Chapter 7956

4-5 minutes

As for the others, it's best to keep it a secret for now and decide on a later date based on the situation.

charlie Wade then wanted to explore the other levels of the Four Directions Pagoda, but when he tried to exit through the windows around the pagoda, he discovered that the windows also had invisible barriers that he couldn't pass through, thus preventing him from leaving the pagoda.

However, charlie Wade didn't know which level he was on; he only knew there were no stairs or exits. This puzzled him. He had been transported here by a teleportation array that suddenly appeared in the Sanqing Palace, but all nine teleportation arrays here corresponded to places outside Antarctica. He could go to those nine places on different continents and in different countries, but he couldn't go outside the Four Directions Pagoda.

Just as charlie Wade was at a loss, a detailed map suddenly appeared in his mind. This map depicted this underground city, and it marked eighteen teleportation arrays, each corresponding to a mental cultivation incantation.

It was through this map that charlie Wade discovered the Four Directions Pagoda had nine levels, each with a teleportation array, and there was also one below the plaza.

In addition, the Three Pure Ones Hall and other important public areas within the city also had teleportation arrays. What surprised charlie Wade even more was that there was another teleportation array a thousand meters above the ground. This meant that if he wanted to leave the Four Directions Pagoda and go out, he wouldn't need to return the way he came.

This relieved charlie Wade, because the exit back was on a cliff several tens of meters high. With charlie Wade's current cultivation level, without the help of a flying sword or other magical artifact, coming down wouldn't be difficult, but leaping up several tens of meters high would be extremely challenging.

It seemed the cultivators who had previously lived here must have had very high cultivation levels; for them, this height, while not exactly flat ground, should have been as easy as climbing stairs. Moreover, the stone wall was cut so smoothly that there were almost no footholds, making it virtually impossible to climb or jump up little by little. Without a teleportation array to reach the ground directly, one would likely have to find a way to carve out some pits for climbing.

But now everything was much simpler.

charlie Wade silently recited the incantation, and the next moment, he found himself on the ice sheet, surrounded by a golden light, as if he were inside a glass dome filled with golden light.

At this moment, another prompt appeared in charlie Wade's mind, instantly making him understand the purpose of the golden light. It turned out that this teleportation array was different from the nine teleportation points corresponding to the Bagua diagram. Those nine teleportation points were almost all hidden in caves deep in the mountains, and the caves were protected by arrays, so they wouldn't be seen by unsuspecting people just after being teleported there.

However, this teleportation array on the Antarctic ice sheet lacked the protection of a cave. Therefore, the golden light served as a protective mechanism. Within this light, neither the user nor the light itself could be seen from the outside; it acted as an isolation barrier. Once the danger was eliminated, one could simply step out of the golden light and enter the outside environment.

charlie Wade looked around and realized this was the place where he had fought Wu Bolin (Bick). There wasn't a soul in sight, not even a penguin, so there was no risk of exposure. He then stepped out of the golden light.

After exiting, charlie Wade looked back; everything had completely disappeared. However, he knew the teleportation array was still there. By simply standing in this spot and silently reciting the incantation, he could reach any of the remaining 17 teleportation arrays in the underground city.

Overjoyed, charlie Wade memorized the location and began his journey back to the Nordic research station, retracing his steps.

At this moment, at the Nordic research station, three women sat around a tea table by the window, their eyes constantly fixed on the outside.

Although Lin Wan'er (Alani) had brewed tea, none of the three, including herself, were in the mood to drink it.

Charlie Wade had been gone for several days, his fate still unknown. Lin Wan'er (Alani) wanted to call him via satellite phone, but she worried that he was in danger and that her call would reveal his location, so she could only wait patiently.

Yun Rugo and Song Ruyu were also very worried about Charlie Wade's solo journey deep into Antarctica, but like Lin Wan'er (Alani), they were relatively restrained, so none of them showed their concern too obviously.

Suddenly, Lin Wan'er (Alani)'s phone screen lit up—a news notification.

The research station had a Starlink receiver that operated 24 hours a day, and the network here was not much different from that of a modern city, so Lin Wan'er (Alani)'s phone received many notifications every day. However, her phone was always on silent and vibrated to avoid disturbing others' cultivation. When the screen flashed, she glanced at it curiously, then immediately picked up her phone in surprise and opened the notification.

Her interest in this news stemmed from its headline, which was related to Antarctica: "Lightning Spotted Deep in Antarctica, Scientists Say It's Unprecedented!"

A video news clip followed, with the host narrating: "Last night, Beijing time, American weather satellites detected dense lightning in an area near Antarctica. This has baffled scientists. Lightning is almost impossible in Antarctica during winter. Scientists say that lightning under these conditions is akin to a torrential downpour in -60 degree Celsius weather—an unprecedented and highly unusual phenomenon. However, scientists currently do not know the specific cause of the lightning."

