial of Ancient. If she got something good from the Trial of Ancient, she might follow Rosalie to chase after Tang Shaoyang, but if she deemed it was not good enough. She would go on her own on her journey to explore more of the Dimensional Tower's eleventh floor. That was the plan when she chose the Artifact as her reward.

However, the knowledge inside the Grimoire of Lightning convinced her to stay behind. She wanted to comprehend all the knowledge before climbing up the tower. She might have missed the boss floor on the eleventh floor, but there were still more boss floors above. A smile formed on her lips as she got up. She could not hide her happiness despite the horrible experience earlier.

Zowen took the portal of the trial dimension, returning to her room. She came out of the room and headed to her assigned attendant's office to make a report about her trial. She arrived at the room and knocked on the door thrice.

"Come in."

The Lightning Magus opened the door.

The female attendant's expression brightened seeing Zowen. She stood up and smiled while offering congratulations, "Congratulations for your advancement, Miss Zowen."

"Thank you," Zowen smiled and took the seat opposite the female attendant. She was being interviewed about what she went through in the trial. The Lightning Magus cooperated, answering all the questions until the last question.

"What do you choose for the reward?"

Zowen furrowed her brow. She felt like the reward should not be shared with anyone, not with someone she did not trust, "I want to keep it a secret."

Even though she fully cooperated, it did not mean she fully trusted the female attendant. She trusted Tang Shaoyang but not his people. If it was Tang Shaoyang or even Zaneos who asked her, she would gladly answer them, but not the female attendant in front of her. She died because of someone her lover's betrayal, and she was not going to repeat the same mistake.

The female attendant smiled, "Don't worry, Miss Zowen. Your information will be kept secret. For your information, I have taken the oath to take this job. If I spread your information without your permission or my superior's permission. I will die from a heart attack. Your information is safe with us."

Chapter 1156: Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 3

Zowen remained tight-lipped about her reward. She had been with Tang Shaoyang since the first Survival Game, and she knew how precious information the grimoire was. She did not want to tell the female attendant about the grimoire. Even though the female attendant had taken the oath, she still did not want the female attendant to know anything about the grimoire.

The female attendant had a strained smile. There was really nothing she could do to convince Zowen if the oath was not enough to convince the Lightning Magus.

[I called Sir Zaneos. He will take care of the rest.] Origin came in clutch. The Ai figured out that Zowen might tell Zaneos what she got in the trial.

A few minutes later, Zaneos arrived, wearing a TEIS uniform as he was on his shift. He came in a hurry when he received the message that Zowen did not want to share what she got from the Trial of Epic.

"You can leave. I will take over this case for Zowen," The Demon Swordsman came over, asking for a file of Zowen. He sat opposite the Lightning Magus and furrowed his brow, "Why don't you want to tell her about the reward? If you are afraid that she might leak your information, then there's nothing to worry about. The people who work here have taken an oath, and we are watching them secretly too. Your information is safe with us."

"Wait..." Zaneos realized that most of Zowen's information was in the file, but there was missing information at the end. It was the reward from the trial, "What do you get for the reward?" He realized that Zowen did not want to tell the reward from the trial, not the other data, but specifically the reward. It might be because she received something special and unheard of before.

"Ah..." The Demon Swordsman retracted his words, "Never mind. You don't have to share it if you don't want to." There must be a reason why Zowen did not want to tell the worker, so he was not going to force her to speak, "This should be enough for the data. It is fine if you don't want to tell us your reward."

Zaneos put down the file and closed it, indicating the interview was over.

"I don't mind sharing it, but I don't want anyone else to know my reward aside from the people I trust. I don't trust that female worker, but I don't mind telling you with a condition that you will not record my reward in my profile," Zowen was open to Zaneos. She trusted the demon, Rosalie, and Tang Shaoyang. She only trusted the three but no one else.

"Can I tell His Majesty as well? If you don't want him to know, then you might as well not tell me," Zaneos was being honest that he would share the information with The Emperor. He made it known before the Lightning Magus divulged the secret.

"I don't mind. He is one of a few people I trust," Zowen shook her head, then she told the demon what she got from the trial, "I chose Artifact for my reward, and I got Grimoire of Lightning...." She explained to him what a grimoire was without telling him the contents of the Grimoire of Lightning.

