

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

Chapter 591

Hearing her daughter's words, Ruby didn't think much of it and immediately urged, "If you have something to say, just say it. Everyone's here. We can all help you figure it out."

Linda hesitated for a moment, but finally forced herself to speak.

"It's... It's about the diamond. You know, the one Trev bought for over four billion dollars?"

"A while ago, I overheard that brat Jordyn saying... that Trev actually gave it to Celeste as her birthday present... shortly after her birthday."

Everyone present, including Ruby, had their minds fixated on the divorce matter. None of them expected Linda to bring up something they considered irrelevant.

But when she finished speaking, the room fell silent. All of them stared at her, momentarily unsure if they'd heard correctly.

When the realization sank in, Ruby immediately frowned and snapped loudly, "How is that possible? Linda, don't spout nonsense!"

Linda panicked. "I'm not making it up! It's true! Why-why would I joke about something like this?"

In fact, the moment she spoke and they processed her words, everyone already understood that it had to be true.

It was just that...

They never expected the "thing" she wanted to say to be this significant.

Trevor actually bought that diamond for Celeste?

Lennox reacted quickly and said, "Even if he did buy it for her, it doesn't necessarily mean anything. Maybe they exchanged something. Maybe it was some sort of deal?"

Ruby bobbed her head urgently. "Yes, exactly!"

The others had the same initial thought.

But then memories surfaced.

The scenes of Trevor and Celeste together recently...

In the past, everyone said Trevor despised Celeste. Even for Jordyn and Martha's sake, he had been unwilling to spend much time with her.

But recently, whenever they saw the two together, Trevor's attitude toward her was gentle, proactive even.

And it was Celeste who seemed distant.

Not only that, he'd been seeing her quite often lately.

He actively helped find doctors for her grandmother, and days ago, he publicly picked her up in his arms, sent her upstairs to her hotel room, and didn't come down for a long time.

None of that would've been possible before.

And more importantly, even if he were that

, he shouldn't be so busy

he couldn't spare half a day to divorce

This thought had crossed their minds earlier.

But in their hearts, they firmly believed Trevor was eager to divorce Celeste and marry Wynn, so they didn't think too deeply about it.

But what if Trevor didn't feel the same as before?

What if he was wavering? What if he wasn't sure he wanted to divorce Celeste anymore?

If that were true, then his conveniently timed business trips during each decision window might not be a coincidence at all.

They might be... deliberate.

Lennox had thought of this too.

Something flashed in her eyes as she suddenly asked Linda, "You said Jordyn told you this? Does... Does Wynn know?"

Normally, Linda could only hear things from Jordyn through Wynn.

If Linda knew, then Wynn surely would.

Linda answered honestly, "She knows. But she didn't seem to care much about it."

Everyone froze.

Lilian's hand tightened sharply around her cup.

Lennox didn't notice the change in Lilian's expression.

Hearing Linda's answer, her face darkened slightly as she asked again, "And how long have you known about this?"

"Since the day after we found out Trev got a doctor for Celeste's grandmother."

Chapter 592

Wynn had actually known about the diamond for a long time.

Yet she had never mentioned it to the family.

If she didn't bring it up, was it really, as Linda said, because she hadn't taken it to heart?

If Wynn had asked Trevor about it after learning and confirmed that there was a valid reason behind his giving Celeste the diamond, then there truly would have been no need to dwell on it.

In that case, it would make sense that she hadn't proactively told them about it.

But that diamond was worth over four billion dollars. It was worth more than everything InnovaTech and Trevor had ever given Wynn combined.

Knowing full well how much everyone cared about where that diamond had gone, yet staying completely silent after finding out it had been given to someone else—no matter how one looked at it, that was hard to justify.

If Wynn believed her relationship with Trevor was solid enough and that she was confident that after they married, she would receive even more, to the point where a single diamond didn't matter, then not mentioning it could be understandable.

But if her silence was deliberate concealment...

Ruby had thought of this as well.

Seeing that the others' expressions didn't look good, she quickly said, "I still think Trevor and Wynn's relationship is very good. Let's not overthink it. Besides, if there's anything we want to know, we can just ask Wynn directly when she comes back, can't we?"

Linda immediately chimed in, "That's right, once Wynn comes back-"

Before she could finish, Wynn happened to push the door open and walk in.

Everyone turned to look at her at the same time.

Lilian looked at her, a flicker passing through her eyes. She was the first to stand up and said gently, "Wynn, you're back? Are you hungry? The kitchen..."

Almost at the same time, Linda blurted out, "Wynn, I just told everyone about how Trev gave that four-billion-dollar diamond to Celeste."

Wynn's steps abruptly halted.

Fortunately, she reacted quickly enough, and her emotions didn't show too clearly.

She gave a calm hum as acknowledgement.

Looking at Wynn, everyone suddenly didn't know how to continue the conversation.

Still, given how serious the matter was, Ruby couldn't hold back. With an awkward smile, she said, "When Linda mentioned it just now, we didntreally believe it So What she sard was true?"

