

THE BREAKING POINT OF LOVE

Chapter 833

"Of course. I'm free on the first." Celeste hadn't forgotten about her daughter's first day of school.

Since Jordyn wanted her to be there for the opening ceremony, Celeste would naturally go if she was available.

Hearing that Celeste would be there, Jordyn seemed a little happier. "Then it's a promise, okay?"

"Okay."

Jordyn paused before saying, "Bye, Mom."

In the past, after telling Celeste what she wanted to say, Jordyn would usually continue sharing little things about her day or ask if her mother was busy.

She wasn't used to simply calling to say what she needed to say and hang up like this. And there was even a slight sense of unfamiliarity in her tone.

However, Celeste didn't ask about it. "Okay."

With that, she ended the call.

That night, Jordyn went to bed early.

The next morning, she only spoke to Trevor, who was sitting across from her, after starting to eat her breakfast. "Mom's going to the opening ceremony."

"Mm. I know."

On the morning of the first, when Trevor and Jordyn arrived at school, Celeste was already there.

After their conversation a few days earlier, Celeste and Jordyn hadn't been in contact again. And this was also the first time they'd seen each other since Philip's banquet.

The moment Jordyn saw Celeste, she got out of the car and hurried over, throwing herself into her mother's arms. "Mom!"

Seeing her rush into her arms, Celeste smiled and bent down to hug her. "Did you have breakfast?"

Jordyn was reluctant to leave her mother's embrace. "I did."

Celeste smiled.

When she looked up, her eyes met Trevor's. Celeste gave him a slight nod in greeting. Then she looked away, released Jordyn, and said, "Let's go inside first."

"Okay."

Celeste took Jordyn's hand and walked toward the school building, asking as they went, "Have you gone anywhere fun lately?"

Remembering that she'd gone out a few days ago, Jordyn replied, "Yeah."

However, aside from those two days, she'd spent most of the time alone at home. But she didn't mention that to Celeste.

The two of them walked ahead while Trevor followed behind without saying anything.

The school grounds were bustling with students and parents. Along the way, quite a few people stopped in surprise when they saw them.

No one had expected to run into Celeste and Trevor here.

Everyone had been shocked by the revelations online, but since neither of the people involved had come forward to confirm or deny anything, no one had known whether the reports were true.

Now, seeing the two of them arrive together with their daughter, everyone finally realized that the rumors had been true.

Trevor and Celeste really were husband and wife!

Celeste and Trevor paid no attention to the curious looks around them and simply took Jordyn to her classroom to register.

As soon as they arrived, they attracted another wave of attention.

They introduced themselves to Jordyn's homeroom teacher. Then, the teacher asked what she should be aware of when taking care of Jordyn and what her interests were.

Trevor replied, "She's usually very well-behaved. If she asks for something or brings up an issue, please take it seriously and call.

either her mother or me right away. As for her interests, she has quite a few..."

Trevor spoke with the teacher at length while Celeste listened quietly beside them.

The others nearby were curious too, and they couldn't help watching. Hearing Trevor talk to the teacher about his daughter, they were all rather surprised.

After all, someone as busy as Trevor usually wouldn't have the time to pay such close attention to his child's day-to-day growth. Especially when his relationship with Celeste seemed to be anything but good.
