

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

Chapter 646

Trevor's gaze also fell on Kieran and Celeste's hands. Holding his teacup, he smiled and took a sip, saying nothing.

Trevor had never had feelings for Celeste to begin with. Now that they were close to divorce, it was normal for him not to care about her having physical contact with other men.

Still, what surprised Miles was how popular Celeste seemed to be now. Besides Matthias, there were even other suitors with such good qualifications.

Because of the unpleasant tension between Celeste and Wynn, when Kieran first saw that Trevor was the one negotiating with them, he thought communication would be difficult. But he soon realized the discussion was going quite smoothly.

Moreover, Trevor's attitude toward Celeste was fairly gentle. At times, when Kieran wasn't paying attention and forgot to refill her tea, Trevor would casually do it himself.

It was as if the discord between Wynn and Celeste had already become a thing of the past.

Yet in their previous encounters, Celeste and Wynn had barely acknowledged each other, clearly harboring deep resentment-nothing like a relationship where past grievances had been resolved.

Still, everyone involved was an adult. Whether it was Trevor or Celeste, they were probably just being professional and keeping work separate from personal matters.

It wasn't until after five in the evening that their discussion came to a pause.

Trevor glanced at his watch and looked at Celeste. "It's getting late. How about having dinner together?"

Celeste felt there was no need. She stood up and said, "I already have other plans. Maybe next time. For the follow-up on the cooperation, I'll continue discussions with Mr. Stone."

"Alright."

They exchanged another polite handshake before Celeste turned and left with Kieran.

Miles had spent half the day as an idle companion and had been playing games on his phone out of boredom. Seeing Celeste leave, he put his phone away, looked in her direction, and suddenly thought of something.

"Oh, right—didn't you two decide to postpone the divorce for now? Does this 'temporary postponement' have a time limit?"

Trevor took a sip of water. "No."

"Huh? You didn't set a timeframe?"

Trevor set the cup down and stood up. "No."

"Then if you keep dragging this out, how long is it going to last?"

If it dragged on for three to five years, or even seven or eight—would Wynn agree?

Trevor smiled faintly. "It won't drag on indefinitely. You don't need to worry about that."

Miles thought so too.

Seeing

a suvor seemed to assumed he had a deadline set

e a plan in mind, Miles et himself and didn't ask furthes

Elsewhere after spending the day out with Jordyn, Wynn returned home, where her family asked about how things had been over the past two days. se

When they learned that Trevor hadn't appeared at all, the Lockets and the Shaws weren't particularly disappointed.

Lennox said, "The fact that Trevor is still letting you meet Jordyn alone shows that he trusts you, and that he hasn't intended to break things off with you. That's actually a good sign."

"Yes, exactly." Others chimed in agreement.

It had been nearly half a month since the last divorce decision period between Celeste and Trevor.

In the past, Trevor and Celeste would have already gone back to the courthouse to file for divorce again.

But this time, there had been no news at all.

"How about you ask around, Wynn? Maybe you can check with Miles or Beck?"

Asking Miles was doable.

As for Beck...

Wynn lowered her gaze and said, "Alright. I got it."

Wynn went upstairs and called Miles.

Miles sounded surprised. "Why are you calling all of a sudden? Is something the matter?"

"Yes," Wynn replied.

"I wanted to ask you for a small favor."

In truth, she didn't really need Miles's help with anything. But to make the call seem reasonable, she deliberately brought up a minor issue and asked him to help handle it.

Seeing that it was indeed nothing serious and something he could deal with easily, Miles agreed without hesitation. "Alright. I'll have someone take care of it later."

"Thanks."

After that, Wynn casually added, "It's been a while since we last met. What have you been busy with lately?"

"Me?" Miles laughed.

"You know me. I don't really have much going on. It's you people who've all been so busy I can't even see you."

Wynn smiled. "Jo's on a break these past couple of days. I took her out yesterday and only got home this afternoon. If you're bored, how about we arrange dinner together in a couple of days?"

