

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

Chapter 673

Celeste returned to work at YodaVision as usual soon.

Two days later, she attended a government meeting as a representative of YodaVision.

When she arrived at the venue and was about to take a seat, she spotted Wynn.

Wynn saw her as well but quickly looked away.

However, after scanning the entire conference hall with her gaze, Wynn still didn't see Trevor.

Just when she thought Trevor wouldn't appear, he finally arrived moments before the meeting was about to begin.

Wynn instantly let out a sigh of relief.

Yet when she saw Trevor take the seat next to Celeste, the faint smile that had just appeared on her lips immediately faded, and a trace of disappointment appeared in her eyes.

Over there, after sitting down, Trevor said to Celeste, "Morning."

Celeste replied, "...Morning."

After that, she turned her face away and ignored him.

The meeting soon began, and Trevor didn't speak again.

During the break midway through the meeting, Wynn walked over to him.

"Trevor."

When Trevor saw her, he nodded.

Wynn asked gently, "Do you have time after the meeting? I'd like to talk to you about something."

"I have another engagement after the meeting."

"It's fine. Just a few minutes."

Trevor nodded. "Alright."

Wynn smiled.

Just then, Celeste returned from the restroom and saw Trevor and Wynn talking together.

Her expression didn't change. She was about to return to her seat when several corporate representatives attending the government meeting took the initiative to strike up a conversation with her.

After a short while, she finished exchanging pleasantries with them and returned to her seat just as the meeting resumed.

When the meeting ended, Celeste chatted with a few people for a while before leaving.

As she was leaving, she happened to see Wynn walking toward Trevor again. Trevor stepped out of the crowd and asked, "What is it?"

Wynn said, "It's about some matters concerning InnovaTech and my father's company."

During the New Year holiday, she had contacted Trevor and tried to arrange a meeting with him, but he had barely replied.

In other words, from the New Year until now, she still hadn't actually seen him once.

Starting from the eighth day of the New Year, both InnovaTech and Locket Tech had officially resumed work.

However, after reopening, their financial burn rate was too high, and none of their key projects had made any breakthroughs.

She explained the situation of InnovaTech and Locket Tech to Trevor.

After listening, Trevor paused for a moment before saying, "You're both stuck at the technical level. If you need I can recommend a few good technical experts to you." Comment

When Wynn heard that, her smile froze for a moment. She was about to say something when Trevor's secretary, Zeke, walked over.

"Mr. Fleming, it's about time."

Trevor nodded, then looked at Wynn.

"I have something to attend to, so I'll head off first. If there's anything else, we can talk next time."

Wynn paused briefly before replying, "...Alright."

She stood there for a long time, watching Trevor's departing figure.

InnovaTech and Locket Tech lacked technical support; she knew that very well.

But even with technical support, without funding, how could they sustain further project development?

Both InnovaTech and Locket Tech were short on funds now. She didn't believe Trevor didn't know that.

He knew, yet he didn't mention it at all, instead deliberately steering the conversation toward recommending technique Fexperts

That clearly meant he had no intention of helping.

After a while, Wynn finally came back to her senses, turned around, and returned to Innova Tech.

Just after she arrived, Linda couldn't help asking, "Wynn, did you see Trev?"

Wynn nodded.

Linda and the others immediately brightened up.

"So? Did you tell him about the company's situation?"