Quentin picked up his phone, intending to call Wynn. But after a moment's hesitation, he didn't dial her number.

His gaze returned to the computer screen after setting the phone down. His expression turned cold once more as he read through the flood of praise for Celeste online.

Celeste had no time to concern herself with what others were thinking. She had accepted an interview with a major media outlet that very afternoon.

After the interview, she saw a message from Jordyn when she checked her phone.

"Grandpa and Grandma are back. Dad said I should go to the manor for dinner tonight. I'm already on the way."

Celeste replied casually, "Okay."

Celeste's interview was released that night, and it had even made it onto national news.

When the broadcast aired, the Fleming family had just finished dinner and were sitting in the living room, chatting while having fruit.

By now, the Fleming family, including Martha, who usually paid little attention to such affairs, had heard something about Celeste's work at YodaVision.

So, they were all well aware of the buzz around her newly published paper.

The only one who didn't really understand any of this was Jordyn.

She knew that her mother had gone for an interview that morning, but she had no idea why. She only half-understood the news.

However, she could clearly tell that the host kept praising Celeste. Her eyes lit up at that.

"Wow! Mom is amazing! Is she really that incredible?"

There were still some skeptical voices about Celeste online, and Teagan and Queenie were aware of thepa Se, neither of the responded

when they heard Jordyn's words.

Tucker, however, had already sent Celeste a congratulatory message earlier that morning. Now, he pulled Jordyn into his arms and gave her cheek a playful pinch.

"Of course! Your mom is super amazing!"

Jordyn beamed and grabbed her phone before saying, "I'm going to call Mom!"

As the TV was a little loud, she walked off to the side to make the call.

Watching her leave, Teagan said, "I heard Celeste already published three papers. She should have a shot at most of the major AI awards this year with all these high impact papers, right?"

That question was directed at Trevor.

He gave a brief nod. "If nothing unexpected happens, her chances are very high."

Teagan and Queenie still weren't entirely sure whether Celeste truly possessed that level of ability. But if she did, her future would be limitless.

Teagan then said coldly, "Seems that we really underestimated her."

Trevor and Queenie said nothing.

Martha, however, disagreed. She was genuinely delighted to see Celeste doing so well in her career.

She said firmly, "Cel has always been outstanding. She was excellent in her studies before too. If she hadnt given up her major back then, she wouldve won awards long age!"

Teagan rolled her eyes. "Grandma, you're overthinking it."

In her view, Celeste had only reached this point because of Matthias. Without him, there was no way Celeste could've come this far.

Teagan suddenly turned to Trevor as if remembering something. "By the way, the mandatory waiting period should be ending soon, right?"

"Mm, almost."

Martha's smile instantly disappeared at the mention of that. She gave a cold snort and ignored Trevor entirely.

Jordyn wanted to go back and stay at the Rodriguez residence again. This time, Trevor personally drove her there.

After dropping her off, he and Celeste only exchanged a brief glance and a polite nod, nothing more.

Trevor left once Jordyn happily ran inside.

Celeste went upstairs with Jordyn. Her phone buzzed just as they reached the upper floor.

It was a message from Trevor. "Regarding the agreement, do you have anything else to revise?"

Of course, she hadn't forgotten that their mandatory waiting period was about to end.

After reading the message, she replied without hesitation. "No."

His reply came quickly. "Okay."

On Monday, Celeste returned to YodaVision and threw herself back into work.

She was supposed to go on a business trip over the next couple of days, and it might keep her away for up to a week.

But her mandatory waiting period with Trevor would officially end in three days. She wanted to get the divorce certificate as soon as possible.

So, she asked Matthias to go in her place, which he agreed to without a second thought. "Sure, leave it to me."

Kieran had been keeping track of the time as well. So when he heard that Celeste had specifically arranged for Matthias to take over the business trip, he let out a quiet breath of relief.

However, he still couldn't help but ask, "So, in a few days, you'll be officially divorced?"

"Mm."

Her answer made him pause for a moment before a slow smile spread across his face. "Good."

Once she got divorced, he would begin pursuing her properly.

Of course, Matthias and Kieran weren't the only ones waiting.

The Lockets and Shaws also grew increasingly tense as the end of the mandatory waiting period approached once again.

They were afraid that something unexpected might happen again, just like before, and the divorce wouldn't go through.

But when Wynn returned home that day, she seemed calm.

Linda hurried over. "Wynn, Trev doesn't need to go on a business trip these days, right?"

Wynn smiled faintly. "He was supposed to, but he's already arranged for someone else to go. He's cleared his schedule for the next few days."

Hearing that Trevor had deliberately freed up his time to ensure he wouldn't miss the divorce again, both families finally felt a weight lifted off their shoulders.

