

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

Chapter 631

Miles received a phone call.

After glancing at the caller ID, he briefly greeted Wynn and the others, then told Trevor not to wait for him before turning to the other side to take the call.

Only after Miles had walked some distance away did Trevor speak. "You're eating here too?"

Wynn replied. "Mm. When did you get back?"

"Last night."

"Still not done with work?"

The elevator arrived. Trevor entered together with Wynn and the others. "Not yet."

At that moment, a message came in on his phone. He nodded slightly at Wynn as a gesture, replied to two messages, and by then the elevator had already reached the ground floor.

After exiting the elevator, Wynn looked at him and asked, "Are you free tonight?"

"I already have plans," Trevor said.

Wynn smiled faintly. "Next time then."

"Okay."

As soon as Trevor finished speaking, his phone rang again. He said to Wynn, "I still have something to handle. I need to head back to the company first."

"Alright," Wynn replied.

Trevor greeted Lilian, then turned and left.

Although Linda was usually impulsive, she hadn't dared to say a single word while Trevor was there.

Watching his retreating figure, her heart felt uncomfortable, and she murmured, "Trev... He's so cold."

It was the first time she had ever seen Trevor treat Wynn with such indifference.

So indifferent that anyone who didn't know better would think they were merely strangers who had met a few times.

Wasn't it also the first time Lilian and the others had seen Trevor treat Wynn like this?

From Trevor's cold attitude just now, it was as if things between him and Wynn had truly come to an end.

Lilian lowered her gaze and said calmly, "Let's go back first."

Celeste's business trip went quite smoothly.

After just two days, she returned to Baumond.

After getting off the plane, she was chatting with several engineers from the company when she suddenly received a call from Jordyn.

She picked it up casually. "Jo?"

After listening for a moment, she froze, then smiled. "Alright, I got it. I'll come over right now."

Most employees at YodaVision knew that Celeste was married and had a child.

But previously, they had never seen her answer a call from her child.

Hearing her talking on the phone, they immediately knew the caller was her daughter. Someone couldn't help asking, "Is your daughter here? Fat the airport to pick you up?"

Celeste smiled lightly. "Mm."

"Wow, that's so sweet."

Celeste smiled again. Thinking of the location Jordyn had just monday. She said to the others,

"My gde is over there, so won't go with you. See you next week."

"Alright, see you next week."

In truth, the others were quite curious about Celeste's daughter and wanted to see her as well, but since Celeste didn't bring it up herself, they felt awkward asking.

Just as Celeste turned around, she saw someone in the distance waving excitedly at her and shouting, "Mom!"

She lifted her gaze and saw that it was Jordyn, and standing right behind Jordyn was Trevor.

She hadn't known that Trevor would also be there.

Her steps paused almost imperceptibly.

Then, as if nothing had happened, she continued walking toward them.

The others from YodaVision also heard that shout of "Mom." When they turned back, they realized the little girl seemed to be calling Celeste.

However, they were too far away to see Jordyn's face clearly.

They hesitated for a moment, about to get into the car, when someone with sharp eyes noticed the man standing behind Jordyn. "That... Is that Ms. Rodriguez's husband?"

Chapter 632

The person who spoke was a little nearsighted and hadn't seen Trevor's face clearly. But seeing his tall, lean figure, they instinctively felt his temperament was outstanding.

When they saw him naturally take the suitcase from Celeste's hand and help load the luggage, they subconsciously assumed he must be Celeste's husband.

The others looked over upon hearing this, but all they could see was Trevor's back.

Not long after, Trevor, Celeste, and Jordyn got into the car and drove away.

At the same time, Lilian, Erin, and the others were also watching them leave.

Erin and Lennox had happened to fly back to Baumond from Youtopia that very day, and Lilian had come to the airport to pick them up.

None of them had expected that, just as they got into their car, they would spot Trevor's vehicle.

What followed was exactly the scene the YodaVision employees had just witnessed.

Previously, Erin had heard that Trevor hadn't contacted Wynn for a long time and seemed to be tacitly acknowledging a breakup with her.

