Chapter 8016

3-4 minutes

After ordering all the dishes for the evening in the kitchen, Steve didn't rush back to the private room.

He knew perfectly well that even someone as powerful as the second-in-command of a top-tier family couldn't even be considered a follower in front of charlie. charlie couldn't possibly have anything to discuss with his cheap grand-nephew Robert. Today's events were definitely not what they seemed; charlie wanted to discuss something with Robert's mixed-race girlfriend. So, he had to be sensible and not bring Robert along to disturb them.

Robert, unaware of the situation, saw that Steve was still unwilling to leave even after the food was ordered, and couldn't help but ask, "Grandpa, shouldn't we go back to the private room?"

"Not yet," Steve waved his hand, instructing him, "You wait here, I'm going to make a phone call."

Although Robert was surprised, he didn't dare to question him and could only nod in agreement.

Steve walked out of the kitchen, took out his phone, and called charlie. He respectfully asked, "Mr. wade, may I bring Robert over?"

charlie grunted and said, "Come on, I have something to tell you. But tell Robert to find something to do and not come in yet."

Steve replied without hesitation, "Okay, I'll send this kid to buy me something."

"Okay."

After hanging up respectfully, Steve went back and called Robert out.

Robert thought he could go back to the private room, but unexpectedly, after Steve called him out, he instructed him, "Robert, go to Chinatown and buy some roast goose."

Robert asked, completely bewildered, "What's roast goose?" Steve explained, "It's a type of Chinese cuisine. I was in China recently managing the family's Greater China business, and I got used to eating Chinese food there. I feel uncomfortable if I don't have it for a meal. Go and buy some more."

Robert felt extremely aggrieved.

He was, after all, a member of the Rothschild family. Steve could have simply asked the restaurant manager to do this, so why did he have to be ordered around? Was he there to eat with him or to run errands?

However, Robert also knew very well that Steve wasn't his grandfather. He could weakly protest against his own grandfather, but in front of Steve, he wouldn't dare utter a single word of dissent.

So he could only nod sheepishly and say, "Okay, Grandpa, I'll go right away."

Steve patted him on the shoulder and said with a smile, "Go ahead, I'll take you to China for some experience sometime. To be honest, you're the only one in your family that I like."

Robert stared at Steve in disbelief. Although Steve's words were a bit harsh, he felt inexplicably happy and also had an inexplicable sense of mission, only thinking about quickly buying the roast goose for his great-grandfather.

So Robert immediately said respectfully, "Thank you for your approval, Grandpa. Don't worry, I'll go to Chinatown right away!"

Steve smiled kindly and said, "Go ahead, we'll be waiting for you."

"Okay!"

Steve returned to the private room and saw charlie. He smiled and said, "Mr. charlie, you wanted to see me?"

charlie nodded, gestured for him to sit down beside him, and then asked, "By the way, Steve, there's something I might need your help with."

Steve immediately replied, "Oh, don't be so polite! It's my honor to serve you!"

Rachel was already numb to Steve's flattery. She quietly watched Steve's complete obedience to charlie, and she understood even more clearly that as long as she cooperated with charlie, charlie would definitely be able to get Steve to bring huge benefits to her family. These benefits weren't money, but rather the importance of the Qing Society, which would make the future life of her whole family much easier.

charlie then said to Steve, "I want international crude oil prices to surge in a short period of time, the sooner the better, ideally today!"

Steve wasn't surprised, but respectfully asked charlie, "How much do you want crude oil prices to rise?"

charlie said, "At least 10%!"

Steve breathed a sigh of relief and confidently smiled, "Oh... that's easy. Recently, we've been using the situation in the Strait of Hormuz to manipulate crude oil prices, causing them to fluctuate wildly. If we want to sell at high prices, we create tension there; if we want to buy at low prices, we promote peace talks. We sell a barrel of crude oil today, buy it tomorrow, and sell it again the day after. With the leverage of the futures market, after a few rounds, the capital doubles."

charlie smiled and said, "So blatant?"

"This is nothing," Steve said with a chuckle. "The President's family are all stock market gurus, aren't they? Ordinary people play the stock market by analyzing and predicting market trends, but top players don't care about that. Top players create market trends."

