The Breaking Point of Love

#Chapter 571 - Read The Breaking Point of Love Chapter 571

---- Chapter 571 Both Trevor and Celeste had brought food. When Jordyn saw the snacks that Celeste made-the ones she loved but hadn't eaten in a long time-she lit up with surprise. "Mom, you even prepared snacks just for me!" Celeste actually hadn't made them for Jordyn. It was Betty who had insisted she do it. Not wanting to be nagged or worried over, she simply made them. Seeing Jordyn so excited now, Celeste didn't explain anything. Just then, Trevor also placed two plates of snacks in front of her. "Samantha said you used to like these, so I asked her to make some.

Want to try?" He assumed Samantha was good at making these snacks- especially the spinach ravioli with that special flavor that Celeste used to love, the kind one couldn't find anywhere outside. And ever since she'd moved out of his place, she hadn't eaten them again. ---- Looking at the familiar food laid out before her, Celeste suddenly felt as if she had slipped back into the past-back to those days when she stayed home waiting for Trevor to return. She turned her face away and said quietly, "Thanks. I'll eat if I feel like it." Trevor looked at her, paused, and didn't push further.

After nibbling a bit, Jordyn noticed someone flying a kite and instantly wanted to try it too. She tugged Trevor away to buy kites, and soon they returned. Except that they each held one in hand. When Jordyn looked over, Trevor handed the blue butterfly kite to Celeste. Celeste instinctively pushed it back. "No need, I-" "Mom, Dad bought this one especially for you! Flying kites is really fun, you should try it!" Jordyn chirped, pushing the kite into Celeste's hands.

Then she asked, "Mom, do you know how to fly a kite?" Celeste wasn't sure what Jordyn meant by "Dad bought it especially for you," but she answered, "I probably know how." ---- Jordyn had loved kites when she was young. Back when Trevor was still distant from Jordyn, Celeste had taken her out to fly kites several times during their outings. 7 But Jordyn had been so little then. She had probably forgotten all of it. Celeste actually wasn't in the mood to fly anything. She accepted the kite Jordyn shoved at her but set it aside.

Meanwhile, Trevor guided Jordyn step-by-step, and they successfully got the kite into the air on the first try. 7 Holding the string, Jordyn's pretty little face never stopped smiling. Trevor stood where he was, watching her with a gentle, lingering gaze. Seeing this, a warm sense of comfort rose quietly in Celeste's chest. No matter what had happened in the past, no matter what lay between her and Trevor, at least he truly loved Jordyn now. With a father who cared for her this much, Jordyn would surely grow up happy.

---- Just as that thought settled, she suddenly noticed Trevor looking her way at some point. Celeste met his gaze. She was about to look away when he glanced at the kite she had placed aside and said, "Are you not flying the kite?" Celeste replied lightly, "I'm not interested." 2 Hearing that, Trevor didn't push further. After a moment, his attention shifted back to Jordyn. The campsite was big and rather crowded. Since they hadn't brought any helpers, when Jordyn ran a little farther off, Trevor simply followed her.

Celeste stayed seated, unmoving, watching the father and daughter as their figures gradually drifted into the distance. 2

---- Chapter 572 Celeste withdrew her gaze after some time and was lowering her head to check her phone while nibbling her snack slowly when a young man suddenly walked over. "Hi, excuse me... Could I get your number?" Celeste looked up and replied calmly, "Sorry, it's not a good idea. 1 The man paused, then asked, "Is it because you already have a boyfriend?" Celeste didn't want to continue this conversation. She frowned slightly, just about to reject him outright, when Trevor and Jordyn returned. "Mom!" Jordyn called out happily.

Celeste answered softly, "Mm." The young man heard Jordyn call her "Mom" and saw her throw herself into Celeste's arms. Then he glanced at Trevor. With his striking looks and composed presence, Trevor was clearly not an ordinary man. And Jordyn looked very much like him... ---- Realization dawned on the young man. He quickly muttered, " * Sorry," and walked away. 3 Jordyn looked at Celeste curiously. "Mom, who was that man?" "Someone I don't know." Trevor watched all of this without a word.

After putting away the kite, he finally asked, "Let's have a barbecue later?" It was obviously directed at Celeste. So, she responded lightly, " Sure." The ingredients had already been prepped in advance, so starting their own barbecue wasn't troublesome. During the meal, Trevor was mostly focused on tending to Jordyn's needs. Jordyn loved fish. After tasting it and finding it nice, she said to Celeste, "Mom, this fish is really good. You should try it!" Before Celeste could reply, Trevor had already put some onto her plate. 1 Celeste paused. "...

Thanks." "No problem." ---- After that, Trevor frequently added food to her plate. 2 But it all appeared very natural-more like part of putting new ingredients onto the grill-so Celeste didn't refuse. Most of the food they'd brought were things she and Jordyn liked, and all the ingredients were top-grade. To be honest, Celeste found herself enjoying the barbecue quite a lot. After eating, Trevor continued taking care of Jordyn. Washing her hands, taking her to the restroom, explaining different bugs and plants she liked... Celeste only needed to help occasionally, so it wasn't tiring for her.