Now that they saw it with their own eyes, they realized that Trevor's attitude toward Celeste had indeed changed.

In the past, how could Trevor possibly have personally come to the airport to pick Celeste up?

Inside the car, Erin and Lilian wore different expressions.

Only after a moment did their car finally start and drive away.

...

As soon as they got into the car, Jordyn happily said to Celeste, "Mom, Nana heard you were coming back today and asked if you're free to come over for a meal."

Faced with Martha's warm invitation, Celeste found it hard to refuse.

Before she could respond, however, Trevor spoke up, "Grandma had the chef prepare quite a few dishes you like."

Celeste paused. "Mm..."

When they returned to the Fleming manor, Celeste discovered that Trevor's mother, sister, and younger brother were all there as well.

They had clearly returned on short notice. Seeing them, both Trevor and Jordyn showed looks of surprise.

Trevor called out to Queenie, then asked, "When did you get back?"

I just arrived."

In truth, Queenie, Teagan, and Tucker were equally surprised to see Trevor, Celeste, and Jordyn enter together.

They all knew about Trevor and Celeste preparing to divorce.

They also knew that the two of them seemed unable to coordinate their schedules, which was why the divorce still hadn't gone through.

It was true that Teagan didn't particularly like Celeste, but since Celeste was already on the verge of divorcing Trevor and from Martha's Words it sounded like Celeste was merely here as a guest, she didn't say anything.

Still, her attitude toward Celeste remained as cold as ever.

Tucker, on the other hand, hadn't seen Celeste for a long time. He was quite happy to see her and even addressed her.

Hearing that, Celeste paused slightly, then nodded and smiled. "You seem to have grown taller again."

"Yeah, at this rate I'll probably be as tall as my brother next year."

Celeste smiled.

The meal was already prepared.

When it was time to sit down,

bet

Martha, worried that Celeste might feel uncomfortable, came her hand, and had her sit bo took her.

Seeing Celeste sit with Martha, Jordyn also scooted over to join them.

Trevor did not go over to sit with them.

Martha patted Celeste's hand. "I heard from Jo that you went on SO another business trip? That's hard on you. You must eat! later." .

Celeste nodded. "Alright."
more

At the table, Trevor chatted with Queenie and Teagan about work matters. Tucker couldn't really join in and quietly focused on eating.

Jordyn sat beside Celeste, occasionally picking food for her and clinging to her, wanting to talk to her.

Seeing this, Queenie and Teagan both paused slightly.

Chapter 633

Over the past two years, Jordyn had grown increasingly distant from Celeste, even to the point of disliking her. All of them had seen this with their own eyes.

They had assumed that Jordyn's dislike for Celeste would persist, right up until the mother and daughter became completely estranged.

They hadn't expected this instead...

At first, they didn't know that Celeste had gone to work at YodaVision.

But now that YodaVision's reputation was rising rapidly, both domestically and abroad, it was impossible not to know.

What surprised them even more was that Celeste hadn't just followed through on leaving Fleming Group as she'd said—she was now thriving at YodaVision.

As for her relationship with Matthias...

Seeing Celeste now sitting at the same table as Trevor, yet barely sparing him a glance, her calm and detached demeanor made it seem as though she had truly let go of him completely.

When they'd first heard rumors about her and Matthias, they hadn't quite believed them.

After all, they knew better than anyone how deeply Celeste had once loved Trevor. How could she have moved on so completely, so quickly?

But now, seeing how differently she treated Trevor compared to the past, they finally believed it.

Celeste really had let him go.

Hearing that Fleming Group and YodaVision were currently cooperating quite smoothly, they glanced toward Celeste.

They couldn't help wondering whether Celeste would be involved in that collaboration.

Yet when the topic came up, Celeste didn't even lift her eyelids. She appeared utterly unperturbed, as though it stirred no emotion in her at all. Seeing this, they withdrew their gazes.

After the meal, Celeste spent most of her time accompanying Martha.

As for Queenie and Teagan, aside from nodding politely in greeting at the beginning, she didn't speak to them at all.

