

The Breaking Point of Love

Chapter 852

Over the next few days, Celeste was busy dealing with company matters.

One day, Matthias suddenly said to her, "A few more key engineers have left Innova Tech recently."

Celeste hummed in acknowledgement and replied, "I've heard about it too."

"Several investors have pulled out, but a few are still holding on. I guess they're waiting to see whether Trevor will step in."

At that, Matthias smiled and added, "Apparently, CodeFlux has also withdrawn its investment."

CodeFlux was Jorge's company.

Celeste nodded.

Matthias couldn't help saying, "From what I saw before, Jorge seemed pretty infatuated with Wynn. I'm actually a little surprised he pulled out so decisively."

Celeste wasn't interested in Jorge's affairs, so she didn't respond.

Matthias then asked, "Trevor still hasn't returned from his business trip?"

Celeste shook her head. "I don't know."

She and Jordyn hadn't been in contact for the past few days. She hadn't been deliberately keeping track of Trevor's whereabouts either, so she genuinely didn't know whether he'd returned from his trip.

"It's been almost a month now. The court date for Locket Tech is coming up, and Innova Tech is barely hanging on. Is Trevor really planning to give up on saving both companies?"

Celeste replied, "I don't know."

Matthias understood that even if Trevor decided to stop helping the Locket family, it didn't necessarily mean anything.

It was precisely because he understood that fact that he hadn't been paying too much attention to what happened to Locket Tech and InnovaTech.

After school, Jordyn was just about to get into the car when she saw Trevor sitting inside.

Her lips pressed into a tight line and paused for a moment before getting into the car.

Trevor handed her a gift box that had been sitting beside him. "For you."

Jordyn turned her face away and didn't take it.

Trevor didn't force her. He simply set the gift box aside and reached over to pat her on the head. "I invited Beck and Miles to dinner. We'll go together."

Jordyn tried to move away, but couldn't, so she simply turned her face aside. "Whatever."

"Has anything happened at school these past few days?"

Jordyn took out her tablet and lowered her head to enter her password without looking up. "Don't you already know?"

"Okay."

Seeing that she clearly didn't want to talk, Trevor didn't say anything else.

A moment later, he received a work call and began dealing with it in the car. For the rest of the drive, the father and daughter pair remained mostly silent.

When they arrived at the restaurant, Beck and Miles were already there.

Seeing them arrive, Miles stretched lazily. "Finally! Come on, let's order. I'm starving."

Trevor handed the menu to Jordyn.

While Jordyn was choosing what to eat, Miles couldn't help asking

Trevor, You suddenly went on a business trip last week. Did something happen You left in such a hurry."

"There was a problem with the new drug development project over there, but it wasn't serious."

"That's good then."

Both Beck and Miles had been keeping an eye on the situation with Locket Tech and InnovaTech. They knew what was happening and were actually quite curious about what Trevor was thinking and what he planned to do.

But with Jordyn there, they didn't feel comfortable asking too many questions.

As for the group chat they had with Wynn, no one had said a word in it since Philip's banquet Miles, didn't try to start a conversation, and no one else had either. fo

Beck looked at Jordyn and paused. "Does Jo have something on her mind? Is she unhappy?"

Miles immediately turned his attention to her and chimed in with a laugh. "Huh? Jo has something on her mind?"