Before Wynn could respond, she continued, "That diamond was so expensive! How could Trevor just give it to Celeste? What did Trevor say about it?"

Wynn lowered her gaze and didn't answer.

Lilian glanced at Ruby and said, "Alright, Ruby. Let Wynn rest first and have some water."

"Oh, right, right," Ruby hurriedly said.

But at that moment, Wynn spoke up, "I didn't ask Trevor about it. And Trevor didn't take the initiative to tell me either."

Lennox and Patricia were both shrewd people.

In fact, the moment Wynn hadn't answered right away after coming in, they already had a vague sense of what was going on.

Even so, hearing Wynn admit it herself still stunned them. They stared at her in disbelief.

For a moment, no one spoke.

Because that sentence was an admission that Wynn had likely already noticed that Trevor's attitude toward Celeste had changed and that in the face of this change, she was...

Noticing everyone's gaze, Wynn said nothing.

It wasn't that she didn't want to keep hiding it. Rather, she knew exactly how sharp her family was when it came to such matters.

And more than that, she knew that once the seed of suspicion had been planted, given Trevor's current initiative toward Celeste and his repeated avoidance of the divorce, even if she wanted to hide it she wouldn't be able to for much longer.

Celeste knew nothing about what happened with Wynn.

Recently, Celeste had been in a fairly good mood because Betty's condition was getting better, and she had basically recovered.

However, more than half of the divorce decision period between her and Trevor had already passed.

Yet Trevor still hadn't returned from his business trip.

A few days earlier, Jordyn had mentioned that Trevor was still very busy and still couldn't determine when he would be able to return to the country.

As the days passed and there were fewer and fewer days left in their decision period, Celeste hesitated for a moment before sending Trevor a message.

"When will you be back?"

After the message was sent, she didn't receive a reply until the next day.

"Not anytime soon."

Celeste frowned and immediately sent another message. "Can you make it back before the decision period ends?"

Trevor replied, "Sorry, I'm not sure."

Celeste looked at the message, rubbed her temples, and didn't reply.

After a while, Trevor seemed to realize that she was upset and sent another message. "Are you angry?"

Celeste didn't reply immediately. She just stared at her phone screen before she began typing a few seconds later and sent another message.

"Both of us are busy with work. If this continues, we don't know when we'll actually be able to finalize the divorce. If, after this decision period ends, you still haven't come back, I will sue for divorce through the court."

It took Trevor a long time to respond.

"This time, it really is my fault. If I can't make it back in time, can we wait until I return and discuss the divorce before making a decision?"

Celeste looked at his message and didn't reply.

Seeing that she didn't respond, Trevor didn't send any further messages either.

If possible, Celeste naturally still hoped that Trevor would make it back within the decision period.

But reality told her that her expectation had fallen through. Because on the very last day of the decision period, Trevor still hadn't returned.

Seeing that the deadline had passed, Celeste just continued her life.

That evening, Martha was coming over to the Rodriguez residence for dinner. After working for a while, Celeste left work early and went home.

When she arrived, Martha and Jordyn had already arrived. Seeing Celeste, Martha smiled and said, "Cel, you're back."

Celeste smiled and nodded. She also reached out to gently stroke Jordyn's hair as the child ran over and threw herself into her arms, before sitting down beside Martha and Betty.

Everyone in the Rodriguez family was very concerned about Celeste's divorce.

They all knew that today was the last day of her decision period with Trevor, and they wanted to ask her about it. However, with Jordyn and Marta present, they didn't dare bring it up casually. Content belong's Martha didn't know the details of Trevor and Celeste's divorce situation.

Still, she was aware that the two of them had gone to the courthouse some time ago to submit another divorce application.

She also knew that Trevor had been on a long business trip this time.

As for the matters between them, she didn't ask further.

After dinner, she chatted with Betty and Celeste for quite some time. Then, after checking on Betty's health again, she finally felt the Rodriguez residence

After she left, Betty finally looked at Celeste and asked, "He still hasn't come back?"

Celeste replied with a hum.

Betty frowned.

She could understand that Trevor was busy with work and couldn't make it back in time to divorce.

But they had been dragging things out for so long already. It really wasn't a solution if this continued.

Chapter 594

After learning that Celeste wanted to sue for divorce, Betty was in favor of it.

After finishing her conversation with her grandmother, Celeste turned and went upstairs. Just as she was about to call Jason to discuss the divorce lawsuit, she received a message from Trevor.

"I didn't make it back in time. That's my fault. Sorry."

Celeste looked at it and didn't reply.

Right after that, Trevor sent a second message.

"Can you not sue for divorce? If you can agree to this request, I can give you 30 billion dollars as compensation."

Celeste still didn't reply.

She actually knew why Trevor didn't want her to sue for divorce.

If she filed a lawsuit and the news leaked, Wynn's identity as a mistress would be exposed. If someone deliberately stirred things up, it wouldn't just affect Trevor's career; even his father's political future would be impacted.

If it really came to that, for the sake of the Fleming family's future, Martha and Queenie would probably both come to her over this matter...