Likewise, neither Queenie nor Teagan made any effort to initiate a conversation with her.

At around nine in the evening, while Jordyn had gone upstairs to take a shower, Celeste prepared to leave.

Judging by how happily Jordyn had gone upstairs, it was obvious to anyone that she believed Celene would be staying the night at the manor.

Given how attached Jordyn was to Celeste right now, once she came downstairs after her shower and discovered that Celeste had left without a word she would definitely be upset.

Hearing this, Trevor looked at Celeste. "Jo will probably make a fuss. Why don't you stay the night?"

Seeing this, Queenie and Teagan realized that Trevor and Celeste still hadn't told Jordyn about their impending divorce.

It seemed they intended to keep hiding it for now.

Watching Trevor take the initiative to ask Celeste to stay the night for Jordyn's sake—both Queenie and Teagan were somewhat surprised.

They could clearly see Trevor's patience toward Jordyn, as well as the tenderness in his eyes. He truly loved his daughter.

To be honest, this was something that surprised them too.

They had never expected that after having a daughter, Trevor would dote on her so much.

After all, Trevor always appeared smiling and gentle on the surface, but in reality, he was quite emotionally detached.

Before Jordyn came along, aside from Martha, although he seemed to get along well with the rest of the family, he actually kept everyone at a measured distance-neither too close nor too far.

Celeste shook her head. "No. I'll call her later."

Seeing how firm Celeste was, Trevor nodded and didn't press further. Instead, he stood up and said, "I'll walk you out."

Celeste nodded. "Alright."

Everyone else could tell that Trevor likely had something he wanted to say to Celeste.

So, they tactfully refrained from following them.

Chapter 634

Celeste and Trevor walked out, side by side. When they reached her car, Trevor spoke first. "Do you have time Monday morning?"

Celeste was just about to say yes when he continued, "Jo's school is holding a parents' meeting. The school requires both parents to attend."

Celeste paused for a moment. "Alright."

After that, she added, "I can also take leave in the afternoon."

"I have to go to Havenport at one in the afternoon."

Celeste frowned. "Can't you change the time?"

Trevor replied, "Sorry."

Celeste pressed her lips together and didn't say anything. She turned around and got into the car.

Trevor looked at her. "Drive safe."

Before he could finish, Celeste shut the car door with a sharp bang, then stepped on the accelerator and drove off.

Trevor watched as her car disappeared from view. The corners of his lips curved into a faint smile, and he turned back into the house.

It was already quite late. Martha had gone back to her room to rest, but Queenie and Teagan were still in the living room.

After Trevor nodded to them in greeting, he said he needed to return a call and went upstairs.

Queenie watched his retreating figure, as if she wanted to call out to him, but in the end, she said nothing.

Teagan asked, "What's wrong?"

Queenie shook her head and didn't answer.

If Trevor were divorcing Celeste in order to marry Wynn, she would rather he not divorce at all.

After all, compared to Wynn, Celeste came from a respectable, clean family background. Although she had used some unsavory means in the past to be with Trevor, in comparison, Queenie disliked Wynn even more.

But she also knew that even if she tried to persuade him, Trevor wouldn't listen.

Whatever he wanted to do now, no one in the family, including her husband, Lincoln, could stop him.

Seeing the way her mother was frowning, Teagan understood what she was worried about.

She said, "From a man's perspective, I can understand why Trevor would choose Wynn."

As a woman herself, she also felt that Wynn was indeed quite charming—let alone in the eyes of a man.

Queenie rubbed her temples and remained silent.

She and Trevor weren't particularly close, but subconsciously, she felt that he was someone who would find it very difficult to truly fall in love with anyone.

Wynn shouldn't be his type either.

Yet Trevor's feelings and attitude toward Wynn had gone beyond what she thought she knew about him.

The next morning, Celeste went with Betty and the rest of the family to the hospital to visit Isabelle.

Isabelle's condition had been fairly stable lately.

After the visit, just as Celeste and Betty were leaving the hospital Celeste received a call from Jordyn. Content

"Mom, where are you? Dad and I are already at Granny's place. Why isn't anyone home?"