"Sure."

In Miles's mind, Trevor's decision to temporarily not divorce Celeste was something he had already discussed with Wynn beforehand.

Hearing Wynn mention that she had been spending time with Jordyn recently, and judging by her relaxed tone and seemingly good mood, Miles assumed she hadn't been too affected by the situation.

So, he said, "Trevor and Celeste decided to postpone the divorce because of Jo. If you spend more time with her, strengthen your bond, and reduce her dependence on Celeste, Jo will be able to accept their divorce more easily."

Wynn tightened her grip on the phone.

Postpone the divorce?

So, not only had Celeste and Trevor not gone to the courthouse to file for divorce recently, but they had actually reached an agreement to temporarily stay married for Jordyn's sake?

But was it really because they were worried Jordyn wouldn't be able to handle it?

Or was it that... Trevor was deliberately using Jordyn as a shield just so he wouldn't have to divorce Celeste?

Wynn didn't ask Miles directly.

From what Miles usually said in their group chats, she knew that he was completely unaware of the true situation between her and Trevon et

Even now, he still believed thate things between them were the same as before.

That was also why, when she mentioned earlier that she had taken Jordyn out at Trevor's request, Miles naturally assumed that Trevor wanted her to build a closer relationship with Jordyn.

It was so that Jordyn would find it easier to accept his divorce from Celeste later on.

But what the reality was she knew it clearly herself.

If Trevor was really using Jordyn as an excuse to avoid divorcing Celeste, then Celeste...

Given how much Celeste cared for Jordyn and from what she knew

Celeste didn't seem to have anyone else she liked at the moment, or perhaps Celeste might still have feelings for Trevor.

Even in that situation, it would be perfectly reasonable for Celeste to agree to temporarily not divorce him.

Wynn's gaze darkened at that thought.

She chatted with Miles for a few more minutes before hanging up.

After sitting in silence for a while, she made another call—this time to Jordyn.

The call was answered quickly. After chatting with Jordyn for a bit, Wynn finally revealed her true purpose.

"Jo... Recently, when you go to see your mom, does your dad still go along with you?"

"As long as he has time, he does go with me to keep Mom company," Jordyn replied.

Then she asked, "Wynn, what's wrong?"

Nothing.

She just wanted to confirm once more whether Trevor had recently been using Jordyn, like before, as a reason to get close to Celeste.

Which meant that the decision for Celeste and Trevor to temporarily not divorce was very likely something that had been pushed forward by Trevor himself.

Chapter 648

Did Trevor plan to reconcile with Celeste?

If that was the case, then why didn't he take the initiative to break up with Wynn?

Or was it that he'd been keeping her at arm's length because he wanted Wynn to be the one to bring up the breakup?

Or perhaps... He hadn't done so because he still had feelings for her-only that Celeste had now become more important to him?

After the Lockets and the Shaws learned that Trevor and Celeste not only hadn't gone to complete the divorce procedures, but had even decided to postpone the divorce for Jordyn's sake, none of them looked pleased.

Upon hearing that Trevor wanted to reconcile with Celeste yet hadn't broken things off with Wynn, Lilian and the others felt that, deep down, Trevor was still reluctant to let Wynn go.

Patricia said, "Wynn, since Trevor still has you in his heart, you need to take your advantage on his side."

Ruby hurriedly chimed in, "That's right, that's right. Since Trevor still cares about you, if you were to accidentally get pregnant, he'd definitely put his feelings for Celeste aside and marry you instead."

Linda found this extremely convincing and echoed excitedly, "Exactly!"

Wynn's lashes trembled slightly.

This...

It really was a pretty good idea.

...

The next day, Wynn went to the Fleming Group again when it was close to noon.

This time, she didn't miss him.

Seeing her, Trevor paused for a moment. "Why are you here?"

Wynn smiled calmly and gracefully. "I wanted to have lunch with you."