"I see...." Zaneos held his chin, processing what just Zowen told him. It was indeed a big discovery since this was the first time he heard about the grimoire. He did not ask what contained the grimoire since she did not want to tell him, "This is indeed important information. You are the first to receive a grimoire. Most of our Epic Rank took Bloodline as their first reward. But your luck is much better than Rosalie's. She just got a piece of equipment. It will be good for her to get Grimoire of Fire."

Zowen did not pick up the last part, but the part where Rosalie just got a piece of equipment, "Did she finish the trial faster than me?" She asked in a surprised tone. She thought she might beat Rosalie in clearing the trial, but she lost. Seven days and four hours, that was her time. A little bit longer than Tang Shaoyang who cleared the Bonus Wave as well. She thought it was already fast, but she did not expect Rosalie to beat her.

Zaneos smiled, "Yeah, and she broke His Majesty's record with three days clearing record. I expected her to break the record, but I was not expecting for her to break the record by such a huge margin." It was two times faster than her and Tang Shaoyang.

"Thr— three days!?" The Lightning Magus subconsciously raised her voice.

"I mean she has unlimited mana, doesn't forget about that. She can use her fire without worrying about her mana. I heard from her assigned worker that she turned the whole area into lava, and she just stood in the middle of that fire," Zaneos shook his head as he felt the way Rosalie cleared the trial was ridiculous.

Zowen let out a sigh, admitting her defeat. She could not refute that, totally different from how she fought the wave. She conversed the mana, using the spell the most effective way at that so she did not have to wait to recover her mane for the following. After a few waves, she would take a break to recover her mana. That was what took her longer to finish the trial.

"Don't be jealous. If you tell her what you got, she would be jealous of you," Zaneos could tell that the Lightning Magus was envious of Rosalie's unlimited mana. He understood that having unlimited mana was the dream of all magic users.

Zaneos stood up, "Congratulations on your advancement. You must be exhausted and hungry fighting for seven days. Do you want to rest first or have a meal first?"

"Nope. I will not allow you to take the next trial until you have your sleep and rest. Even Rosalie took a break before entering the next trial." The Demon Instructor did not allow the rejected, grabbed the magus' wrist, and dragged her with him.

Chapter 1157: Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 4

[Congratulations! You have finished the Trial of Ancient!]

[You have advanced to Ancient Rank!]

[Please choose the following rewards!]

[(Bloodline) (Class) (Talent) (Artifact)]

Rosalie had finished all the waves in the Trial of Ancient, and she did not want to risk the bonus wave. Since she did not try the previous bonus wave, there was no reason for her to take this bonus wave. She checked the reward and was surprised to see Artifact was still an option after she chose an Artifact. From what she knew, Tang Shaoyang did not have the option of Talent in the Trial of Ancient after choosing Talent in the Trial of the Epic.

"That's new information," Rosalie nodded her head before moving her gaze to the other three rewards. She was not going to choose Artifact anymore, focusing on the other three options. She had a bloodline, but she wanted a better bloodline than Drake Bloodline, "The Drake Bloodline might be considered a high-rank bloodline. There's a chance that I will only get the upgrade of Drake Bloodline if I choose Bloodline right now."

The Flame Empress crossed the bloodline from her option, leaving her with Class and Talent. She just recently got a Class and also a Talent.

"Based on the empire's record, my talent is easily the best rank in the empire. I have the best talent, and my class is not too shabby considering it's the same cost as the Spirit Contractor."

It was a difficult decision for her, "Should I get a class?" She questioned herself, "I have the highest rank talent, so I need more class to add variety for my offense move."

"Wait...." She realized something, "I already have the best talent, so what I need right now is the best class to match my talent. Ruler of Gravity might be a strong class, but maybe there's a stronger class than that one. I will take Bloodline for the Trial of Myth. I can't get a class for the next trial if I choose a class right now. But if I choose a class right now, it might be a lower-rank class than the Ruler of Gravity. If I want the best class, then I have to choose the class in the Trial of Primordial or Demi-God."