Hearing this from her phone, Yun Rugo exclaimed, “Lightning?! That must be caused by Mr. Wade’s Thunder Order, right?!”

Lin Wan’er (Alani) nodded gravely, saying, “Besides Young Master, there’s no other possibility. Young Master must have experienced a fierce battle!” Song Ruyu asked nervously, “Ah?! Mr. Wade, you didn’t get into a fight with one of the three elders, did you? They are the second strongest members of the Breaking Qing Society after Sara. Although Mr. Wade’s cultivation is also very high, there should still be a big gap between him and the three elders.”

Lin Wan’er (Alani) thought of something and stood up as quickly as possible, blurting out in a panic, “Wait here for the young master. I’ll go back to my room first. It’s best not to call me unless it’s important!”

Yun Ruge and Song Ruyu looked at Lin Wan’er (Alani)’s expression with some strangeness. In their impression, Lin Wan’er (Alani) was a very calm and composed woman, almost like she wouldn’t change her expression even if Mount Tai collapsed in front of her. They didn’t know why she suddenly became so flustered at this moment and was in a hurry to go back to her room.

Yun Rugo, concerned, asked Lin Wan’er (Alani), “Miss Lin, are you alright?”

“I’m fine...” Lin Wan’er (Alani) replied uneasily, “I... I’m just a little tired.”

Actually, Lin Wan’er (Alani) was thinking that if Charlie Wade was about to encounter danger, he would most likely be teleported back by the ring her father had given her, and possibly completely naked. What if he were suddenly teleported back in front of Yun Rugo and Song Ruyu? Wouldn’t that be incredibly awkward?

However, Lin Wan’er (Alani) suddenly realized that although news is highly time-sensitive, unless it’s a live broadcast or on-site report, there is always a certain delay between the news and the actual event.

As the news just mentioned, the lightning that appeared in Antarctica was first captured by American weather satellites, then published by American media, and finally reprinted and reported by Chinese media. At least several hours had passed in between. The moment the lightning appeared must have been the moment Charlie Wade was fighting his enemy. This means that Charlie Wade and his opponent had been fighting for at least several hours, or even more than ten hours. Even if the two were evenly matched, it would not have taken this long to fight. Therefore, it is highly likely that the fight has already ended.

The important thing was that Charlie Wade hadn't been teleported back, which meant he must have won.

Thinking this, Lin Wan'er (Alani) suddenly breathed a sigh of relief.

She smiled awkwardly and said to Yun Rugo, "Never mind, I just had a sudden headache, it's fine now. I'll stay here and wait for the young master with you two."

Seeing that she seemed less flustered, Yun Rugo also breathed a sigh of relief and comforted her, "Miss Lin, there's no need to worry too much. Mr. Wade is a lucky man; he should be fine."

"Yes." Lin Wan'er (Alani) nodded gently and smiled, saying, "The young master will definitely return safely."

Meanwhile, at the headquarters of the Breaking the Qing Society.

Jadiel rushed to Sara's palace. After being granted an audience, he quickly entered the main hall and said nervously to Sara, "Your Majesty, something terrible has happened!"

Sara frowned and asked him, "What happened that you're so flustered?"

Jadiel handed a specially made mobile phone to Sara and respectfully said, "Your Majesty, please watch this video first." Sara took the phone with some skepticism and pressed play. The phone was playing the news report about lightning in the depths of Antarctica.

Sara frowned and said warily, "Don't even mention the depths of Antarctica. In winter, we don't even see lightning at sea. That godforsaken place is thousands of kilometers south of us; how could there be lightning there?"

Jadiel said anxiously, "Your Majesty, I feel there's something fishy about this. That lightning was definitely man-made, not naturally occurring. Considering the Grand Elder is currently in Antarctica, I fear this matter is related to him."

"Wu Bolin (Bick)?" Sara shook her head. "That shouldn't be the case. I know his cultivation methods perfectly well; they don't include techniques or magical artifacts that can create lightning. It's highly unlikely to be related to him."

At this point, Sara suddenly tensed up, muttering, "If it's not him, then it must be someone else. Could there be other cultivators on the Antarctic Continent right now?!"

Jadiel said nervously, "Your Majesty, that's exactly what I'm worried about. If there are other cultivators on the Antarctic Continent, and lightning suddenly appears, then perhaps they've already met with the Grand Elder and a conflict has already occurred. I wonder if the Grand Elder is safe right now..."

Sara became extremely anxious. Although she didn't know Wu Bolin (Bick)'s current situation, the recent string of misfortunes she and the entire Poqing Society had created a strong aura of negativity, giving her a sense that something terrible was about to happen.

She muttered to herself, "If he's already in danger, we're too far away to help him right now. He can only pray for his own good fortune!"