Trevor looked at her. After a second of silence, he withdrew his gaze and nodded. "Alright, but you'll have to wait until I finish dealing with what I have on hand."

"Okay."

Trevor continued working, while Wynn sat by the coffee table, sipping tea as she waited.

Watching his side profile as he focused on his work, and recalling the look on his face earlier how he'd wanted to refuse her invitation but ultimately agreed with a hint of resignation-she was certain that he still had feelings for her.

Otherwise, he wouldn't have compromised.

After Trevor finished handling his work, they left the office together to have lunch.

During the meal, Wynn brought up the situation at InnovaTech and her family's tech company. She even talked about some amusing things from when she'd taken Jordyn out a couple of days earlier.

The only thing she didn't ask was how Trevor now viewed the situation between the two of them.

She didn't bring it up, and neither did he.

This only further convinced Wynn that even if Trevor had developed feelings for Celeste, he still couldn't let go of her.

However, although Trevor didn't mention breaking up, after lunch, he still found an excuse to leave.

After he left, Wynn returned to her company as well.

Seeing her come back so early, Linda and the others were visibly disappointed.

"Wynn, why are you back so soon?" Linda asked.

"I thought..."

She'd thought that something would happen between Wynn and Trevor today and that Wynn would successfully get pregnant, and everything afterward would naturally fall into place.

Wynn replied calmly, "Things need to be taken slowly."

Things between her and Trevor were no longer the same as before. She needed to wait for the right opportunities—she couldn't rush it.

The others nodded in agreement.

"That's true. You can't rush things."

...

The next day, Wynn contacted Jacob to get Trevor's schedule and waited for him at the restaurant where he was going to attend a social engagement.

When Trevor saw her, he stopped in his tracks.

The others smiled when they noticed Wynn. "So, Ms. Locket is here too."

Wynn smiled back, exchanged greetings with them, then walked over to Trevor and said softly, "You've been so busy lately that we haven't had many chances to meet. I wanted to spend a bit more time with you."

Trevor heard her out and nodded silently. He didn't seem upset at all.

Chapter 649

After the meal ended, Wynn got into Trevor's car.

She looked at him and asked, "Are you angry?"

What she meant, of course, was that she had gone to find him through Jacob without getting his consent.

Trevor replied, "No."

Then he added, "I'll have the driver take you home."

He proceeded to instruct the driver to head to the Locket residence.

Wynn didn't stop him. Instead, she looked at Trevor and reached out to hold his hand.

He paused for a moment.

When he came back to his senses and was about to pull his hand away, Wynn leaned in toward him.

Trevor turned his face aside and pushed her hand away, shifting his position to put some distance between them.

Just then, his phone rang.

He picked it up and said, "I need to take this call."

Having been rejected, Wynn showed no sign of embarrassment. She leaned back and said, "Alright."

Trevor spoke with the person on the other end about work matters. It was several minutes before he finally hung up.

Wynn didn't bring up what had just happened.

Instead, she smiled and chatted with him about the business he had been discussing on the call. "I thought that project had already been settled."

"It hasn't. Something came up and slowed the progress."

Wynn nodded and continued talking with him about company affairs.

The atmosphere between them was fairly pleasant, as if the earlier incident hadn't affected them at all. Wynn also didn't make any further attempts to get close to him like she had earlier.

After all, pushing too hard could backfire.

If Trevor grew impatient and brought up the breakup himself, it would do her more harm than good.

When they arrived at the Locket residence, and Wynn was about to get out of the car, she said, "It's been a while since you came over Why don't you come in and sit for a bit

Trevor remained seated in the car. "No, I still have something else to attend to. Another time."

Wynn didn't insist. "Alright."

Without saying anything more, Trevor drove away before the Locket family came out.

The Locket family only realized that Trevor had been the one who sent Wynn back when they saw his car leaving.

Ruby asked, "Why didn't Trevor come in?"

Wynn didn't answer.

Seeing that Wynn's expression wasn't very good, Lilian already knew things hadn't gone smoothly. She asked, "How did it go?"