After coming up with such thoughts, she came to the conclusion that her reward should be between Artifact and Talent. It was too greedy if she chose talent, meaning she did not really get any boost of power even after two trials. What she needed the most right now was power so she could follow Tang Shaoyang without being a burden to him. This left her with Talent if she wanted to upgrade her strength.

"I already have the best talent, so I don't need another best talent...." She consoled herself and chose talent for the reward.

[Ice Constitution] [Fire Constitution] [Wind Constitution] [Arcane Mark]

Looking at the option, she realized something behind the reward from the trial. The reward was tailored for her, and she could tell that all the talents related to her as an Elementalist. She crossed the Ice Constitution and Wind Constitution from her choice. The no-brainer choice was Fire

Constitution, but she was interested in Arcane Mark. Since all the talents are all related to her as an Elementalist, Arcane Mark might be related to her class too.

"This is hard!" Rosalie let out a yell, frustrated. She realized choosing the reward might be harder than the trial itself. "This is ridiculous." It was hard because there was no explanation of what each talent did. No one could help her as she was alone in this dimension.

"Let's not take the risk...."

In the end, The Flame Empress chose the safest option, the Fire Constitution.

[Adjustment in process....]

[Fire Constitution has advanced to Eternal Flame Supremacy!]

A bunch of notifications rang in her head, but she ignored all of them as she was too exhausted to check out. However, she was sure that she did not make the wrong choice because she received a massive boost in Magic Power attribute and also a bunch of new skills. She ignored the notification and returned to the portal, leaving the dimensional with her exhausted mind.

Even though the battle was mostly easy, the mental exhaustion got her. Hearing the monster and beast scream for days. The unpleasant smell of them being burned also affected her. Most of the time, she did not have an appetite to eat. In fact, she only ate three boxes of meals during her trial.

Rosalie got out of the room, and her assigned attendant was not in front of her. It seemed it was past her checking time. She was familiar with the layout and went to the office.

"Congratulations on your advancement, Lady Rosalie." The female attendant motioned the Flame Empress to sit across from her, "Do you want a refreshing drink or maybe a meal first? We can wait for the interview if you are exhausted from the trial and need rest."

Rosalie could tell that the female attendant became extra attentive and overly respectful. But then she realized it might be because of Elin. Since she knew Elin, the female attendant became extra careful.

"It's fine, we can start right away," Rosalie shook her head and started the questionnaire. It was the same question all over again, and she replied with more details since she paid more attention. It was a subconscious action for her to observe the monster and the beast after knowing all these questions. She could give a more detailed answer to the data.

After answering everything, Rosalie went out of the room. She stopped for a moment outside the room, realizing she did not know where to go. She was unsure if she could go back to her previous room.

"Are you done with the interview?" Then she heard the familiar voice. Turning her head, she saw Zaneos coming over, waving his hand at her. The Flame Empress nodded her head.

"Lady Elin asked me to pick you up. She could not come by herself because she is helping in the main kitchen. Sometimes she will stop by my office and cook us some food." Zaneos explained.

Chapter 1158: Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 5

Rosalie opened her eyes, looking up at the same ceiling. She got to the same room again, and this time she did not ask Origin to wake her up. After having a stroll with Delia and Elin, she decided to take a full break. The bed was so comfortable, and she had an excellent sleep.

"How long have I been sleeping, Origin?"

[Twenty-seven hours.] The answer came fast from the Ai as if the Ai was watching her sleeping.

[Lady Elin came a few hours ago. She's worried because you don't come out of your room for over a day.]

Rosalie got off the bed and headed to the bathroom, washed her face, and sat next to the window. Her room was on the top, and she could view the scenery outside. The nightlife just started, she could see the city was brightened up with the light. The view was totally different from the territory outside the capital. It seemed they had forgotten that a year ago their homes were destroyed by the zombies.

[If you are hungry, Lady Elin invites you for dinner. But you want to spend your time alone is fine as well.] Origin sent Elinova's message.

The moment Lady Elin entered her ear, Rosalie smiled. Even though they just met, Elinova had become the figure she wanted the most in her life. She was like a best friend and also a mother at the same time. Attentive, affectionate, and willing to listen to her concerns just like a mother. She could also become a friend, having a conversation with her that could only be said between friends. Her company brought fun to her.

