

At that moment, everyone was stunned. And naturally, that included Quentin.

When Jordyn pushed Trevor's hand away and ran toward Celeste, Quentin had still been furious, believing that Trevor had deliberately brought his daughter over as a shield.

But the moment he saw Jordyn throw herself into Celeste's arms and call her "Mom," something in his mind snapped.

He stood there blankly, staring at the scene before him. His mind went completely empty. Why would Trevor's daughter call Celeste...

Mom?

On the other side, Xavier and Jorge had almost the same reaction as Quentin. They had both assumed Jordyn was calling Wynn. But when they saw Jordyn run straight into Celeste's arms, Jorge froze completely.

All his movements stopped. He stared at the scene in disbelief, his eyes filled with shock.

Xavier was completely dumbfounded. After finally processing what had happened, he muttered, "Damn! The mother of Trevor's daughter... is actually Celeste? "This... This can't be right, can it? This... This doesn't make sense!"

This completely overturned everything he knew. He felt like his brain was no longer enough to process everything happening.

Jorge continued staring in Celeste's direction, unable to react. At that moment, his mind was also completely blank.

On the other side, although Kieran had already guessed that Trevor might be Celeste's husband, he was still deeply shocked when Jordyn threw herself into Celeste's arms and called her "Mom."

So, Trevor really was Celeste's husband.

H-How was this possible?

The images of Trevor and Celeste interacting appeared in his mind.

YodaVision and Fleming Group had cooperated for so long. They had even worked together with Quincy before. At events like this, they occasionally encountered each other. But every time they appeared together, their conversations had always been so formal and businesslike.

So distant, and indifferent.

If not for the cooperation between their companies, anyone would have believed that the two of them barely knew each other. Yet, they were actually a married couple.

And their daughter was already this big.

After the initial shock, quite a few people at the scene finally reacted. "Trevor's daughter called Celesto Mom..."

"M-My god... does that mean Celeste is probably Trevor's ex-wife!"

"It... It should be, right? My god, I had never heard about this before."

"Exactly!"

The moment Jordyn's voice rang out, Celeste had immediately recognized her. She also hadn't expected Jordyn to suddenly appear here.

When she saw Jordyn running toward her, she was stunned for a moment.

Seeing that Celeste wasn't reacting, Jordyn frowned and tugged at her hand.

"Mom?"

Celeste finally came back to her senses. She responded softly with a hum.

Holding her glass in one hand, she bent her o

slightly and reached out

her to hug Jordyn, then she asked gently, "Why did you come here?"

Seeing Celeste hug her, Jordyn quickly became happy. She hugged Celeste tightly and refused to let go.

Hearing Celeste's question, she looked up proudly and said, "I secretly came here by myself with the invitation!"

Celeste paused. She was about to say something when Jordyn suddenly turned her head.

Her eyes landed on the enlarged photos of her and Trevor displayed on the screen.

Jordyn looked surprised. "Huh? Mom, why are there so many pictures of you and Dad on the TV?"

Celeste paused. She didn't answer.

Meanwhile, Quentin and Philip had already recovered from their shock.

Just like everyone around Celeste, they had witnessed the entire interaction between Celeste and Jordyn.