But then Patricia added coldly, "Let's just hope Celeste doesn't stir up any trouble."

In her view, even though Matthias was a good man, Celeste wouldn't let go of Trevor easily just to spite them.

Wynn's smile dimmed slightly at the mention of Celeste. "I heard she's also canceled her business trip."

"Really?"

Linda lit up before snorting and said, "At least she knows what's good for her."

Lilian and Lennox, however, weren't surprised.

Lilian said calmly, "If she keeps dragging things out with Trevor and refuses to divorce him, it could also affect things on Matthias's Side Letting go of Trevor and holding on to Matthias is the best choice for her."

Lennox nodded. "Exactly."

The mandatory waiting period between Celeste and Trevor finally came to an end amid the anticipation and anxiety of the Locketts and Shaws.

Trevor set off on time for the courthouse that day. But his phone rang when he was on the way.

No one knew what was said on the other end, but his expression changed after answering the call. "Alright, I understand. I'll head over immediately."

Meanwhile, Celeste arrived at the courthouse right on time.

She waited for half an hour, but Trevor still hadn't shown up.

Frowning, she called him, but the line was busy. So, she tried a few more times. But the line was still busy.

Her lips were pressed into a thin line as her expression darkened.

Another ten minutes went by, and she was about to call again when Trevor's call came.

She picked up and spoke coldly, "I've been waiting for over half an hour. Why haven't you—"

Trevor cut her off before she could finish. "Sorry, something happened to my parents."

Celeste froze.

He then continued in an urgent tone, "I've already informed Grandma and handled some emergency matters. I only just found time to return your call."

No matter what, Lincoln and Queenie were Jordyn's grandparents. They were also Martha's son and daughter-in-law.

And Lincoln had always treated Celeste decently.

Hearing that something had happened to them, concern immediately rose in her chest. She was about to ask what exactly happened when Trevor briefly explained.

They had encountered a landslide and hadn't been found yet. So, their condition was still unknown.

After saying that, Trevor added that they would reschedule the divorce procedures and hung up in a hurry without even waiting for a response.

Celeste just stood there, staring at the disconnected call for a long time.

It was only after she snapped back to herself that she turned and headed back to Yoda Vision.

Matthias

at the company.

"Everything went smoot

you gotten the certificate?"

"No."

He was taken aback. "No?"

Celeste briefly explained what had happened.

There was a pause on his end. "In that case, you'll just have to wait for the next time."

"Yes." There was nothing else to be done.

After hanging up, Celeste hesitated about whether to call Martha.

She thought that if something really happened to Lincoln, Martha might not be able to bear it. But then again, she must already be in distress.

So, a call from her might only make things worse.

Therefore, Celeste decided not to call after a moment's thought.

Time passed slowly.

Celeste considered calling Trevor to ask about the situation. But she didn't after hesitating for a bit.

Instead, she chose to call Jordyn.

If anything serious had happened, Trevor would surely have informed her.

The call connected almost immediately.

"Mom..."

Celeste was just about to ask where she was when Jordyn spoke first

"Mom, I'm at the hospital with Dad..."

Grandpa and Grandma had an accident They're still in the emergency room right now."

The Breaking Point of Love - Chapter 714[ 558 words ]

Miles, Beck, and the others all knew about Trevor and Celeste's divorce that morning.

So, after a little over 10:30 am, Miles finally couldn't hold back anymore and tagged Trevor in their group chat.

"Did you get divorced smoothly? Want to go out for lunch to celebrate?"

Wynn and Beck saw the message immediately after he sent it. Wynn even held her breath.

Her family had also been waiting for news about Trevor's divorce since early morning. They had been constantly messaging her in the past hour or so, asking whether Trevor and Celeste had officially divorced yet.

They were all anxious beyond belief. And all of them wanted to be the first to hear the news the moment the divorce became official.

After all, Trevor and Celeste had attempted divorce so many times before and failed every single time. This was the closest they had ever come to officially ending their marriage.

In truth, compared to her family, Wynn was the one who was most nervous and most eager to hear the result.

Back when she believed Celeste was inferior to her in every way and was certain that there was no way Trevor would look at Celeste again after he had her, Wynn genuinely didn't care when he divorced Celeste.

However...

Thinking about everything that had happened over the past six months, her nerves tightened again. As long as they were officially divorced, she and Trevor could finally...

Miles was getting curious after seeing that there was no reply from Trevor. So, he tagged him again. "What's going on? Please don't tell me something went wrong again? Did Celeste pull something again this time?"

Still, Trevor didn't reply.

Seeing this, Miles turned to tag Wynn and Beck instead. "What about you two? Heard anything?"

Only then did Beck reply. "No."

Wynn saw that there was still no message from Trevor, but she was not in the mood to reply at all.