"I am going," She returned to her bedroom, changing her bathrobe to casual clothes. During their stroll, Elin introduced a bra to her, and a lot of other modern clothes. She chose a casual outfit, a plain red shirt, and brown long pants. The outfit was more comfortable than it looked.

Then she had dinner not just with Elin, but the other girls as well. It was an enjoyable and harmonious dinner she had for a long time. Not only was the food good, but she enjoyed the company. They had over two hours of conversation after the dinner. Mostly the conversation was about the food, dress, and some good places they could visit together next time.

After that, Elinova walked her back to her room. The purple-haired woman asked in her soft voice, "How is it? Do you like staying here?"

"More than like, I love the place and also the people," The answer came fast from Rosalie's mouth, fast and honest. That was what she felt during her short stay.

"Then will you stay here?"

"I would love to, but not now," Rosalie shook her head, still smiling. Elinova attempted to make her stay instead of coming back into the dimensional tower. She understood Elin's concern since the tower was too dangerous, but she wanted to help him. She wanted to repay him for what he had given to him. Not just her second chance, but also a new home she yearned for. She had to protect the Empire if she wanted to protect Elin and the others from the God Ranks who tried to invade Earth.

"He might not need me in his battle, but I will do my best to be helped in any way. I have gotten my second chance, and I don't want to lose it just because I am too weak," The Flame Empress told Elin about her past, "I lost everything in my previous life because I was too weak to protect it. This time I will do my best, my hardest, so I don't lose my new home. We can't have him do everything."

"If that's your choice," Elin nodded, no longer trying to persuade Rosalie not to enter the tower. She hugged the red-haired woman, "I wish you the best, Rosalie." Then Elin released the hug, "When are you going to leave for the next trial?"

"Tonight. I have stayed too long here. I need to catch up soon," After the last hug, they separated.

Rosalie returned to her room, changing her clothes into the battle dress and the cloak before leaving for the trial floor. She notified the female attendant before leaving for the last trial, Trial of Myth.

*** **

[Congratulations! You have finished the Trial of Ancient!]

[You have advanced to Ancient Rank!]

[Please choose the following rewards!]

[(Bloodline) (Class) (Talent) (Artifact)]

"Huh!? I can still get more Artifact?" Zowen had the same reaction as Rosalie. She finally finished her trial, and at the same, she did not choose to take the bonus last wave. The risk was too big with no prior data. A dragon and Celestial Wolves were the bonus for Tang Shaoyang, and she was not confident to take on such monsters.

Shaking her head in regret, the Lightning Magus focused on the choices. Artifact was not her choice anymore, she needed something that would boost her strength than the Artifact. If she could get another advanced grimoire, she would be willing to take another Artifact, but she knew the chance to get another grimoire was low. Rosalie and Tang Shaoyang failed to get a grimoire, and she was not going to risk it. As for bloodline, she had the same plan as Rosalie, taking the bloodline for the Trial of Myth.

"What do I want for the Trial of Primordial?" She thought ahead. The reward from the Trial of Primordial would be much better than this one, and she thought about what she wanted from that trial. She did not think about what she lacked the most right now, but what she wanted to upgrade for the Trial of Primordial. The answer came fast in her mind, Talent. She envied Rosalie's talent, and she wanted the same talent. She would save the Talent option for the Trial of Primordial. That left her with one choice, Class.

The Lightning Magus tapped the Class option, and four choices appeared before her.

[Spirit Mage] [Arcane Mage] [Warlock] [Necromancer]

The choice was not too difficult for Zowen as she immediately excluded Necromancer and Warlock. She knew a lot about Necromancer. In her previous world, Necromancer was known as the Death Mage, the mage that is closely associated with the dead. She was not interested in the class.

As for Arcane Mage, her mind was blank. There was nothing that came up in her mind about Arcane. 06:37

This left me in a difficult situation. Rationally, she would choose what she was familiar with the most, As for the Warlock, she just knew a little bit of information about them. She only knew Warlock was someone that was good with curses and demons. She heard that Warlock had the capability of summoning the demon to fight for them. That was not what she wanted.