Between her and Trevor, words were scarce. Around two in the afternoon, Jordyn got tired and quickly fell asleep. Trevor carried her back into the tent. After tucking her in, he looked toward Celeste standing outside the tent. "Not going to rest a bit?" Before she could answer, he added, "You should get some rest." Then he stood up and stepped out of the tent, giving her space, ---- and went to sit under the shade umbrella. Celeste stood there, glanced at him. Just then, he also looked her way. Before she spoke, he said, "You should stay with her for a while.

If you suddenly leave and she wakes up without seeing you, she'll be sad." 7 Celeste paused. She hadn't said anything yet, but he already knew exactly what she had been thinking. As she was processing this, Jordyn suddenly murmured "Mom..." in her sleep. 2 Celeste froze for a second. Before she could react, Jordyn suddenly opened her eyes- half awake- and reached toward her sleepily with her hands. "Mom, sleep with me..." 8

---- Chapter 573 Celeste had no choice but to lie down beside her. The campsite wasn't exactly quiet, but it wasn't noisy either. Holding the peacefully sleeping Jordyn in her arms, Celeste drifted off without realizing it. She didn't know how long she'd slept. When she woke, Jordyn was still asleep. She shifted slightly and turned her head. Trevor was still sitting under the shade umbrella, reading with his head lowered. He probably heard the movement, because he looked up. "Awake?" Celeste nodded silently. At that moment, Jordyn woke up as well.

She clung to her for a moment before she was willing to get up. But after washing her face, the lingering sleepiness vanished, and she was soon lively again- dragging Celeste around the campsite. When she saw people taking photos, Jordyn wanted to take ---- pictures too. So she ran back and said to Trevor, "Dad, help me take pictures with Mom!" Trevor put his book down. "Okay." Celeste was tugged around by Jordyn- sitting, standing, posing- and the photo session lasted quite a while. Trevor never once complained and fulfilled every one of Jordyn's requests.

But he only took photos of the two of them. Even once Jordyn had had enough and no longer wanted pictures, he didn't suggest taking a family photo of all three. 1 That afternoon, Celeste stayed with Jordyn until after five. Then they packed up, left the campsite, and each returned home. The next morning, Celeste left the Rodriguez residence early and returned to YodaVision. After giving some work instructions, she went on behalf of YodaVision to attend the city government's enterprise representatives meeting.

She arrived a bit late, though perhaps it was simply bad luck- because the moment she stepped out of the car, she ran into Wynn. ---- Wynn's expression instantly turned cold when she saw her. 1 Celeste's gaze chilled as well. She didn't acknowledge her and simply walked past her, intending to head inside. At that moment, Jorge's car pulled in. The moment he entered the venue area, he sensed the tense atmosphere between the two women. He greeted Wynn. "Ms. Locket." Wynn turned. "Mr. Robinson." Celeste saw Jorge but did not greet him. She walked straight into the building.

Wynn, however, stopped and waited for him. After parking, Jorge looked at her with a faint smile. "I didn't expect you to attend today." He knew InnovaTech had received the invitation as well, but he wasn't sure whether she would actually come. "I happened to have time, so I came." + Jorge smiled at that, then hesitated slightly before saying, "Ms. Locket, today... is your birthday, isn't it? Happy birthday." ---- Wynn didn't ask how he knew. She simply smiled. "Thank you." Jorge had never forgotten her birthday. As the date approached, he had thought about getting her a gift.

But he didn't have the proper identity or position to give her one. In the end, he prepared nothing. However... He looked at Wynn and began, "Ms. Locket, you-" But right as the words reached his lips, he suddenly faltered. Wynn frowned slightly. "What is it?" Jorge had recalled a piece of news he'd heard days ago about Trevor spending more than four billion dollars to buy a diamond. He assumed the diamond must have been for Wynn. But-

---- Chapter 574 When Celeste stepped into the conference hall, the first person she saw was Beck. And his seat just happened to be right beside hers. When he saw her, Beck smiled. "Morning." Celeste nodded. "Morning." "I watched your press conference the other day too. Congratulations." "Thank you." Just then, Wynn and Jorge also walked into the hall.

Beck, of course, knew today was Wynn's birthday-he and Miles had already wished her a happy birthday in the group chat right after midnight But now that she was here in person, and Wynn had also seen him, he stood up and said, "Happy birthday." Compared to the past, Wynn felt that this wish from Beck carried much less sincerity, and more of a polite, obligatory tone. She glanced at Celeste sitting next to him, and her reply was just as cold. "Thank you." ---- Then, in the same tone, she added, "The meeting's about to start. I'll go sit over there." Beck nodded.

