

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

---- Chapter 576

After hanging up, Wynn exchanged a few polite words with Jorge, then turned and got into her car to leave. For the rest of the afternoon, the Lockets and the Shaws were in a state of excitement and joy. To be honest, Wynn was too. Even if she outwardly looked calm and composed. Around five in the evening, Wynn's phone buzzed. Everyone's attention instantly turned to her. After she read the message, Linda quickly asked, "Trev is coming to pick you up?" "No, He just texted to ask if I need someone to pick me up," Wynn said "Oh...

I see." Even though Trevor didn't personally come, neither Wynn nor the Lockets nor the Shaws thought much of it. After all, surprises were best delivered in seemingly ordinary moments. Wynn replied to the message, and at 6:00 pm, with everyone ---- watching her expectantly, she left the house and headed to the restaurant Trevor had booked. When she arrived, she hadn't even entered the private room yet when she saw Jordyn happily pacing outside the door, clearly waiting for her. 1 As soon as she saw Wynn, she ran toward her excitedly. "Wynn!" Wynn smiled and reached out to hug her.

"Slow down." Jordyn nodded eagerly. "I know!" Then she handed over the gift box she was holding. "Happy birthday!" Wynn accepted it. "Thank you, Jo." Worried about letting Jordyn stand outside alone, Trevor walked out of the private room as well. When he saw Wynn, he said, " You're here." "Mm." Thinking about the birthday surprise he'd prepared, she couldn't help feeling a little nervous. Just then, Miles also stepped out. "You're here. Come in quickly." Wynn held Jordyn's hand and entered the room, only to see that Beck was there too.

---- Yesterday in the group chat, Miles had mentioned they'd booked a private room to celebrate her birthday. Beck had wished her a happy birthday earlier, so she'd assumed he'd find some excuse not to come. She didn't expect- But today was Trevor's proposal day. As one of his closest friends, Beck still had to show up tonight to witness Trevor's big moment, even though he had developed feelings for Celeste and was keeping his distance. When he looked over, she simply nodded at him Miles seemed completely oblivious to the tension and distance between them.

The moment she came in, he handed her a gift. "Just a small gift -happy birthday." "Thank you." Then Trevor handed her the gift he'd prepared. "Happy birthday." Wynn paused for a moment, then smiled, "Thank you." Beck gave his gift next, and she accepted it as well. After everyone had given their gifts, they sat down and ordered ---- food. Once the dishes arrived, they ate and chatted about normal everyday topics. Wynn kept her attention sharp, but she didn't notice any special cues. At first, she didn't mind. 1 Surprises usually come at the very end.

But as the meal was about to finish, and there was still no sign, her heart started to stir, her smile stiffened, and even the food stopped tasting like anything. ©

Chapter 577

Maybe because he noticed Wynn was distracted, Trevor asked, "What's wrong?"

Wynn smiled, 'Nothing.'

He didn't press further. 1

Miles and Beck hadn't noticed anything off and continued their earlier conversation. 2

After dinner, as time ticked on and it became clear that everyone was preparing to leave, the surprise she'd been waiting for still hadn't appeared.

Wynn's heart kept sinking, though she still held onto a sliver of hope. But once Trevor called the waiter over to settle the bill, and it was obvious that they were truly leaving the restaurant with no other arrangements afterward, her sinking heart finally turned

She stood frozen in place.

This time, it was Jordyn who noticed something was wrong first.

Before Wynn could respond, Trevor turned around after hearing Jordyn's voice, concern in his eyes. Her heart eased a little instantly.

Back home, everyone had simply assumed he bought an astronomical diamond to propose tonight, but no one had actually heard anything confirming that he would propose tonight. +

They had all read too much into it.

And even though he hadn't proposed today like everyone imagined, it didn't mean their relationship had changed. 5

Trevor asked, "Are you okay?"

Wynn snapped back. "I'm fine."

Once she thought it through, she felt much better. Though it didn't stop that faint disappointment from lingering.

Still... He had taken the initiative to ask Celeste for a divorce again, which meant he still cared about her the same way.

They had time. She could wait. 7

Jordyn had attended a bunch of classes these past two days and was clearly tired.

It was already after eight in the evening. Once they stepped out of the restaurant, she yawned, raising her arms toward Trevor. He picked her up immediately.

"Tired?" 1

"Mm. Daddy, let's go home and sleep."

"Okay."

Watching the father and daughter interaction, Wynn's gaze dimmed a little.