That left her with two choices, Spirit Mage and Arcane Mage. The worst part was that she knew nothing about these two classes. She tried to understand what the class did based on the name. The only thing she knew about spirit was the dead spirit. However, she was unsure if the dead spirit related to this Spirit Mage or if it was another spirit being.

As for Arcane Mage, her mind was blank. There was nothing that came up in her mind about Arcane. This left me in a difficult situation. Rationally, she would choose what she was familiar with the most, either Warlock or Necromancer. If not for her dislike and disgust for both classes, she would choose one of them. But her mind was still heavily influenced by her previous world's tradition, Warlock and Necromancer were bad.

"Feeling, huh?" For a rational person like her, it was weird to rely on her feelings. But there was no choice for her but to rely on her feelings this time.

Zowen closed her eyes, falling to her thoughts. She was in a state of meditation, calming her mind and heart. When she opened her eyes, she had come up with a choice and chose the class based on her feelings. Spirit Mage was his choice.

[Adjustment in process....]

[Spirit Mage has advanced to Mystical Spirit Archmage!]

Along with it, a few notifications rang in her head. All of them were about her newly acquired skills, and there was one skill that caught her attention, Mystical Spirit Summoning. It was the same exact name as Tang Shaoyang's skill. The only difference was the front name. Tang Shaoyang's current skill was Ancient Spirit Summoning, and hers was Mystical.

This piqued her interest and immediately tried the skill.

[Please choose the spirit you want to summon!]

[Fire Spirit] [Wind Spirit] [Earth Spirit] [Water Spirit]

Looking at her option, she immediately realized the spirit in Spirit Mage was not the dead spirit but an elemental spirit. There was no lightning spirit, so she had no choice but to choose Fire Spirit.

A magic circle made of fire immediately formed three meters in front of her. The magic circle shone as the fire came out from the magic circle, and the fire spirit appeared. The Fire Spirit was a red wisp, floating in the air, and radiating the heat. The fire spirit recognized its summoner, and it immediately flew toward Zowen.

Zowen still did not know what to do with the Fire Spirit. She looked at the spirit, and it looked back at her. Even though the spirit did not have a face, she could feel it staring back at her. This really piqued her interest as she immediately checked the other skills.

Even though the class was advanced, the class only had a few skills. [Mystical Spirit Summoning], [Spirit Capacity (1/9)] [Invoke], and [Spell Vault (0/10)]. That was it, the class only gave her four skills, and she barely understood what the other three skills did.

Chapter 1159 Flame Empress & Lightning Magus - Part 6

Even though the class was advanced, the class only had a few skills. [Mystical Spirit Summoning], [Spirit Capacity (1/9)] [Invoke], and [Spell Vault (0/10)]. That was it, the class only gave her four skills, and she barely understood what all those four skills did.

After learning the other skills for a few minutes, Zowen got the gist of the skill. Spirit Capacity was self-explanatory, the total amount of spirit she could have. Then she found out what the use of the spirit was after trying to activate Invoke. Invoke was the interesting one, and this was where the spirit came into use. Invoke would combine the spirit to create a spell, and the spell would be stored in the Spell Vault. The maximum amount of spells she could store was ten.

She tried to use Invoke with one spirit, and she created one spell with just Fire Spirit, [Fire Ball I]. The Lightning Magus furrowed her brow as she realized the big flaw of the class. First, it was inconvenient to create a fireball, the most common spell and the easiest spell to learn. Second, the fact that she had a limited amount of spells was another flaw in this class.

"But this is the reward of the Trial of Ancient. The class was too weak for an Ancient Rank's trial," The Lightning Magus muttered by herself, "No, there must be something special about the class. I haven't fully explored the class to its potential."

Zowen then cast [Fire Ball I], and it was the usual fireball. Much stronger than a normal fireball for sure, but not that much different. "Let's try summoning a new spirit." She did not want to believe Spirit Mage was a weak class, and she wanted to experiment more.

Wind Spirit was her second choice, and it was the same process but instead of fire, it was a strong gust of wind. A green wisp appeared above the magic circle, and it moved toward her, circling around her. The Wind Spirit looked more excited than the calm Fire Spirit.