To make matters worse, Narcissa texted her, asking if Trevor and Celeste had officially divorced.

Since Trevor didn't respond, Miles called him directly. However, the line was constantly busy.

It puzzled Miles. But before he could figure out what was going on, a friend suddenly told him that Lincoln and Queenie had been in an accident.

Miles froze. "Seriously?"

"Of course! It'll probably even make the news later."

After hanging up, Miles immediately sent a message to the group chat, tagging Beck and Wynn.

"Just got word that Mr. and Mrs. Fleming seem to have gotten into some kind of accident. They were sent to the hospital not long ago and their conditions currently unknown."

Beck was equally shocked when he saw the message.

Wynn, however, went blank for a moment. After snapping back to herself, she quickly asked, "When did it happen?"

Miles replied, "This morning."

This morning...

That meant Trevor and Celeste might not have made it to the courthouse in time to complete the divorce procedures.

Wynn felt her entire body turn cold at that thought.

Meanwhile, Miles and Beck had stopped caring whether Trevor and Celeste finalized their divorce. They immediately started calling Trevor, wanting to find out about Lincoln and Queenie's situation.

Trevor finally answered after several consecutive calls.

They didn't say more after learning that Lincoln and Queenie were still in the emergency room. They just rushed straight to the hospital after hanging up Wynn only started to call Trevor after finally regaining her senses. She called for a long while before Trevor finally found the time to answer her call.

The Breaking Point of Love - Chapter 715[ 639 words ]

Right after ending her call with Trevor, both the Lockets and Shaws called Wynn again, asking for updates on Trevor and Celeste's divorce.

She told them about Lincoln and Queenie's accident. The expressions of both families changed immediately after hearing that.

Then they hurriedly asked, "So, did Trevor and Celeste divorce?"

Wynn replied, "I don't know, but most likely not."

As much as she hated to admit, judging by the timing, Trevor had probably received news of the accident before he could make it to the courthouse.

The Lockets and Shaws didn't expect that after waiting and hoping for so long, it would all come to nothing again.

"How did this happen?"

Linda was so angry that she stomped her foot. "Exactly!"

After Celeste finished her meeting at around noon, she remembered Lincoln and Queenie's accident and was just about to call Jordyn when Kieran walked over.

"Want to grab lunch together?"

Celeste was about to answer him when her phone rang. She knew it was Trevor from the number.

So, she nodded to Kieran and stepped a little away from him to answer the call.

"How are your parents doing now?"

On the other end, Trevor said, "They just came out of the emergency room not long ago. Both of them have multiple serious injuries. They're stable for now, but still not out of danger yet. Especially my father-his injuries are more severe than my mother's."

Celeste paused for a moment before replying with a hum as acknowledgement.

It was only then that Trevor explained why he had called.

"My sister and I will be staying at the hospital to look after them. Grandma's not in a very good state now. I tried to persuade her to go home and rest, but she refused to listen.

"Jo is still young, so it's not convenient for her to stay at the hospital too long. Would it be convenient for you to come over?"

Martha was clearly in a terrible state. If this continued, she might collapse first before there was even any news about Lincoln and Queenie.

At her age, it could become a serious issue if she really became sick.

After listening to Trevor's words, Celeste agreed, "Okay."

"Thank you."

Celeste didn't say anything else.

After hanging up, she looked at Kieran, who had been waiting not far from her.

"Sorry, something came up. I need to go to the hospital. Let's do lunch another time."

Kieran immediately asked, "Did something serious happen? Do you want me to go with you?"

"It's not my own matter. I can handle it."

Celeste didn't explain further. She returned to her office after that to grab her keys before heading out.

She finally arrived at the hospital nearly an hour later.

Trevor hadn't exaggerated—Martha looked terrible. Her complexion was pale, and she looked far more haggard than before.

She seemed to want to smile when toward

she saw Celeste, but couldn't quite manage it. Instead, she reached out and took Celeste's hand. Then she glanced at Trevor beside her before saying to Celeste, "It's thoughtful of you to come over."

She wasn't senile. She knew perfectly well that Trevor was the one who had called Celeste over.

The fact that Celeste could set aside all the unpleasantness between herself and Trevor, and come over specifically to accompany and comfort her, was something Martha appreciated.

As for her grandson...

The fact that he had still specifically called Celeste and asked her to come over, even though he was on the verge of divorcing her, meant that he knew in his heart that Celeste was truly a good person and that she would definitely come.

But right now, Martha was in no mood to say any of that.

Jordyn also knew that something serious could happen to Lincoln and Queenie, However, she was still a child and was feeling frightened. So the moment she saw Celeste, she threw herself into Celeste's arms

Trevor said to Martha, "Go home and get some rest. I'll let you know immediately if there's any good news."