Steve continued, "Actually, the way the oil market works is very simple. We hardly participate in oil extraction and production. Apart from the Saudi royal family, most oil extraction is dirty and laborious work, and the profits are too slow. We mainly make money in the international futures market. And we don't make money from price fluctuations, but from creating them. If there are many long positions, we create some situations in the Middle East to short the market. If there are many short positions, we create market trends to go long. If there are too many short positions, we fight; if there are too many long positions, we negotiate. We repeatedly blow up the positions of retail investors, and the money from those blown positions goes into our pockets. Manipulating oil prices is like controlling the volume of a TV with a remote control for us. You just need to tell me when it will rise and when it will fall.”

charlie nodded and smiled, saying, “That’s good. Please arrange it as soon as possible tonight. I want to see results in the shortest possible time.”“No problem,” Steve said respectfully. “I’ll arrange it.”

charlie smiled and said, “Okay, that’s all for now. Call Robert back for dinner.”

Steve said awkwardly, “I just sent that kid to Chinatown to buy roast goose. He probably won’t be back for at least an hour.”

“An hour?” charlie smiled helplessly. “You’re using him as a go-between.”

Steve laughed. “Once I become the head of the family, his whole family will have to run errands for me. Otherwise, I have plenty of ways to curb their income.”

charlie nodded and casually said, “Then you and Miss Getty can wait for him here. My sister and I will be going now.”

Steve was stunned and asked, “Aren’t you going to eat?”

charlie shook his head and said, “No, I’m not eating. Arrange a plane to take us to Miami.”

The Getty family made their fortune in Miami, and the core members of the family and the base of their businesses are all in Miami. charlie deduced that once Rachel passed on the inside information about the impending surge in oil prices to the Left Army Governor’s Office, the Left Army Governor’s Office would definitely send someone to meet with the Getty family.

What I need to do is to wait in Miami before the other party makes any move!

Rachel Getty was surprised that charlie would leave so suddenly, while her unfortunate boyfriend was still busy running errands for Steve in Chinatown.

Her first reaction was that charlie was far too arrogant, completely disregarding everyone.

But then she thought, charlie had the right to be arrogant; he bossed Steve around, let alone Robert, that nobody from the Rothschild family.

Steve was already used to charlie's casualness, and upon hearing that charlie was leaving, he quickly and respectfully asked, "Won't you eat something before you go? That kid Robert probably won't be back for another half hour. If you don't want to deal with him, I'll just have the kitchen serve the food. You two eat first." charlie waved his hand and smiled, "No, let's get together another day. We're going to Harvard in a few days, and we can get together on the East Coast then."

Steve quickly smiled and said, "No problem, I'll wait for you on the East Coast."

charlie stood up and said to Steve and Rachel, "You can take your time later..." "Eat slowly, Rachel. Remember to give me enough time. This meal should end when I arrive in Miami."

Rachel naturally understood charlie's intention. The Left Army Commander's Mansion would definitely take her dinner with Steve very seriously. As soon as she returned to her quarters, they would inquire about the details immediately. If she revealed the impending surge in oil prices as charlie requested, they might immediately head to the Getty family. It was possible that the clerk would arrive before charlie, and they would miss each other.

The safest way was to wait until charlie arrived in Miami before returning.

Therefore, she immediately said respectfully, "Mr. wade, please rest assured, I await your news."

charlie then instructed Steve, "Talk to Robert more, preferably get him to drink a few more drinks until he's tipsy. In short, don't arouse his suspicion." Steve smiled and said, "Don't worry, I'll handle this little thing."

Putting charlie aside, Steve was definitely a man of action; his efficiency, awareness, and execution were impeccable.

He immediately arranged a private jet for Charlie, which took off for Miami in the shortest possible time. Meanwhile, a vehicle was already arranged at Miami airport for Charlie to use upon landing, allowing him to drive directly from the hangar.

All the Getty family's information was also gathered by Charlie on his way to the airport with Lin Wan'er.

The Getty family, as a long-established family, had once been very powerful, but in recent years, due to limited management skills, they had gradually declined. However, even a fallen giant is still a giant; the Getty family currently has at least tens of billions of dollars in assets, and their long-established oil industry brings them billions of dollars in profit annually.