And after all, the Fleming family had shown kindness to the Rodriguez family. Celeste sat there, thinking about all this, unmoving for a long time.

Just then, Jordyn ran in, threw herself into her arms, and asked, "Mom, what are you doing?"

Celeste came back to her senses, shook her head, and said, "It's getting late. Go take a shower. After that, go to bed early."

"Okay!"

Jordyn happily ran off to get her pajamas and prepare for her shower.

Looking at Jordyn's carefree, cheerful smile, Celeste fell into a brief daze again.

After Jordyn finished showering and after Celeste dried her hair, Jordyn curled up against her and fell fast asleep.

Staring at the sleeping child, Celeste pondered for a moment before finally replying to Trevor.

"Okay."

Trevor was probably waiting for her response. Not long after she sent it, he replied.

"Thank you. I'll make sure the 30 billion dollars. I promised you is implemented as soon as possible After the lawyers finish handling the agreement, once I'm back, I'll have the money transferred to your account."

"Got it."

At this point, Celeste felt that the conversation should be over. But Trevor sent another message.

"I'll still be busy for a few more days. So, I won't be able to return to the country anytime soon."

"Got it."

Trevor then sent, "I just messaged Jo. She said she's at the Rodriguez residence now. Thank you for taking care of her while I'm abroad."

This time, Celeste didn't reply. She turned off her phone and went to sleep. Matthias was also very concerned about the progress of her divorce.

The next day, after learning that she and Trevor still hadn't managed to finalize the divorce, he asked, "Then what are you going to do now? Why not just sue for divorce directly?"

Celeste said, "That was my plan too, but..."

She then told him about how Trevor had contacted her the previous night and proactively offered her 30 billion dollars in compensation.

Matthias spat out the water in his mouth. "30 billion?"

Celeste hummed.

For a moment, Matthias didn't know whether to be angry or amused.

Then he said, "If Trevor can really keep his word, I think you can agree to it. After all, you're not dating anyone right now. Delaying the divorce a bit won't really harm you. But 30 billion dollars is no small sum." .

That was exactly what Celeste had thought the night before, which was why she agreed.

Matthias set down his cup, sighed, and said, "If that 30 billion dollars really gets transferred, then all the money Trevor has given you during this whole divorce process up to almost 500 billion dollars. Looking at it this way, this marriage of yours really wasn't a loss."

Chapter 595

Actually, Celeste didn't ask for the money for herself.

She asked for it for Jordyn.

In the future, when Jordyn grew up a bit more, she would hand over everything Trevor had given her-both money and assets to Jordyn.

With these things, no matter what Jordyn encountered later in life, she would have more confidence and more choices.

A few days later, possibly because Trevor had already returned to the country, Celeste suddenly received a call from Trevor's lawyer, saying that the 30-billion agreement had already been drafted.

He wanted to send it to her for review in advance so they could quickly discuss any issues.

Hearing this, Celeste thought the agreement would contain a lot of clauses.

After all, Trevor was paying her 30 billion dollars.

With such a huge amount, it would be understandable if he added more conditions.

But the agreement his lawyer sent over was very short. Trevor had only one requirement: that she not sue for divorce within the next six months.

This condition was proposed under the premise that Trevor might still be delayed in handling the divorce later on due to various reasons.

After reading through the agreement and confirming there were no issues, Celeste signed it quite decisively.

Not long after she signed, the money Trevor had promised began to be transferred into her account in batches.

The next afternoon, when Celeste went to Fleming Group, she saw Trevor downstairs talking with someone.

Seeing her and Lazarus's group, Trevor politely nodded at her and the others in greeting, then continued discussing work.

Only then did Celeste realize he was back.

That evening, Jordyn called to chat with her. Celeste asked, "When did your dad come back?"

"Today," Jordyn replied.

"After Dad got back at noon, he even called me."

Then she asked, "Mom, what's wrong?"

"Nothing."

After hanging up with Jordyn, Celeste sent Trevor a message. "I'll have some time these days."

After an hour or two, Trevor replied. "Okay."

After that, he didn't send any more messages.

The Lockets and the Shaws had also learned that Trevor was back.

They also knew that he and Celeste had been in contact.

They couldn't help asking Wynn, "So? Did Trevor say when he plans to the courthouse to continue

Wynn shook her head. "He didn't mention it."

Everyone fell silent for a moment.

Ruby forced a smile and couldn't help saying, "It's fine even if Trevor didn't mention you right away, Wyan? It was like he

Linda believed that Trevor still loved Wynn very much. Hearing this, she also chimed in, "Exactly."

No one else said anything more.

After that, they paid close attention to Trevor's movements.

But a few days passed, and they didn't hear that Trevor was especially busy with work yet he still didn't seem to be proactively contacting Celeste to proceed with the divorce.

In fact, Celeste had also been waiting for Trevor's message.

Over these past few days, she had run into him again.

She also felt that he didn't look particularly busy.

But whether Trevor was actually busy or not, she didn't know. After thinking it over, she once again sent him a message.

"I still have some time."