Zowen used Invoke and found another limitation of the skill. The maximum number of spirits that could be combined with Invoke was three, three different types of spirits, and three spirits maximum. Fire, Fire, and Wind produced [Thunder Strike I] spell. The spell was automatically saved in her Spell Vault. He tested the spell, and it was similar to her Thunder Strike but stronger.

"What if I change the combination to wind, wind, and fire? Will it produce a different spell?" She tried the idea, and to her surprise, it created a different spell, [Lightning Bolt I]. Then she continued by trying wind, wind, and wind produced a spell called [Tornado I].

Creating these spells was addicting, then she summoned a new spirit. The third spirit was Earth Spirit. She was having fun, combining the spirit power into spells. What would happen if she created ten spells which was the maximum spell that could be stored? First, she could override the spell she did not want to use like [Fireball I]. But with four types of different spirits, she could create twenty different spells. Second, she did not need to save the spell, but she could try to Invoke the spell amidst the fight if she needed the spell. That required her to memorize all the combinations. Four different spirits might not be hard, but if she filled all nine spirits, that would be hard for her to memorize everything.

The more she tried more spells, she realized something. Three different types of spirits combination would take longer to fuse, but one type spirit Invoke was much faster, almost instant, and she could use the spell immediately. That meant if she wanted to save the spell, she should save the spell that required a longer time to Invoke, or she saved the spell she deemed the most useful one.

Zowen discovered more things about the class, which was about the spirit. She had summoned all four spirits. When she tried to summon the fifth spirit, she was notified that she must rank up all four spirits to Rank IV if she wanted to summon a new spirit. There was a requirement for her to unlock more spirits. This made her realize that the spirit had a rank.

[Wind Spirit | Rank I] [Water Spirit | Rank I] [Earth Spirit | Rank I] [Fire Spirit | Rank I]

But it came with more questions, how did she rank up the spirit? It did not tell her how to rank up the spirit, meaning she needed to do the research by herself. This also made her realize how to increase the damage output for each spell. A higher rank spirit might inflict higher damage for each spell.

"This is actually fantastic!" The Lightning Magus was no longer disappointed with her new class as soon as she found the hidden potential behind the class. Of course, it was not necessarily stronger than her two other classes, but there was one thing that made her excited. She had more research subjects. For someone who loved to bury herself in research of magic, this was an exciting prospect.

Zowen decided to stop with her experiment as she wasted too much time with the experiment. She took the exit portal, returning to the capital. Two trials, and two materials for her research. The two rewards erased her envy toward Rosalie's talent completely. She returned to the office in a jovial mood.

"Congratulations on your advancement to Ancient Rank, Miss Zowen," The female attendant congratulated her, "Please sit while I call for Sir Zaneos for your data gathering. He told me to call him for your interview."

Zowen actually did not mind the female attendant interviewing her, but she said nothing after hearing what the female attendant said. It was much better for Zaneos to interview her, she felt safer with Zaneos.

A few minutes later, Zaneos entered the room. The demon stopped for a moment after he closed the door, observing Zowen for a moment, "You must get something good for you to be so happy."

Zaneos got behind the table, "Let's finish this quick. I like the off-record talk more than this one." Zaneos was interested in what made the Lightning Magus have such a happy mood.

Chapter 1160 The Spirits Form A Party - Part 1

[Congratulations! You have finished the Trial of Myth!]

[You have advanced to Epic Myth!]

[Please choose the following rewards!]

[(Bloodline) (Class) (Artifact)]

Rosalie looked visibly exhausted, much more exhausted than the first two trials. She leaned her back on the monolith, the center of the trial. She slowly came down, resting her butt on the ground, closing her eyes. The reward was not her focus, but the break was.

She wanted to finish the trial as soon as possible, and she had been fighting the monster wave non-stop from the fiftieth wave to the seventieth wave, the last wave of monsters for the trial. She lost track of time, but she had been awake for at least seven days. Everything in her sight was monsters, the burning beast, nothing else.

The Flame Empress rested for ten minutes before slowly opening her eyes. The reward was not her focus as she took out a flask of water from her inventory, finishing the water in one shot. After that, she opened her lunch box, enjoying the food made by Elinova. A little bit of rest and good food helped her to regain her focus.