In terms of net worth, they certainly can't compare to the billionaires of Silicon Valley's emerging industries; any prominent figure in Silicon Valley has a net worth higher than the entire Getty family.

However, the biggest difference between traditional manufacturing industries and emerging industries is that while the former may lack room for imagination and have lower price-to-earnings ratios, its advantage lies in the fact that every penny of its assets is real, resulting in relatively stable income.

It's like a flour mill owner with a net worth of ten million dollars versus a cryptocurrency tycoon with a net worth of one hundred million dollars; the former's business has extremely strong risk resistance, while the latter might wake up tomorrow with nothing.

The Getty family happens to be the former. Although they haven't had much opportunity to gain prominence in recent years and their influence has diminished, they are still living comfortably.

However, the leaders of the Getty family are not content with this mediocre state. They are eagerly seeking opportunities to elevate their family's status, and Rachel Getty has undoubtedly become their hope. After all, she is dating a direct descendant of the Rothschild family. If they were to marry, the Getty family would certainly rise to a higher level thanks to the Rothschild connection.

Originally, Getty's parents held a similar awkward position in the Getty family as Robert's branch in the Rothschild family, soon to become a collateral branch. However, with Rachel and Robert's relationship becoming public, their status within the family rose dramatically, showing a strong trend towards becoming heirs.

Although Rachel's mother was a scholar, she was also human and had her own ambitions. She not only hoped her scholarly branch would thrive in the Qing Dynasty, but also that her husband's branch would become increasingly powerful within the Getty family. This would elevate Rachel's status, giving her greater influence in both areas. If her contributions were sufficient, Rachel's next generation might no longer need to be scholars.

Because of this hope, when she learned that Rachel would be having dinner with Steve Rothschild that evening, she immediately reported this to the Left Army Commander's Office, and simultaneously informed the Getty family.

The Left Army Commander's Mansion was naturally overjoyed. The fact that one of their scholars had infiltrated the Rothschild family essentially meant that their scholars' penetration among ordinary people had reached its peak.

The Getty family was also thrilled. Before even being officially married into the family, they had already dined with the second-in-command of the Rothschild family! What would happen after they were officially married? It seemed the Getty family had a chance to take off!

David Getty, Getty's father, was at home, unable to contain his excitement. He was just waiting for his daughter to finish dinner with Steve so she could tell him everything that had happened that evening. Rachel's mother was also waiting for Rachel's message; usually, she would pass on things that weren't suitable for her husband to her through a message.

Also waiting for news was Wu Yongzhen, the Grand Commander of the Left Army Commander's Mansion.

When Wu Feiyan visited America last time, she had asked him to find a way to get the scholar into the Rothschild family.

At that time, although he had made some plans, they hadn't yet yielded results.

Now, finally, his time to shine in front of Wu Feiyan had come.

Just as all three parties were anxiously awaiting Rachel's feedback, Charlie and Lin Wan'er quietly arrived in Miami, the southern border of the United States, aboard a Rothschild family plane. Miami may not have a high profile in the United States, and its fame is far less than that of major cities like New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago. However, this place is actually America

's true luxury paradise. Unlike the top billionaires in New York and Los Angeles, who live in those cities to make money, Miami's wealthy mostly live a life of leisure.

Located in the southernmost part of the United States, on the coast, it is America's only tropical climate city. Compared to other parts of the US, it has virtually no four seasons, with an average annual temperature of around 25 degrees Celsius. This makes it the perfect choice for wealthy Americans to enjoy the sea, islands, and yachts. Therefore, its level of luxury consumption is like Hermès among America's top luxury brands.

How can this city be described precisely? Simply put: this place is equivalent to Sanya in China.

This city bears a striking resemblance to Sanya in China. Both are the only tropical coastal cities in their respective vast countries, the top choices for wealthy individuals to enjoy the sea, and hubs for the nation's top billionaires' extravagant spending. Therefore, their status and positioning within their respective countries are almost identical.

However, Miami's extravagance surpasses even that.