Jordyn hadn't mentioned that she would be coming over that morning.

Celeste didn't bring that up. She only asked, "Your dad came with you?"

"Yes. But Dad just dropped me off. He still has social engagements later."

Before Celeste could respond, Jordyn asked again, "Mom, where did you go? When are you coming back?"

"I just came out of the hospital. I'm heading back now. Wait—"

Jordyn cried out in alarm and quickly asked with concern, "You were at the hospital? Mom, are you sick?"

"No. I went to the hospital to visit your grandmother."

After chatting a little more, Celeste hung up the phone.

When Trevor heard that Celeste had been at the hospital, he seemed to know what she had gone there for.

After Jordyn ended the call, he didn't ask about Celeste's hospital visit at all. He simply reminded Jordyn of few things then got into the car left.

swand

Chapter 635

On Monday, after Celeste and Jordyn finished breakfast and had just packed up to head out, the sound of a car came from outside.

Trevor had arrived.

Jordyn ran out happily. "Dad, you're here!"

"Mhm." Trevor nodded to Celeste.

"Morning. Shall we get in the car first?"

Celeste didn't say anything. She got into his car together with Jordyn.

In the car, because things had ended a little unpleasantly when Celeste left the manor the other day, neither Celeste nor Trevor said much.

When they arrived at the school and got out of the car, Jordyn pulled Celeste toward the classroom. Trevor walked silently on Celeste's left.

The sunlight was nice that day, but the wind was a little strong. Celeste tucked her neck in slightly.

Trevor turned his head. "Feeling cold? There's "

"I'm not cold," Celeste said lightly.

She wasn't forcing herself-she really didn't feel cold.

Trevor looked at her in silence for a moment. Seeing that she truly wasn't cold, he didn't say anything more.

Jordyn pulled Celeste along in front and entered the classroom first. When Donna saw Celeste and Jordyn, she paused slightly, assuming only the two of them had come.

Before she could say anything, Trevor walked in as well.

Seeing that Trevor was there too, she smiled and greeted them. "Mr. Fleming, Mrs. Fleming, Jordyn's seat is over here. Please come this way."

Celeste and Trevor nodded. As soon as they sat down, a classmate came over to Jordyn and looked curiously at Trevor and Celeste.

"Jordyn, are these your mom and dad? Your dad is so handsome, and your mom is so pretty! So, your parents really aren't divorced?"

Jordyn lifted her chin and snorted. "Of course not. Your parents are the ones who got divorced. My mom and dad are totally fine."

Before the parents' meeting officially began, Jordyn ran off with her classmates, laughing and playing.

Celeste watched her back as she went, then withdrew her gaze only to find Trevor looking at her.

She paused slightly at his gaze.

Before she could react, however, Tilda came over to greet Celeste.

It had been quite a while since they'd last met, and the two chatted for some time before stopping.

Only then did Tilda somewhat awkwardly nod toward Trevor as a greeting.

Trevor responded politely, "Hello."

Soon after, the parents' meeting officially began.

After the meeting ended, Donna walked over to Celeste and Trevor.

After hesitating for a moment, she finally said, "Jordyn hasn't been in a very good mood these past few

it might be because of some issues between days theartween you as a couple..."

Donna knew Trevor's identity and had also seen Celeste in the news recently, so she now knew that Celeste was also a very capable career woman.

With both parents being so successful, and herself just a primary school teacher, she felt that saying too much might be inappropriate.

From what Jordyn had said, it seemed that Celeste and Trevor weren't divorced, but she wasn't sure whether that was true.

After hesitating, she continued, "It's rare for me to see Jordyn in such low spirits. In the future, when it comes to her emotional and psychological well being, the two well-being, you, as parents, need to pay a bit more attention."

What she meant was that even if they did divorce, the child still needed to be properly reassured.

Both Celeste and Trevor understood what Donna was implying.

They nodded at the same time. Trevor spoke politely, "We will. Thank you for your concern, Ms. Aspen."