After having a nice little break, she focused on her reward. The Talent was no longer there as a choice for her, but it was to be expected. She tapped Bloodline immediately without a second thought. That was her choice for the reward of the Trial of Myth, having been planning it before even she took the first trial.

[Evolve Current Bloodline] [Chaos Griffon] [Abyssal Cerberus] [Sacred Phoenix]

She was given a choice to evolve her current bloodline. If she had to guess the evolved bloodline, it should be the Drake King bloodline just like Areth. If she was lucky, maybe a Dragon Bloodline. However, she did not want to take the risk when she had a better choice.

The Flame Empress had heard about the Griffon from the main continent where she came from. It was a creature with a lion's body and an eagle's head. From what she knew, the creature's main attribute was Wind, not fire. But the word chaos in the name threw her off a little bit. It was for sure a better version of the normal Griffon, but she wanted a bloodline to increase the power of her fire. She was not sure if that Chaos Griffon was fire affinity.

Abyssal Cerberus was another legend from the main continent. The hound had three heads, gargantuan in size, and it had a fire element, but it was black fire. The creature was known as the Demon King's pet who invaded their world. But it was just a legend, she did not see the actual Cerberus with her own eyes.

If both Griffon and Cerberus were very rare creatures, then Phoenix was a myth. No one had seen the creature, something that existed in the legend only. The choice was obvious the moment she saw [Sacred Phoenix] was on the list. She chose [Sacred Phoenix] without a second thought. The Firebird was the safest choice, and also she was fond of the creature.

The moment she made her choice, her body was lit on fire. Her hair, body, and everything turned into golden fire. A pair of golden fire wings formed on her back. At the same time, she could feel the extreme heat inside her, especially her heart.

The Flame Empress fell on her knees, clutching her chest. Her breath became hurried as the pain increased. For a Fire Elementalist, she had forgotten the feel of the heat from the fire, but she sensed it once more. She felt like her heart was on fire. Her body fell to the side, curling up while clutching her chest. She grunted in pain as the pain was truly unbearable.

Slowly her body was shrouded in the fire that slowly formed a cocoon. Rosalie's body hid inside the golden fire cocoon. Ten seconds later, her scream resounded from the cocoon. The painful process became even more painful, and she could no longer hold her scream.

The painful process was over in thirty minutes. The golden fire cocoon dissipated, revealing Rosalie who was still curling on the ground. Sweat covered her face as her breath was still ragged.

"It... was more... more painful than the first one...." Rosalie was talking about the Drake Bloodline awakening. It was painful, but she held it. However, this one was more painful than that time. Then she heard the notification from the System, telling her that she had successfully changed her bloodline. Then she heard more notifications as the bonus from the bloodline calibration applied to her stat. There was a big boost in her Magic Power attribute. Not just that, she obtained an innate ability from her bloodline, [Sacred Flame]. Her fire evolved into Sacred Flame, and the flame had two abilities, a highly destructive power and also a healing power.

That was right, the flame could be used to heal, but there was a restriction for the healing. She could only heal someone with fire affinity or neutral affinity. That meant the healing could not be used on Zowen for example who mastered her Lighting Magic to a certain extent or other Elementalist with different affinity than the fire. Neutral affinity was someone who mastered no elemental power which most people did. It was rare for a warrior who mastered an elemental power. Of course, Tang Shaoyang was an exception.

Rosalie was satisfied with her reward and took the exit portal. It was the same as usual, making her report then she went back to her room. The first thing she did as soon as she returned to the room was to take a quick shower to wash off the sweat. She felt sticky after three weeks of not washing her body. She spent three weeks finishing the Trial of Myth. After the satisfying shower, she threw her body onto the bed. As soon as her body touched the bed, a light snore could be heard in the room. The bed was just that comfortable, and she was too exhausted to think about anything.

It was a dreamless sleep for Rosalie, but she had guests the moment she woke up. It was not Elinova, but Zaneos and Zowen who came to her room. They seemed to have something to talk about with her, a serious discussion she assumed at the sight of their solemn expression.

"We have decided to form a party to explore the Dimensional Tower. Do you want to join us?"