Chapter 7971

charlie wade deeply agreed with Lin Wan'er (Alani)'s viewpoint.

The path of cultivation is inherently a model of extremely high individual resource consumption. It uses the most refined spiritual energy to infinitely enhance personal strength, which, from a macro perspective, is a tremendous waste.

This highly concentrated allocation of resources is equivalent to draining a planet capable of sustaining billions of people to feed only a few million or even fewer cultivators. This model can hardly create a true human civilization; it can only be a celebration for a small elite group.

Therefore, according to his and Lin Wan'er (Alani)'s speculation, it's very likely that before the formal formation of human civilization, a group of interstellar colonizing cultivators had already arrived on this land. Like locusts passing through, they exhausted Earth's cultivation resources before leaving without looking back.

The teleportation array built within the Four Directions Pagoda, frankly speaking, was a channel for their frantic plunder of Earth's resources. They dispatched countless worker-ant-like cultivators to frantically search for cultivation resources throughout the entire planet, depleting it to the point of Dharma decline before leaving without looking back to embark on the next journey.

Thinking of this, charlie wade asked Lin Wan'er (Alani), "Miss Lin, do you think they might have met with Earth's ape-men? When the ape-men had just learned to walk upright and use stones as tools, they already possessed the ability for interstellar migration. The scene of two species meeting tens or even millions of years ago is truly fantastical."

Lin Wan'er (Alani) nodded and said seriously, "The scene you described, young master, could very well have actually happened in history."

After saying that, Lin Wan'er (Alani) looked at charlie wade and said, "Moreover, I suddenly thought of another question."

charlie wade asked curiously, "What question? Please tell me, Miss Lin." Lin Wan'er (Alani) walked along, frowning as she murmured, "I'm wondering if some of those myths and legends that have been passed down for thousands of years were actually real? Almost every ancient civilization has some peculiar records, some in the form of murals, others in hieroglyphics. The content of these records is mostly about so-called miracles. Perhaps they overlapped with those cultivators in history."

charlie wade nodded and said, "That makes sense. Even the legends about dragons and some mythical beasts may not be just the imagination of the ancients. Perhaps these things really existed, but they came with those cultivators and left with them, so no one has seen them since, leaving only some records that are difficult for later generations to verify."

Lin Wan'er (Alani) smiled and said, "Young Master, if what we've been discussing were made public, wouldn't it completely change how billions of people see the world?"

"Definitely." charlie wade sighed, "There are so many things here that are beyond human comprehension. Who could have imagined that Earth, which humanity is so proud of, even a cosmic wonder, might just be a piece of junk that was ruined and carelessly discarded by another group of people?"

Lin Wan'er (Alani) also sighed, "And their method of interstellar migration is too unimaginable. Can they really achieve interstellar travel just by using teleportation arrays? Even if they come from the nearest star system, Proxima Centauri, that's still four light-years away. If they can really get there in the blink of an eye with a teleportation array, it would completely overturn humanity's understanding of the universe."

charlie wade smiled wryly, "Overturning our understanding might be secondary. The most important thing is that many people will be gripped by fear. When they don't have neighbors, they want to find one every day, but when they know that a neighbor could walk into their house in the blink of an eye..." Inside the room, his mood was completely different.

He then added self-deprecatingly, "Thinking about these native cultivators on Earth, they're truly pitiful. They basically just pick up scraps left behind and force themselves into the Dao, each one vainly trying to defy fate, transcend tribulations, and ascend to immortality. Resources have been plundered clean; how can the leftovers possibly support anyone's cultivation to that level?"

Lin Wan'er (Alani) noticed charlie wade's somewhat dejected mood. She knew it was a collapse of faith, or perhaps the bewilderment and disorientation of a frog jumping out of a well. Originally, he thought the sky was only as big as the well opening, and although the sky was bigger than himself, it was only limited. After all, the ratio between the sky and himself was perhaps one hundred to one, or at worst, one ten thousand to one. But after jumping out, he realized that the gap was perhaps one trillion to one, like the difference between a giant mountain and a grain of dust.

So, she gripped charlie wade's hand tightly and changed the subject, asking, "Young Master, how should we get from western Sichuan to Nanjing now? Neither of us has our identification documents with us, and our normal identities have already left the country for Argentina. If our identity information suddenly appears in the domestic transportation system, it will trigger an alert."

charlie wade thought for a moment and said, "I'll have Isaac Cameron send a private jet over, and see if we can pull some strings at the airport to board directly."