"Alright." He then gave Jorge a small nod as a greeting. Jorge's seat was also in the front row, but not as central. Seeing everyone seated in the first row, while her own seat was... Wynn checked and found hers was all the way in the second-to- last row. Her steps paused for a moment, but soon she composed herself and walked calmly to her seat. 4 The meeting began quickly. Throughout the meeting, YodaVision was repeatedly praised by the government, stealing the spotlight once again. Hearing YodaVision mentioned over and over, the business representatives around Wynn were filled with envy.

"YodaVision is incredible. They're all so young, and they've already achieved things we couldn't reach even in a lifetime Honestly, comparing yourself to others is just torture."

"Exactly." Listening to them, Wynn looked toward where Celeste was ---- seated, but all she saw were rows of people's backs- completely blocking her view. 1 It felt like Celeste had pulled far, far ahead of her. 2 They weren't even in the same league anymore. 2 And if they were talking purely about career achievements, that was the truth. After all, Celeste's real identity was a major shareholder of YodaVision.

Her future was obviously limitless. As for herself... 1 Wynn looked at the people in the front row and compared to the people around her, the difference in personal achievement and status was painfully obvious. "Ms. Locket? Are you alright?" Jorge's voice snapped her out of her thoughts. The meeting was apparently already over. She returned to herself and shook her head. "I'm fine." Then, with her usual calm, she asked, "Mr. Robinson, did you need something?" "No, just... wanted to say hi since we rarely run into each other." ---- They seldom ran into each other.

So, since they met today, Jorge naturally hoped to speak to her a little more Besides, Trevor had prepared an insanely expensive diamond. If he guessed correctly, Trevor was planning to propose to Wynn tonight. 2 It meant they were getting married soon. Thinking of that, he couldn't hold back and asked, "It's your birthday today. Since we bumped into each other, do you have plans later? If not, let me treat you to dinner?" Wynn smiled slightly. "Thank you, Mr.

Robinson, but I already have plans." "No problem, next time then." As he spoke, he noticed Wynn glancing toward the front, and then he realised she was looking at Beck and Celeste. They were chatting with the officials who had attended the meeting. After a moment, their conversation finished, and the two of them left the hall together. Seeing this, Jorge frowned. ---- Weren't Beck and Wynn on pretty good terms? Then why did Beck not even stop by to say a quick word and instead leave immediately when they ran into each other here? And also...

Wasn't Beck being a little too attentive toward Celeste? 4

---- Chapter 575 When Jorge thought of the seemingly distant Beck, he looked at Wynn and was just about to say something when her phone suddenly rang. Wynn apologized to him, then picked up the call. "Hello?" It was Linda. She sounded extremely excited. "Wynn! We just heard that Trev spent over four billion buying a diamond a few days ago! Is he planning to use that diamond to propose to you tonight on your birthday?" 2 Wynn froze, her heart skipping a beat. Her steps stopped. 1 Seeing her expression change, Jorge immediately asked with concern, "What's wrong?"

Did something happen?" "It's nothing." Wynn came back to herself, though her heart was still racing from what Linda said. Then, she asked Linda on the phone, "When... When did this happen? Linda, how did you find out?" "We just heard it too! When Trev bought the diamond, someone I know happened to be there. It's over four billion! A diamond at that level is basically priceless! Wynn, Trev actually spent that ---- much money to propose to you- he treats you so well!" Linda said, still thrilled.

1 Before Wynn could speak, Lilian, who received the news later than the others and saw Linda already calling her cousin, frowned. "Linda, why did you tell Wynn directly? If you say it now, how will there be any surprises tonight?" 4 Only then did Linda realize, and she immediately regretted it. " Sorry, Wynn, I... I just got too excited. I didn't think-" _ Lilian said, "Alright. I just mentioned it in passing. Wynn probably won't mind anyway." What's said was said; apologizing now was meaningless. And truly, Lilian didn't intend to scold her too much.

After all, with how extravagant this gift was- and with Trevor choosing to propose on Wynn's birthday- his sincerity was obvious. Even if Wynn found out early, it wouldn't lessen the joy of the proposal at all. 4 If anything, knowing beforehand would probably make her look forward to tonight even more. Linda asked, "Wynn, really?" "Mm, I don't mind," Wynn replied. If tonight, during her birthday celebration, Trevor suddenly ---- proposed, she would've been overwhelmed with joy. She would probably be shocked speechless because she never imagined Trevor would propose tonight.

After all, with Celeste dazzling him again in the AI world recently, he'd been paying more attention to her. But then again, even though he was affected by Celeste for a while, he still took the initiative to contact her to discuss divorce. ' Thinking about that, Wynn suddenly felt... Maybe it was completely logical for him to propose now. 3 So yes- even though Linda spoiled the surprise a bit by telling her early, it didn't actually diminish her joy or anticipation. Neither the Lockets nor the Shaws expected Trevor to propose this soon. * Especially since he was not officially divorced yet.

+ But with only half a month left before the divorce was finalized, and considering how long he and Wynn had been waiting... Even though the divorce wasn't done yet, proposing to her on her birthday felt completely normal.
