

The Breaking Point of Love

Chapter 839

A moment later, Wynn made another call.

This time, she called Jacob.

When Jacob saw her name on his screen, he was stunned for a moment. After hesitating briefly, he answered. "Ms. Locket."

"Hello, Jacob. Sorry to bother you."

Jacob naturally knew about what had happened at Philip's banquet. He had been no less shocked than Quentin and Narcissa. He had never imagined that Celeste and Wynn could have such a relationship.

Jacob said, "It's alright, Ms. Locket. Is there something you need?"

Wynn got straight to the point. "Would you be able to tell me where Trevor is right now?"

Jacob wasn't actually aware of the full situation between Trevor and Wynn. But he did know about the trouble facing the Locket family and InnovaTech.

So naturally, he also knew that Trevor hadn't stepped in to help them.

With public opinion still running high, Jacob felt that Trevor's decision not to help the Locket family was the right one. But that didn't necessarily mean Trevor and Wynn had broken up.

Yet now Wynn was calling to ask where Trevor was.

Jacob came back to himself. "I'm sorry, Ms. Locket. I'm not permitted to disclose Mr. Fleming's whereabouts to anyone. I hope you understand."

"It's okay." Wynn had already anticipated that answer.

"Then would you at least be able to tell me if he's away on a business trip?"

Jacob hesitated before answering. "No. Mr. Fleming has been in the city these past few days."

"Then, is he at the company now?"

"No."

"Okay, I understand. Thank you, Jacob."

"You're welcome."

Wynn ended the call then.

A little after four that afternoon, Wynn left InnovaTech.

More than half an hour later, she arrived at the entrance to Trevor's residential area.

But she didn't go inside. She waited at the entrance instead.

However, she waited until late into the night without seeing Trevor's car. And she stayed there through the night.

The next morning, Jordyn's car eventually drove out toward the school.

Wynn just watched it leave. It was only then that she started her own car and drove away.

Meanwhile, Celeste also left home and headed to YodaVision.

After returning to the company and organising the documents, Matthias walked into her office. "You're really sure you don't want me to go over to Fleming Group and handle the negotiations?" Content Belongs YodaVision and Fleming Group had a further contract to discuss that day.

Matthias had originally planned to go himself, but an urgent matter had come up with a project he was overseeing, and he couldn't get away.

The real reason he'd suggested it was because he didn't want Celeste to have to negotiate with Trevor personally. Although there was no guarantee that Trevor would. personally handle the contract negotiations.

"No need. I'll head over first." Celeste patted him on the shoulder.

Matthias sighed. "...Alright."

After learning that Celeste was going to Fleming Group to discuss a partnership, Kieran went with her as well.

When Celeste and Kieran arrived at Fleming Group, several of Fleming Group's senior executives were already there Celeste was just about to greet them wh

Trevor

and Jacob walked in through another entrance.

When they saw him, Celeste showed no particular reaction.

The others in the room, however, exchanged glances and seemed somewhat reluctant to look directly at either Celeste or Trevor.

To be honest, there had been plenty of occasions in the past when Trevor and Celeste had attended business meetings together at Fleming Group.

It was just that, back then, no one had ever imagined that the two of them were actually husband and wife.

Kieran pressed his lips into a thin line.

Trevor entered the conference room and politely extended his hand toward Celeste.
"Sorry to keep you waiting."