Moreover, its proximity to South America and the Caribbean means that enthusiastic Cuban immigrants can swim there with their swimming rings, and its proximity to Colombia, a major producer of illicit drugs, makes it a stronghold for major drug lords. Consequently, its level of chaos is among the highest in the United States.

Surprisingly, the current headquarters of the Left Army Governor's Office is located here.

This location was chosen for two reasons: firstly, its undeniably luxurious atmosphere, and secondly, its incredibly diverse and unpredictable environment.

Moreover, if you get into trouble here, you can run anywhere in any direction. Go west to Mexico, go east to the African continent, and go south to places like Cuba, Colombia, and Brazil, where the security situation is not ordinary. In countries with good security, a fugitive may have nowhere to hide, but in the magical South America, even an entire army can hide without leaving a trace.

Unlike the affluent areas of Beverly Hills and the Bay Area, Miami's top billionaires mostly live on artificial islands near the coastline rather than on the mainland. Some of these islands lack even bridges or roads for cars, requiring a helicopter or yacht to reach their homes.

The Getty family's mansion is located on one of Miami's most expensive islands, where property prices are among the highest in the US, far exceeding those in Manhattan, Beverly Hills, and Hawaii.

The Getty family, with their background in manufacturing, are very image-conscious. Their mansion occupies almost a third of the island, a multi-mansion estate located about a mile from the coastline. A connecting mansion on the coast serves as a transit point; vehicles are parked there, and to return home, one must drive to the transit point and then transfer to a helicopter or yacht.

After arriving at the coastline and understanding the layout, charlie wade planned to quietly travel alone to the Getty family's island to await the arrival of the Qing Dynasty's deputy.

To reach the island first, he couldn't take a yacht or helicopter. With his strength, he could reach it in minutes by walking on water, and even taking Lin Wan'er wouldn't be a problem. The real trouble was how to settle Lin Wan'er after they arrived.

Based on the experience he gained from Song Ruyu, the deputy commander might not necessarily be a member of the Wu family, but he was likely a cultivator. He wasn't afraid of being discovered alone, but with Lin Wan'er, the situation would become much more complicated.

charlie wade's plan was to secretly monitor the deputy commander of the Po Qing Society if he encountered him tonight, and then trace the clues to find the location of the Left Army Governor's Office.

If he could figure out the personnel structure of the entire Left Army Governor's Office, that would be even better.

Therefore, he needed to settle Lin Wan'er first before setting off.

So, Charlie Wade said to Lin Wan'er, "Miss Lin, how about I have Steve arrange a safe place for you to rest for a while? I'll go to the Getty family myself, and I'll come find you after I'm done."

Lin Wan'er knew she couldn't go with Charlie Wade, so she smiled and nodded, saying, "This servant will follow your arrangements, young master." Charlie Wade nodded and immediately called Steve.

Once the call connected, he asked Steve, "Hey Steve, what are you doing?"

Steve quickly lowered his voice and said, "Mr. Wade, I'm just chatting with that bastard Robert and his girlfriend. I'm waiting for your next instructions."

Charlie Wade hummed in agreement and said, "Thank you for your hard work. There are two more things. One is to arrange a completely safe place for Miss Lin to stay temporarily in Miami. It would be best if someone could come directly to the dock to pick her up. The other is that after Miss Lin is picked up, you can let Robert and his girlfriend go back first."

Steve immediately said respectfully, "No problem, Mr. Wade. We have many businesses and subordinates in Miami. I'll arrange for someone to settle Miss Lin in properly right away!"

Ten minutes later, a luxury yacht docked at the largest berth at the dock. Steve called Charlie Wade to tell him that this yacht was the one he had arranged to pick up Lin Wan'er. The Rothschild family would take Lin Wan'er to their island, where there was a professional security team, and her safety was absolutely guaranteed.

After seeing Lin Wan'er off on the yacht, Charlie Wade waded across the sea in the night, heading straight for the Getty family's estate.

Meanwhile, Rachel Getty and Robert drove back to Stanford.

On the way back, Robert said with a puzzled look, "I've been thinking about it all night, and I still can't figure out why my great-grandfather invited me to dinner, or what the background of that brother and sister surnamed Chen is."