Lin Wan'er (Alani) shook her head and said, "Young Master, those who know we're going to Antarctica also know we can't suddenly return to China this season. Smart people know the ins and outs; a little thought will reveal something fishy. Only the most trusted person can handle this." "It's best not to inform anyone else," charlie wade agreed. "Miss Lin is right. What do you think, Miss Lin?"

Lin Wan'er (Alani) smiled and said, "Let's talk to Old Sun and Old Qiu. I watched them grow up. They even know the secret of my four hundred years of life. They won't be surprised by this, they won't overthink it, and they certainly won't leak it."

charlie wade smiled and said, "That's right. From that perspective, they are indeed the most reliable people."

Lin Wan'er (Alani) looked at charlie wade with her big eyes and said earnestly, "In my eyes, the only person I can trust in this world is you, Young Master. The others can only be ranked below you."

charlie wade smiled and nodded. In fact, Lin Wan'er (Alani) felt the same way in his heart.

After they made up their minds, Lin Wan'er (Alani) made a phone call to Sun Zhidong (Meir). Qiu Yingshan(Curtis), as a highly influential overseas Chinese, held considerable power and influence in Nanjing. However, across the entire Chinese mainland, Sun Zhidong (Meir) was far more influential.

Upon hearing from Lin Wan'er (Alani) that they were in western Sichuan, Sun Zhidong (Meir), without asking any questions, immediately began making arrangements for the two.

He first dispatched personnel from the nearest classified department to drive to the town at the entrance to Heming Mountain. Simultaneously, he arranged a private jet at the airport. The jet's operating company had deep connections and could easily bypass airport security and big data checks to transport charlie wade and Lin Wan'er (Alani) to Nanjing.

In Nanjing, Qiu Yingshan(Curtis) was also prepared. The car drove directly into the airport, and upon landing, they were immediately taken back to Zijin Villa.

With everything arranged by Lin Wan'er (Alani), the two began their trek from Heming Mountain.

As they emerged from the mountains, they encountered other hikers along the way. After leaving the mountains, they arrived at a small town at the foot of the mountain.

When they arrived in the town, two green SUVs with special license plates were already waiting. They didn't know charlie wade and Lin Wan'er (Alani)'s identities, only that they had two special guests who needed their escort to the airport tarmac. These security personnel were highly trained; after helping the two into the car, they didn't ask a single question or say a word more than necessary, directly taking them to the airport.

In the evening, an unremarkable-looking older model Gulfstream G500 took off from Chengdu Airport, heading east towards Nanjing.

Night fell at Jinling Airport.

After a smooth landing on the runway, the Gulfstream business jet proceeded directly to the designated hangar via the taxiway.

The hangar was highly secure, with no access for ordinary people. Even the ground crew had been evacuated. As the plane taxied into the hangar, two discreet black Hongqi sedans were already parked on one side. Qiu Yingshan(Curtis), along with his wife, Old Zhang, and two drivers, including the Qiu family's housekeeper, Sister Xian, waited outside the hangar. The plane came to a stop, the cabin door opened, and Charlie Wade and Lin Wan'er (Alani) disembarked one after the other. Qiu Yingshan(Curtis) and his wife, along with Old Zhang, immediately greeted them respectfully.

"Miss, Mr. Wade." The three bowed respectfully in greeting. Lin Wan'er (Alani) smiled and said, "Thank you all for your trouble, coming all this way to pick me up at your age."

Qiu Yingshan(Curtis) smiled respectfully and said, "It's no trouble at all to serve you, Miss. Besides, thanks to the opportunity Mr. Wade gave us, the three of us old folks are still in good health."

Lin Wan'er (Alani) chuckled and nodded slightly, saying, "Old Qiu, please tell Old Sun that the plane is on standby here. Mr. Wade and I may need to return to Chengdu by plane at any time." Qiu Yingshan(Curtis) nodded respectfully and said, "Yes, Miss. I'll contact Zhidong shortly. But you and Mr. Wade are leaving so soon after your return?"

"Yes," Lin Wan'er (Alani) nodded and said, "There are still some things we haven't finished."

Qiu Yingshan(Curtis) bowed and said, "Alright, let's go back to the manor then."

"Okay."

In the night, two Hongqi sedans came out of the airport and headed straight for Zijin Manor.

After arriving, Charlie Wade and Lin Wan'er (Alani) went to the top-floor villa of the manor. The Mother of Pu Tea had grown quite a bit since then, and now that it was the transition from spring to summer, it was even more lush and leafy, with its trunk as thick as an adult's arm.