Even if he didn't propose tonight, it was still her birthday. Other than the dinner, she naturally hoped the rest of the evening would be just the two of them.

After all, that was how they used to spend her birthdays.

And Miles and Beck knew this too—that was why they ended dinner early, deliberately giving the couple more time alone. 1

Maybe he noticed her expression, because Trevor didn't want her to feel disappointed. He said, "I'll call you later." «

It meant he'd take Jordyn home first, then go to find her. 6

Wynn's mood instantly brightened. She smiled. "Okay."

Everyone then went their separate ways.

Wynn had barely gotten into the car when her phone buzzed

It was another message from Linda.

"Wynn, how is it going now?" 3

Wynn glanced at it and set the phone aside without replying.

When Linda first told her about the diamond and the proposal, she had been overwhelmed with excitement and surprise. She'd been anticipating tonight's "surprise" all day.

Even though she wasn't in a terrible mood now, if Trevor had really proposed tonight, she'd—

If Linda hadn't mentioned it again, it would've been fine. But now that she brought it up, the emotional gap hit her hard. 2

And it wasn't just Linda waiting for an update.

The rest of the Lockets and the Shaws were waiting too.

Seeing that Linda was the one probing for news, they all turned toward her.

When she saw Wynn hadn't replied, she smiled meaningfully. "

Wynn hasn't responded... Probably because she's busy—" ©

577

Maybe because he noticed Wynn was distracted, Trevor asked, "

What's wrong?"

Wynn smiled, 'Nothing.'

He didn't press further. 1

Miles and Beck hadn't noticed anything off and continued their earlier conversation. 2

After dinner, as time ticked on and it became clear that everyone was preparing to leave, the surprise she'd been waiting for still hadn't appeared.

Wynn's heart kept sinking, though she still held onto a sliver of hope. But once Trevor called the waiter over to settle the bill, and it was obvious that they were truly leaving the restaurant with no other arrangements afterward, her sinking heart finally turned to ice. She stood frozen in place.

This time, it was Jordyn who noticed something was wrong first. Before Wynn could respond, Trevor turned around after hearing Jordyn's voice, concern in his eyes. Her heart eased a little instantly.

Back home, everyone had simply assumed he bought an astronomical diamond to propose tonight, but no one had actually heard anything confirming that he would propose tonight. +

They had all read too much into it.

And even though he hadn't proposed today like everyone imagined, it didn't mean their relationship had changed. 5

Trevor asked, "Are you okay?"

Wynn snapped back. "I'm fine."

Once she thought it through, she felt much better. Though it didn't stop that faint disappointment from lingering.

Still... He had taken the initiative to ask Celeste for a divorce again, which meant he still cared about her the same way.

They had time. She could wait. 7

Jordyn had attended a bunch of classes these past two days and was clearly tired.

It was already after eight in the evening. Once they stepped out of the restaurant, she yawned, raising her arms toward Trevor.

He picked her up immediately.

"Tired?" 1

"Mm. Daddy, let's go home and sleep."

"Okay."

Watching the father and daughter interaction, Wynn's gaze dimmed a little.

Even if he didn't propose tonight, it was still her birthday. Other than the dinner, she naturally hoped the rest of the evening would be just the two of them.

After all, that was how they used to spend her birthdays.

And Miles and Beck knew this too—that was why they ended dinner early, deliberately giving the couple more time alone. 1

Maybe he noticed her expression, because Trevor didn't want her to feel disappointed. He said, "I'll call you later." «

It meant he'd take Jordyn home first, then go to find her. 6

Wynn's mood instantly brightened. She smiled. "Okay."

Everyone then went their separate ways.

Wynn had barely gotten into the car when her phone buzzed

It was another message from Linda.

"Wynn, how is it going now?" 3

Wynn glanced at it and set the phone aside without replying.

When Linda first told her about the diamond and the proposal, she had been overwhelmed with excitement and surprise. She'd been anticipating tonight's "surprise" all day.

Even though she wasn't in a terrible mood now, if Trevor had really proposed tonight, she'd—

If Linda hadn't mentioned it again, it would've been fine. But now that she brought it up, the emotional gap hit her hard. 2

And it wasn't just Linda waiting for an update.

The rest of the Lockets and the Shaws were waiting too.

Seeing that Linda was the one probing for news, they all turned toward her.

When she saw Wynn hadn't replied, she smiled meaningfully. "

Wynn hasn't responded... Probably because she's busy—" ©

The Novel will be updated on this website. Come back and continue reading tomorrow, everyone!

