

The Amazing son in law Chapter 7433

At the same time, he made a silent vow in his heart: no matter who it was, he would never agree to such a request again.

Tawana's performance schedule consisted of two shows, followed by a rest day, and then two more shows in a row.

So on the third day, she had a day off.

To impress charlie Wade further, she organized a full-day tour of Eastcliff, which was to be livestreamed globally.

Early the next morning, Tawana, along with her agent, assistant, bodyguards, and a group of over twenty people, set off for the Great Wall.

Multiple cameras broadcasted the entire event live across several platforms, drawing over ten million online viewers from around the world.

During the live broadcast, Tawana appeared genuinely enthusiastic, showering praise on everything she saw. Her reactions gave foreign viewers—especially those who had never been to China or Eastcliff—a vivid glimpse into the grandeur and majesty of the Great Wall.

After the Great Wall visit, her convoy quickly returned to the city. They first toured the Summer Palace and then continued on to the Old Summer Palace.

Many assumed Tawana didn't understand Chinese history or the background of the Old Summer Palace. They believed she included it in her itinerary simply because it was well-known and conveniently located near the Summer Palace.

However, few knew that Tawana had actually done thorough preparation in advance.

Aware of charlie Wade's strong patriotism, she deliberately arranged a global live broadcast and strategically chose the Old Summer Palace as a stop—just to express her stance and win charlie Wade's admiration.

Upon entering the Old Summer Palace, she still appeared clueless, like an innocent little rabbit. She praised the beauty of the place and asked the tour guide about its history.

The guide, assuming the American star was unfamiliar with the site's tragic past, explained the origins of the Old Summer Palace and recounted how it was destroyed.

The camera focused on the ruins of the Grand Fountain—one of the most iconic remnants of the Old Summer Palace.

As soon as the ruins appeared on screen, the live chat was flooded with comments from netizens around the world, expressing their sorrow in multiple languages.

Feigning surprise, Tawana asked the guide, “Excuse me, who burned this place down?”

The guide replied, “It was destroyed by the British and French forces in 1860. During the Second Opium War, they invaded Beijing, looted the palace, and set it on fire. Many of the artifacts from that time are now housed in the British Museum.”

Tawana widened her eyes in mock shock and asked, “The British and French did this? Have they ever apologized for it?”

“Of course not,” the guide responded. “Britain and France colonized much of the world, committing murder, looting, and countless other atrocities. As far as I know, they’ve never publicly apologized, nor have they returned any of the stolen relics. Many are still on display in the British Museum.”

“Oh my God!” Tawana exclaimed with indignation. “That’s outrageous! In the past, if someone made a mistake, they could be forgiven with a sincere apology—but how can they be so shameless? Not only did they never say sorry or return what they stole, but they’re proudly displaying it in their own museum? Are they actually proud of their history of colonization and plunder? Is this what they call British gentlemanly spirit?”