What Wynn had done in the car was actually a test to see Trevor's attitude toward her.

The result was obvious.

Although Trevor hadn't broken up with her, he was refusing any intimate contact with her.

So, if she really wanted to turn the situation around through pregnancy, Trevor's side would probably be-

Ruby, however, said, "Take it slow. There will always be an opportunity."

No matter what, Trevor still hadn't taken the initiative to break up with her, had he?

That was also what Wynn was thinking.

No matter what, since she wanted to win Trevor back, she naturally had to be more proactive.

However, she didn't recklessly go looking for him again. Instead, she called him.

But Trevor didn't answer. Not only that, he didn't return her call either.

Wynn had already anticipated this outcome.

After thinking for a moment, she called Jacob and asked what

Trevor had reprimanded him afterward for telling her about his schedule.

Jacob replied, "No. Mr. Fleming wasn't angry and didn't blame me. But... He did say that something like this can't happen a second time. So, Ms. Locket, I'm sorry..."

Chapter 650

Wynn smiled. "I understand. Thank you, Mr. Collins."

That afternoon, Celeste received a call from Jordyn. She said she wanted to eat out and asked if Celeste could come with her.

Jordyn had already been on holiday for several days, but because Celeste had been busy with work, she hadn't had time to spend with her.

As for Jordyn going out with Wynn a couple of days earlier, Celeste knew about it.

She happened to be free that evening, so she agreed.

That night, she drove to the address Jordyn had sent her.

As soon as she got out of the car, Jordyn ran toward her from not far away, with Trevor following behind.

Seeing Trevor, Celeste paused slightly.

When Jordyn threw herself at her, Celeste gently patted her head and lowered her head to greet her.

After the mother and daughter finished exchanging pleasantries, Trevor finally spoke. "It's cold outside. Let's go in first."

Celeste said nothing and was led into the restaurant by Jordyn.

Both Celeste and Trevor had eaten at this restaurant before, and the manager recognized them.

Seeing them appear together and seeing "Mr. Fleming's daughter" affectionately holding Celeste's hand, the manager was visibly shocked, clearly not expecting them to have such a relationship in private.

Celeste noticed the surprise in the manager's eyes.

Some time ago, when Trevor accompanied her and Jordyn shopping, she had already been surprised. She didn't expect that now, with the three of them dining together, he still didn't avoid attention at all.

It was as if he truly didn't care whether their relationship would be exposed.

After entering the private room and ordering dishes, it was still mostly Celeste and Jordyn talking. Trevor only occasionally joined in, mostly just watching the mother and daughter talk.

Before the food was served, Jordyn went to the restroom.

Trevor set down his cup and looked at Celeste. "How have you been thinking about the matter of not divorcing for now?"

"It's fine," Celeste replied.

He didn't seem surprised by her answer. He simply nodded.

After that, silence fell between them again.

A moment later, Jordyn returned, and conversation resumed in the room.

During the meal, Jordyn suddenly remembered something. "Mom net when are you going on holiday?"

"I'm not sure yet. Why?"

"It's nothing. I just hope you can come home sooner."

Then she asked, "Mom, when you're on holiday, you'll have time to move back home, right?"

Celeste paused mid-bite, glanced at then withdrew her gaze and was about to speak when Trevor spoke first content

"Once your mom finishes her work, she'll come back."

Jordyn was delighted. "Yay! Then, Mom, you have to take your holiday soon!"

"...Okay," Celeste replied.

After that, they changed the subject.

After dinner, Celeste still needed to return to the office.

Not long after she got into the car, she received a message from Trevor.

"This year, you may need to come back for the New Year."

Celeste froze, then frowned. Just as she was about to reply, another message came in.

"Jo is a bit older now. If you're not there for the New Year, she'll definitely start to suspect something."

After reading the messages, Celeste stopped typing.

She sat in silence for a long while before replying, "I understand."

After her message was sent, Trevor didn't reply again.